Fight Brews As Senators Tone Down Peace Plan

Subcommittee Reports Draft Of Resolution In Broad Terms

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee yesterday approved a compromise foreign policy declaration asserting in broad, general terms the intention of this Government to join with "free and sovereign" nations in cooperative steps to avert another war.

Avoiding detailed commitments, the resolution declared for establishment and maintenance of international authority "with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

The general wording was approved 7 to 1 after the subcommittee modified language used in a draft by Chairman Tom Connally understood to call for use of military and economic sanctions where necessary to prevent aggression.

La Follette Opposed

The sole "No" vote was cast in behalf of Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive) of Wisconsin absent due to illness, but who asked to be recorded against any resolution.

Strikingly similar to the House-approved Fulbright "lasting peace" declaration, the Senate action was nonetheless divorced from House concurrence by approval of a separate resolution. This meant, in effect, that the House will stand on its own action, and the Senate on its own, without any composite conference draft concurred in by Congress as a whole.

Text of Resolution

The resolution, criticized by some internationally minded Senators as "too general" and by a few extreme isolationists as a foreign policy "straitjacket," reads as follows:

"Resolved by the Senate of the United States:

"That the war against all our enemies be waged until complete victory is achieved;

"That the United States cooperate with its comrades-in-arms in securing a just and honorable peace;

"That the United States, acting through its constitutional processes join with free and sovereign nations in the establishment and maintenance of international authority with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

Committee to Meet

Chairman Connally said the full Foreign Relations Committee will meet on the resolution next Tuesday or Wednesday. He predicted it will clear both the committee and the Senate, though Senate action may not come until the middle of next month.

"It is the best possible action that could be secured," said

Dismissal of Commissioner Guy Mason, District Health Officer George C. Ruhland, Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger Municipal Hospital, and two other Gallinger physicians was recommended yesterday in a report by a Senate District subcommittee investigating the institution.

If the report is approved first by the Senate District Committee, to whom it was submitted, and then by the Congress itself, the President can be requested by Congress to remove Mason from office and the two other Commissioners can be asked to dismiss the physicians.

D. C. Controls Of Manpower Strengthened

New Regulations Put More Workers Under USES Rule

By Kurt Kellman
Post Staff Writer

Tighter manpower controls, with the United States Employment Service as a labor clearing house for an increasing number of workers, will go into effect in the District and adjoining States tomorrow, Henry E. Treide, War Manpower Commission director of Region 4, announced yesterday.

Treide said the purpose "is to eliminate wasteful labor turnover, to reduce unnecessary migration by encouraging the full use of local labor, to direct scarce labor to employers engaged in essential activities in preference to others, and to obtain the maximum utilization of the manpower resources under standards protecting the rights of all concerned."

Various Rules Integrated

While not departing radically from existing regulations, the new plan has integrated various rules put into effect since last May, and has opened the door for a progressive increase in the number of workers in acute labor shortage areas who can change jobs only through the USES.

Main features of the plan include:

1. Migration control by imposing the requirement that all migratory workers must be cleared through the USES and that they will be refused a job unless in possession of an "interarea release."

2. Channeling of employment of workers in "critical occupations," so designated on the national list or by a ruling of the area director, through the USES exclusively.

3. Continued protection for farmers by imposing the rule that all agricultural workers have to

Navy Linked To Failure At Brewster

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

Top-ranking Navy Department officials were accused of contributing to the production failure of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, with serious waste of manpower and taxpayers' money, by "pampering labor," after hours of gruelling questioning by a Naval Affairs subcommittee yesterday.

It was further charged, and submitted, that only pressure from The Washington Post, the Philadelphia Record, the House Naval Affairs Committee and the Truman Committee had forced an improvement in the situation which culminated in the election of Henry J. Kaiser, production genius, as Brewster president.

The Navy Department assured the subcommittee, headed by Representative Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia, that there was every reason to believe that Kaiser would be successful in straightening out the Brewster muddle and bring production up to 100 to 150 planes a month by the end of the year.

Three-Month Trial

Kaiser, officials told the committee, is given three months to show improvement. If management and labor do not both improve greatly in that time, the Navy will cancel its contracts, thus probably ending the corporation, officials stated.

Navy officials who faced the determined Congressmen yesterday were Undersecretary James V. Forrestal, Assistant Secretary for Air Artemus L. Gates, Rear Admiral S. M. Kraus, general inspector of naval aircraft of the Eastern District, and H. Struve Hensel, chief, procurement legal division. Assistant Secretary Ralph K. Bard will face the same active battery today.

The following table, compiled by The Washington Post from the mass of testimony given in nearly seven hours, shows the taxpayers' financial stake in this company.

V-loan guaranteed by Navy Department, $55,000,000.

Contract for fighter planes, $139,000,000.

Contract for bombers, all obsolete, $36,000,000.

Planes delivered to date (approximate) 800.

Of these planes 308 were bombers which have been delivered, and

Lacks Status of Ally

Italy Wars With Nazis; Made Allies' Partner

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 13.—Italy declared war against Germany today, and was accepted by the United States, Great Britain and Russia as a cobelligerent.

Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio declared in a message to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, that "all ties with the dreadful past are broken, and my government will be proud to be able to march with you on to the inevitable victory."

With Italy an exhausted nation and most of her soldiers showing little disposition to fight, it is not likely that the Badoglio government will be able to put any great army in the field beside those of the Allies.

Its action, however, may increase the rear guard resistance in those parts of the country under the German heel and facilitate cooperation of Italians with the Allies in the part of Italy so far wrested from the Germans.

Acceptance of Italy as a cobelligerent was announced in a joint statement by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin. This amounted simply to putting an existing state of affairs into writing. Virtually all Italians now detest the Germans, and some have been fighting them.

Italy still is far from being accorded the status of an ally, and so far as can be learned here, no promises have been made to her other than the commitments already undertaken—to aid the Italians in driving the Germans from the country, and to give them a certain amount of food and other supplies to keep them going.

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin in their joint statement made it plain that Italy's future would be adjusted "in the light of the assistance which the Italian

Churchill Pictures Britain As Model of Home-Front Unity

By E. C. Daniel
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 13.—In a lecture on wartime national unity which might just as well have been intended for the United States as for Britain, Prime Minister Churchill cautioned Commons today against controversies which could prolong the war, whose "bloodiest fighting" he said was still ahead.

Without mentioning the United States, Churchill held up Britain as "a model to the world in its unity and its perseverance," and declared emphatically he would not imperil this unity by acceding to a Socialist demand for nationalization of Britain's coal mines—a highly controversial proposal.

The Prime Minister said postwar political squabbling was to be deplored, "but at any rate is not so bad as the example of some countries, which I would not venture to name, where soldiers are fighting abroad and politicians are fighting at home with equal vigor and ferocity."

In a more direct reference to American political quarrels, Churchill declared earlier that Britain's peacetime civil aviation policy would "have no aim prejudical to the interests of the United States."

This was an obvious reference to some Washington charges that Britain is attempting to monopolize the airlines after the war.

Churchill disclosed that Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Privy Seal, had assumed responsibility for coordination of the postwar civil air policy. Beaverbrook is expected to return soon to the United States to confer with American officials. Present discussions, Churchill said, are "purely of an exploratory nature."

Describing an empire air policy conference in London this week as "family talk," he said that United States' interests would not be prejudiced and that discussions with Washington and Moscow would follow.

"I should say it would be possible," he added, "to make very good arrangements in the interests of all parties. Certainly the British Empire has a great deal to give, and we do not wish to obstruct a natural, normal, healthy development

Ramspeck Committee to Probe Hiring by Navy Department

By Jerry Kluttz

The Navy Department will be the next agency whose personnel and employe practices will be investigated by the Ramspeck Committee. In an interim report presented to Congress yesterday, the committee said it was "curious" that the War Department had dropped 145,000 civilians following its inquiry and that Navy personnel had shot up from 99,000 in January, 1940, to 690,000 in August "and there are no indications of a leveling off of the force." Moreover, the committee took credit—and it's entitled to an ample share—of stopping the hiring of masses of new Federal workers that averaged 100,000 a month last year. After the committee was set up, the employment rate dropped to 50,000 a month and July showed a decline for the first time in years.

The report called attention to the fact that many a Federal worker got his salary boosted from $600 to $1200 by "blowing up" his job, writing up impressive descriptions of his job and background . . . slinging the personnel jargon . . . using high-sounding titles. Pay raises obtained through such practices, the committee said, are bad for two reasons: (1) loyal, honest and hard-working employes are embittered and become discontented, and (2) there is a tendency to break down the merit system. Personnel officers are blasted for giving handsome salary raises to employes who have been in Government one, two and three years and passing up the more experienced old-timers.

"Personal machines" were denounced in the report. This is the practice of a top administrator hiring 10 or 15 of his friends to follow him, usually at higher salaries, wherever he goes. "There is no justification for these mass movements," the committee said. The report also made mention of the many youthful and inexperienced people in personnel offices. It said that "the requirements for positions involving the selection or classification of personnel should include some operational experience, gained either in Government or private industry, preferably both. The committee accused the youngsters of driving away from Washington experienced and able people who had come down here anxious to help win the war.

The committee appears to have gotten off base in its blast at the Civil Service Commission on two counts: (1) that the commission should give immediate study to the placement of veterans in Federal jobs after the war and (2) that the commission's regulations would bar a large percentage of the veterans because of its "attitude toward college degrees." The commission

Allies Make 9-Mile Gain In Mid-Italy

Seize San Croce; Pose New Threat To Flank Nazis' Volturno Line

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 13.—Allied troops cracking tough Nazi defenses for a 9-mile breakthrough in central Italy have forged a new threat of outflanking the Volturno River line, where the Germans were massing new strength and thousands of shells screamed today in prelude to a great battle.

In accompaniment to tremendous artillery duels, both sides concentrated new forces of men and guns along the Volturno for what may become a bigger battle even than that of the Salerno bridgehead a month ago.

Fifty miles inland, Allied forces punched through the mountains to seize San Croce, eight miles northeast of Pontelandolfo, and the Eighth Army, driving westward, captured Riccia, only eight miles northeast of San Croce.

Enemy Reacts Violently

The Germans also were reported making heavy movements along the Adriatic behind their armored forces and parachutists, bitterly contesting the Eighth Army march up the Adriatic coast. Whether these indicated that the Nazis were tossing a substantial additional force into the battle there as well as on the Volturno was not clear.

Farther inland on the Eighth Army front, enemy artillery reacted violently to the steady British advance, but gains in virtually every sector were reported by Montgomery's headquarters.

Latest advices said the Allied line now extends from a point on the Adriatic four miles above Termoli due south through Guglionesi and Larino to Bonefro, then it dips southeast a short distance to Colletorto. From there is runs southwest through Riccia and San Croce, then due south to a point on the Calore River west of Ponte, along the lower Calore to its junction with the Volturno, and along the Volturno to the sea. In some places, however, patrols have speared many miles deeper.

Pontelandolfo fell early this week to Fifth Army troops, and capture of San Croce and Riccia in the central and westward drives added to the potential pressure in this area to turn the German Volturno line. The central front breakthrough also took the towns of Cercello, Colle and Celtelpagano.

Train Wrecked by Planes

San Croce is only 10 airline miles from Vinchiaturo, key road center with highways radiating north and west.

Official front-line dispatches announced the new advances. Today's communique simply reported further progress in the Termoil and central sectors, and patrol activity.

(It was not specified whether Fifth or Eighth Army troops took San Croce.)

In the air, Allied fighter-bombers wrecked one train and destroyed eight railway cars carrying motor transports on the rail line between

Moscow, Oct. 13.—The official Communist Party organ, Pravda, bluntly let it be known today that the Russians do not intend to discuss frontiers or the status of the Baltic states at the forthcoming three-power conference any more than "the borders of the United States or the status of California."

In its first announcement of the conference, to be held in Moscow among representatives of Russia, the United States and Britain, Pravda said the Russians intend to use the meeting to discuss the "second front" in western Europe and Hitler's complete defeat, and not to debate postwar frontier questions.

Pravda followed the position repeatedly expressed in the Soviet press that the war first must be won before the Allies get into deep and serious discussions over the fate of the world after the fighting ceases.

Reds Break Into Melitopol, Killing 4000

Fling Spearhead Toward Kiev, Reach Gates of Gomel

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), Oct. 14.—Soviet troops, tearing three major gaps in German defense lines, have surged in to menace the Crimea, flung another spearhead toward the suburbs of Kiev and splashed across the Sozh River to the gates of Gomel in White Russia, Moscow announced today.

Breaking through elaborate German defenses in the south Ukraine, the Russians forced the Molochna River and swept to the very center of Melitopol, where fierce street battles were reported now in progress.

Melitopol, on one of the two German escape railways from the Crimea, was a milestone in the Russian drive to cut off the Crimean Pensinsula from the north.

The breakthrough came after three days' fighting.

4000 Germans Killed

More than 4000 Germans were killed, 38 tanks, 16 self-propelled guns and 88 field guns were destroyed in the battle, said the communique.

Northward, at the Dnieper River bend, Soviet spearheads plunged to within 5 miles of Zaporozhe after a four-day engagement that saw several thousand Germans killed, 30 enemy strong-points shattered and military booty captured.

Moscow dispatches said the Red army had advanced to three kilometers (1.8 miles) from Kiev, city blazing with retreat fires already started by the Germans. The communique told of advances south of

Allies Lose Only 5 Craft In Bombing Rabaul Base

Greatest Pacific Air Force Raids Enemy Air Hub In Surprise Blow

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific (Thursday), Oct. 14.—The biggest Allied air force ever assembled in the Southwest Pacific made the first fighter-escorted raid of the war on Rabaul, New Britain, Tuesday, wiping out 126 enemy aircraft, damaging 51 planes and sinking 17,600 tons of ships, including three destroyers.

The raid on Rabaul, biggest stronghold in the Southwest Pacific to be menaced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces, was announced today in a communique.

One hundred aircraft were destroyed on the ground and 51 severely damaged. Twenty-six fighters out of 40 the Japanese put in the air were shot down.

The 177 aircraft destroyed or severely damaged are estimated to have been 60 per cent of Rabaul's strength.

500 Aircraft Smashed

In addition to the three destroyers, three merchantmen, 43 sea-going barges and 70 harbor craft were sunk. Severe damage also was inflicted on a submarine, its 5000-ton tender, a 6800-ton destroyer tender and a 7000-ton merchantman.

The raiding Liberators, Mitchells and P-38s expended 350 tons of bombs and 250,000 rounds of cannon and machine-gun fire in the midday assault.

The raiders smashed wharves and warehouses and caused heavy damage to Simpson harbor, one of the finest in all the Pacific.

Only five planes were lost out of the hundreds employed in the two-hour assault.

Rabaul long has been regarded as the primary objective of the Pacific offensive which opened on June 30. Presently this offensive has reached the northern Solomons Island of Bougainville, the only important enemy olding barring the direct approach to Rabaul.

The announcement of this staggering punch at Rabaul was contained in a communique which also proclaimed complete eradication of organized Japanese resistance in all the central Solomons and the downing of 21 more planes in sky battles over the only Solomons area still in enemy hands.

On the other arm of the offensive, MacArthur's Australians have overrun the Huon Gulf sector of New Guinea, which is separated only by narrow Vitiaz Strait from New Britain Island, with Rabaul approximately 350 miles to the northeast.

Six Ships Sunk

The communique said the Rabaul operation, "including the first phase at Wewak, gives us definite mastery in the air over the Solomons sea and adjacent waters and thereby threatens the enemy's whole perimeter of defense."

At Wewak, New Guinea, some 300 miles northwest of the present ground fighting scene, approximately 500 enemy planes have been destroyed in raids since mid-August.

In telling of the surprise achieved in the Rabaul blow, the communique said:

"With complete secrecy, the mass of our air force was concentrated and launched against his air and naval forces there, using fields made possible by our occupa-

Economy-Bent Senate Group To Enlarge Advisory Staff

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Forecasting a redoubled Capitol economy drive, the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday voted to increase the ranks of its expert advisers to help in investigating and trimming Federal money bills.

The action, announced by acting Chairman McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee, came in the midst of demands on both sides of the Capitol that reduced Government spending be made to substitute for up to 40 per cent or more of the Administration's $10,500,000,000 new revenue program.

The committee indorsed its economy program by adopting a resolution of Senator Overton (Democrat of Louisiana, authorizing expenditures of $30,000 to employ experts to obtain factual information for the committee, and to hire additional clerical help.

A similar resolution was passed by the House last February. A $100,000 appropriation was authorized to carry it out, and the House Appropriations Committee has been using the enlarged authority ever since. Chairman Cannon (Democrat) of Missouri and Representative Taber (Republican) of New York said the system has proved highly successful in turning up for the committee and its subcommittee facts about the Federal agency operations that would

1236 Americans Held by Japs On Way to Exchange in India

The State Department last night made public a list of 1236 American civilians who, after being interned by the Japanese at various places in the Far East, have started on the long voyage to New York.

Five of the released internees gave Washington, D. C., as their address. They are John Andrew Bristow, Eileen Anglin Hutchins, Stephen Robert Mehringer, Horatio Mooers, and Alice Maude Powell. In addition there is Ethelena Bee Anderson of Takoma Park, Md.

Returning to Staunton, Va., are five members of the Philippe family—Garnet Galard Philippe, Florence Elma, David Everett, Jonathan Thomas and Joanna Ruth. Another Staunton resident in the list is Wallace Palmer Willson.

The American nationals were interned by the Japanese in Japan, the Philippines, China, Hong Kong and Indo-China. Their exchange for Japanese held by the United States Government was arranged by neutral Switzerland, which provided the State Department with the names released last night.

The department said that the Americans had embarked on the Japanese liner Teia Maru, which will take them to Mormuagao, Portuguese India, the exchange point. There they will board the Swedish liner Gripsholm and sail to New York.

A considerable number of those being returned are Catholic and Protestant missionaries, who were in various fields in the Far East.

Leaders Hope Other Nations Will Follow Italy in War Step

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington interpreted the Badoglio declaration of war against Germany yesterday as the start of a bandwagon movement that could leave the Nazis completely isolated and internally shaken.

Nobody expected decisive, direct military aid, at least not immediately.

Typical of congressional comments on the Italian action are these:

Senator McKellar Democrat), of Tennessee—"I'm not surprised, and I expect others will want to get on the bandwagon soon. I hope that Portugal, Spain and Sweden all will be climbing on the wagon before long."

Speaker Rayburn (Democrat) of Texas—"I am glad to see that the liberty-loving people of Italy have lined up with the other liberty-loving people of the world."

Chairman Bloom (Democrat) of New York of the House Foreign Affairs Committee—"I don't think it changes the position with respect to the arrangement between the United Nations and Italy which already is in existence. The language used by the King and Badoglio emphasizes the character of the Nazis and shows that all decent peoples must unite in crushing them."

Representative Martin of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader—"The declaration should speed up the winning of the war against Germany."

Representative Bolton (Republican) of Ohio—"The psychological effect on German morale should be terrific."

Italian cobelligerency with the United Nations is accepted on all sides as a powerful propaganda weapon, but the amount of military assistance the nation can render remains to be seen.

The most immediate propaganda effects are expected in the Balkans.

The little states of southeastern Europe, already stirred to turmoil by Italy's surrender last month and by the valiant campaign of Yugoslavian patriots, may require only the Italian action to bring them to the final plunge into revolt against German domination.

There is a question too of the effect in neutral Spain and Turkey. Both nations undoubtedly would like to be identified with the winning side when the war ends.

Some authorities here are speculating on the psychological effect on Germany, too. Despite the fact that Hitler has set up a puppet government for Mussolini in northern Italy, the belief is that the German people must realize now, as they had not before, how soon they will be standing alone and completely encircled in Europe.

Italian Switch Parallels Role In World War I

By Austin Bealmear
Associated Press Foreign Staff

In declaring war on her former Axis partner, Germany, Italy completed yesterday an about-face which almost duplicates the course she followed in World War I.

Her stand at the side of Germany in the present war ended September 8 when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced the unconditional surrender of the government of Premier Pietro Badoglio.

Actually the armistice was signed on September 3, the day Allied troops invaded the Italian mainland after their 38-day conquest of Sicily.

Italy was an Axis partner for three years, two months and 29 days. Benito Mussolini's forces attacked a prostrate France on June 10, 1940, in the hope of winning some cheaply gained loot.

Since her surrender she has given the Allies some help in the form of organized resistance to German occupation—ordered by the Badoglio government—and a valuable prize in the Italian fleet, but today's action places her once more in the position of turning formally against a power with which she had been allied.

The Triple Alliance

When the first World War began, Italy had a triple alliance with Germany and Austria. She declared, however, that the pact did not call for participation in "aggressive action" and declined to take up arms.

She remained neutral for 10 months, then came into the war on the side of the Allies and participated as one of the "Big Four" in the Treaty of Versailles.

Italy's part in the present war has been filled with defeats and increasing German domination.

Suffered Heavy Casualties

Italy's casualties while fighting at the side of Germany were considerable, although nothing like those suffered by Germany on the Russian front, and a total of nearly 1,000,000 Italian prisoners now are in Allied prison camps.

The split with Germany began July 25 when Mussolini was ousted from power and placed under guard by the Badoglio government, only to be liberated by the Nazis who immediately set him up in business again as head of a puppet "Republican Fascist" government.

Badoglio, who took over the Italian premiership, negotiated the surrender with the Allies and called upon Italian troops to cease fighting American and British forces but to "oppose attacks from any other quarter."

The premier and King Vittorio Emanuele have been cooperating with Allied commanders in Allied-held Italian territory, to which they fled only a few hours after the announcement of the armistice.

Use of Fleet Important

The most significant contribution to the Allied cause resulting from Italy's break with Germany was the spectacular surrender of Italian warships and dozens of merchant vessels which defied the German air force and fled to Allied ports after the surrender.

More than 100 Italian warships and more than 150,000 tons of merchant ships now are in Allied hands.

Units of the Italian battle fleet known to have made the successful run to Allied ports, some of them through a hail of German bombs, include five battleships, nine cruisers, 27 destroyers and at least 25 submarines.

Nazis Assail Italian Action, As 'Treachery'

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 13.—The German news agency DNB declared today that the Italian declaration of war against Germany put the "final stroke on the treachery that has branded King Vittorio Emanuele, Premier Marshal Badoglio and his accomplices in the eyes of history."

This broadcast dispatch, which was recorded here by United States Government monitors, was the first Nazi propaganda comment on the Italian action. It was directed only to the controlled Axis press outside Germany and was marked "unofficial."

Declarig that the "practical consequences of this measure are irrelevant," the dispatch said that "in actual fact, for weeks, individuals subservient to the Anglo-Americans have been fighting against German troops in Italy."

The dispatch said Berlin had received the news "with understandable irony," but had described "it as interesting that the Badoglio circle had been recognized as a cobelligerent power not only by Britain and the United States, but also by the Soviet Union."

The dispatch concluded: "Thus Soviet Russia's influence in spheres of interest other than her own has been officially documented."

Graziani With Hitler

London, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Berlin radio said today that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, War Minister in Benito Mussolini's German-sponsored "Fascist Republican Government," had arrived at Adolf Hitler's headquarters for staff conferences.

'Dead' Tissue Used to Join Broken Nerves

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 13.—A method of using tissue from cadavers to bridge severed nerves and restore their functions was described today by three physicians.

The technique would be applicable in replacing shot away portions of peripheral nerves—those other than the central nervous system—to bring about a return of sensation and movement in portions of limbs of wounded men.

Drs. Roland M. Klemme and Nilson R. de Rezende of St. Louis, and Capt. P. Dean Woolsey of the Army Medical School Corps, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association of three uses they made of the graft, said:

"The first patient already has a good clinical result with return of motor and sensory function. The second patient is already beginning to get return of function. The third case is too recent to make it possible to judge."

Flaps of the nerve sheaths were cut from both sides of the growths at the ends of the severed nerves. The graft, carefully cut to fit the gap, then was placed in position and glued to the two severed ends.

"The graft merely acts as a framework of tubes for ingrowth of the severed nerve fibers," the doctors reported.

Congress Asked to Aid Army Tuberculars

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Oct. 13.—The American Public Health Association was asked today to appeal to Congress to save boys already returning from this war with tuberculosis from the plight of tubercular victims of the first World War.

The request was made by Dr. Louis I. Dublin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. He said that although about one million dollars was spent on the first World War veterans, and despite the fact that the veterans hospitals are excellent, only in rare instances were the men discharged as cured.

The reason, he explained, was lack of control over the veterans, such as is exercised in civilian tuberculosis sanitaria, where patients are kept under treatment until they are cured.

"The veterans," he said, "go and come at will with the result that their condition deteriorates and they sooner or later die of their disease, having meanwhile infected many others in their homes."

Since the first World War the veteran admissions for tuberculosis have been 300,000, but not that many men. The extreme case was a veteran admitted 24 times, and six to eight admissions for the same man were common. One reason, Dr. Dublin said, was that these invalids received more money for their dependents when they stayed at home than when in the hospital.

Fourteen months ago, 700 boys with tuberculosis already had returned from the present war, and Dr. Dublin said the number now probably is in the thousands.

"As health officers," he declared, "it is your responsibility to see that tuberculosis veterans returning home from Veterans' Administration hospitals are properly supervised and served so that they may not become a public health menace. For one thing, you can, through appropriate action, bring this dangerous situation to the attention of Congress.

New West Coast Air Line Sought

Asking for more equitable distribution of "the fat of the air transport business," T. E. Braniff, president of Braniff Airways, yesterday filed applications for new transcontinental routes which would provide Washington with a fourth airline to the West Coast.

Citing figures showing that about one-third of the Nation's total air business originates in Washington, New York, Boston and Los Angeles, Braniff said: "There are only three transcontinental air carriers but in the year ending June 30, 1943, they performed 65 per cent of the total revenue passenger miles operated, 72 per cent of the air mail pound miles and 77 per cent of the air express pound miles."

Entire Italian Division Joins Yugoslav Army

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 13.—The Yugoslav National Liberation Army announced tonight it had been joined by the entire Italian Venezia Division, until recently an enemy force, in fighting the Germans.

Announcement of the switch-over of the Italian division was contained in the Liberation Army's communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

The Liberation Army, led by the legendary Drug Tito, also officially charged that it was being opposed by the Chetnik forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, King Peter's field commander, as well as the Germans. A similar charge against Mihailovic was made recently by Tito's supporters in London.

The communique as recorded here said:

"The whole Italian division Venezia has come over to our side and is fighting with us against the Germans. Only a few days ago the same Italian division was fighting our units together with German forces and General Mihailovic's units."

A Yugoslav source here who has contacts with Tito's guerrilla Partisans said that group hailed Italy's declaration of war, saying that "now Italy has a chance to redeem itself."

It was disclosed here also that political machinery is beginning to operate in Yugoslavia. The Yugoslav Information Department said that near the end of September popular elections were held and 572 representatives from liberated areas in Slovenia attended the first assembly from October 1 to October 3. Ninety-six delegates from the peoples' liberation movement in Yugoslavia also attended and a plenary committee of 120 members was picked, it was said. From these, 40 were named to serve as the Yugoslav anti-Fascist council.

The communique said that Liberation army units had smashed into Zenica, a major industrial town in central Bosnia. Liberation forces now were said to be battling in the streets to hold the city. Zenica is 35 miles northwest of Sarajevo on the railway linking that city with Brod.

Capture of Berani in Montenegro, 15 miles north of the Albanian border, by an army group under a young lawyer-general named Dapcevic also was announced.

Dapcevic is described as one of the principal lieutenants of Tito, who has been reported in Cairo to see the Allies about an invasion soon. The communique, however, made no allusion to reports that Tito or one of his aides had carried an invasion plea to the seat of the Allied Middle East Command.

Earlier, the Swiss radio said patriot forces had battled their way into the outskirts of the important city of Zagreb and that fierce fighting for possession of the city had begun.

British Irked By Politeness Of First Yanks

Fort Benning, Ga., Oct. 13 (AP).—When the Yanks first landed in England they proved almost too polite, says the Hon. Ronald Tree, member of Parliament from Leicester.

Tree explained the Yanks had been so thoroughly coached not to impose on the British that their politeness reached the point of reticence. This disappointed the British, for they, in turn, had been urged to repay the Yanks for taking English children in American homes, and for entering the war.

However, both sides soon settled down to their respective ways and got along in good fashion, explained Tree, who as secretary of the ministry of information was in charge of arrangements for welcoming the Americans.

Brevity Marks Order to Attack

Somewhere in New Guinea, Oct. 12 (Delayed) (AP).—The order of the day for the attack on Rabaul, New Britain, was brief and to the point.

This order to the Fifth Air Force to execute the largest single air operation ever carried out in the southwest Pacific condensed months of planning into one sentence.

"With all available planes, attack and destroy shipping in Simpson Harbor (Rabaul) on October 12, 1943."

Booby Traps of Great Power Impede Yanks

By Relman Morin
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the United State Fifth Army in Italy, Oct. 9 (Delayed).—Apparently spurred by desperation as their retreat continues, the Germans have reached a new peak of ingenuity in laying mines and setting booby traps in the path of the advancing Fifth Army.

Even veteran engineers who went through campaigns in North Africa and Sicily were surprised by what they are finding in Italy.

They said that new equipment as well as thousands of new methods of concealing their presence have been discovered in this campaign. The volume of mines and the size of the minefields has increased also.

"We are finding lots of ordinary artillery shells rigged up with detonators. Jerry probably can't take them along when he retreats, so he makes mines out of them," one officer said.

Delayed-action charges—not with a time fuse but with a small trigger—are also found in large numbers. These lie dead although passed over by 10 vehicles. The eleventh goes up in pieces. Each time the lever clicks from pressure it operates like an ordinary jack for lifting an automobile. When the limit is reached the mine explodes.

But it has been in accurately gauging psychology of the average soldier and trapping him that the Germans have surpassed themselves.

Apple trees in the Italian orchards are heavy with fruit now. The most natural thing in the world for infantrymen passing the orchards is to drop out of the line of march long enough to pick apples.

Trip Wires Used

Frequently that's sudden death. Over and over again the Germans have attached trip wires to branches hanging near the road.

It's not so far to Berlin now. But the Germans have taken all the pleasure out of walking.

Finnish Policy Put Under Fire In Parliament

Stockholm, Oct. 13 (AP).—Finnish government policy was attacked in a stormy session of Finland's Parliament today, in which one critic called the country's situation "worse than in 1918."

Social Democrat Deputy Atos Wirtanen's speech censuring the government was frequently interrupted by Rightest cries of "That's Russian propaganda," dispatches said.

News censorship also came under strong attack from several Riksdag members. Wirtanen said: "After all news was blacked out, we were told the people were not ready for great decisions. We must really ask if this government is capable of leading us out of difficulties."

Italy Is Thirty-Fifth to War on Nazis

Italy is the thirty-fifth nation to declare war on Germany in this war. She is, however, the only one not a member of the United Nations, or an affiliate, such as the French Committee of National Liberation. The first country to declare war against Germany was England on September 3, 1939.

The other nations which have declared war against Germany are: Australia, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, India, Iran, Iraq, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Philippines, Poland, Union of South Africa, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United States, Yugo-

Naples Harbor Restored to Use

London, Oct. 13 (AP).—Naples harbor has again been placed in commission, the Cairo radio said today, and declared Allied troops had inflicted heavy casualties on the Germans in fighting along the Volturno River.

The broadcast added that Allied reinforcements are pouring into Salerno, south of Naples.

Japs Driving Up Burma Road In 3 Columns

By the Associated Press

Chungking, Oct. 13.—The Japanese have opened a three pronged drive northward along the Burma Road at the entrance to southwestern China and are engaged in heavy fighting with Chinese troops who are supported by airmen of the Fourteenth U.S. Air Force, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's headquarters announced tonight.

The high command's communique said Chinese forces in the Yunnan Province border region had succeeded in holding two of the columns beating their way toward the provincial capital at Kunming, only after suffering a number of casualties. The Japanese in that area have received large reinforcements, the Chinese added.

Both Sides Suffer

Severe fighting which began October 6 in an attempt to halt a third drive based on Changachieh, however, still continued today, the communique said, with both sides suffering casualties.

The three-column Japanese drive, obviously to expand their holdings along the Burma Road, was based on Tengchung, 250 miles west of Kunming; Lungling, on the Burma Road 100 miles southeast of Tengchung; Mangshih and Tocho, the high command explained. Lungling and Tengchung are the deepest points of Japanese penetration in western Yunnan.

Tre first Japanese drive, which began October 5, the communique said, was not halted until three days later in the area north of Chashanho, while the second attack, coming from Hochiao, was halted near Lunma in the Chashanho area.

"Seesaw" Battle

The third drive reached the vicinity of Manshihchai October 9 before being intercepted. Fighting was still going on there.

On the east China Front south of the former capital at Nanking, fighting has developed into a "seesaw" affair, the communique said.

Farther to the west, fighting was still in progress in the area southeast of Suancheng, while in Chekiang Province Chinese units attacked "with success" the City of Wuyi southeast of Kinhwa.

U. S. Develops Revolutionary New Compass

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—Existence of a revolutionary new compass, which has been guiding United Nations' bombers to their objectives and home again for months, was revealed today.

Charles Marcus, vice president in charge of engineering of Bendix Aviation Corp., said the compass was the result of seven years' research by the compaany, and its existence can be revealed now because one or more of the instruments have fallen into enemy hands.

"There is no possibility that the enemy can catch up with us, however," he said, "because it will be impossible for them to duplicate the performance of this compass, much less get it into volume production during this war."

Mascus said the apparatus, known as the "gyro flux gate compass," uses the earth's magnetic field to develop minute electrical impulses which, when amplified, turn the compass indicator.

He added that the compass would not go off its reading in a dive or climb, will not "lay" or "overshoot" in a turn, and will not oscillate in rough weather.

An advantage, Marcus said, is that no "correction card" is necessary, as it is with magnetic types, because the new compass gives fully corrected readings at all times.

Delegation Here Predicts French Invasion Revolt

Collapse of the Vichy regime and a spontaneous uprising throughout France the moment Allied invasion forces land was foreseen yesterday by the French delegation here on the basis of the liberation of Corsica.

Jean Baube, spokesman for the delegation, told a press conference that 12,000 Corsican patriots took matters in their own hands and set up a new government the day the Italian armistice was announced.

The patriots jumped the gun on the French high commanad which had planned to liberate Corsica later, he said. The Algiers committee immediately sent reinforcements, and, five days after the start of the uprising, appointed a prefect and military governor for the island.

Nazis Lose Aid

Spanish Unit Reported Out of Russia

Lisbon, Oct. 13 (AP).—Advices reaching here said today the "volunteer" Spanish division had been withdrawn from the Russian Front, where it has been fighting the Russians since July, 1941, and would not return.

Known as the "Blue Legion," the division has been in the Lake Ilmen sector of the Eastern Front since its arrival in Russia.

Gen. Eaker Knighted

London. Oct. 13 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander in chief of U. S. Air Forces in Britain, was made a Knight of the British Empire today by King George VI in a ceremony at Buckingham Palace.

Eaker received the badge and ribbon of the order but not the "Accolade of Knighthood" which would have entitled him to preface his Christian name with "Sir."

Tin Can Sally

A U. S. Bomber Station in England, Oct. 13 (AP).—Lieut. Leonard F. Dawson of Lawrence, Kans., armament officer at this Fortress base, answered the telephone. An excited English voice said:

"I say, I think we've found a new kind of bomb in a field."

Dawson jeeped to the scene. There stood a rural constable guarding a roped-off area. In the middle of it lay a small green tin can—an empty U. S. Army foot powder can.

Hirohito 'World Ruler'

New York, Oct. 13 (INS).—Emperor Hirohito of Japan was promoted today. He's now "Emperor of the World."

The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast reported to the OWI, confidently asserted that "if the ways of the emperors are understood fully by the people of the world, there should not be any objection in having our emperor as the ruler of the world."

Nazis Tell Italians To Join Their Army

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Nazi-controlled Italian radio broadcast today an appeal to Italians to enlist in the German army and an order by Benito Mussolini's puppet "Fascist republican government" directing Italian air force personnel to rejoin their squadrons.

Downed U. S. Fliers See Axis Kill, Burn and Pillage in Italy

By Don Whitehead
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 13.—The Germans are carrying out a systematic campaign of looting, killing and terrorism in Italian villages northeast of Naples, two American airmen forced down in enemy territory reported today after spending nine days behind the enemy lines.

They were Lieut. William C. Henley, 26, navigator, of Connersville, Ind., and Lieut. Robert E. Thomas, 23, copilot, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

They saw German troops burn houses and haystacks, slaughter livestock and shoot civilians.

"We mostly hid in the hills during the day," Henley said. "In one town some 30 miles from Naples several Germans had been killed by Italians, so German patrols came in with orders to kill 10 Italians for every dead German. And they shot plenty.

"The Germans are taking young men and forcing them into labor gangs to repair bridges we are bombing. They have to keep working while our planes are bombing the bridges and many of them are being killed."

Young Italian girls have fled to the hills and are living in caves until American troops drive the Germans from the villages, the airmen said.

On one occasion Henley and Thomas sat in the hills and watched the Germans burn three houses and strawstacks. Any livestock they were unable to take with them they killed.

They saw more than a dozen raids by American fighter-bombers and heavy and medium bombers hitting at road and rail junctions and enemy gun positions.

"It was the first time I had seen what our planes can do," said Henley. "Boy, they are terrific. I don't want to get caught in any more American bombing raids."

337 Teachers Get Delayed Checks; 152 Still Wait

Three hundred and thirty-seven Washington teachers received their September pay checks yesterday—12 days late—and two days later than 2700 regular teachers who were paid Monday.

The remaining 152 as yet unpaid will receive checks tomorrow, according to Robert L. Mudd, assistant auditor of the District. Checks will be available for principals at the District Building disbursing office sometime in the morning, he said.

Checks were late leaving the school budget office because of turnover changes and bookkeeping involved in computing the withholding tax, it was said.

Tripartite Pact

London, Oct. 13 (AP).—The governments in exile of Holland, Belgium and Luzembourg have agreed on a tripartite monetary pact pegging the rate of exchange between the guilder and the franc in a move which may set an example for the development of good neighbor relations between other Eupropean countries after the war.

King's Restoration Urged by Spaniards

Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 13 (AP).—Twenty-six members of the Spanish Cortes have sent Generalissimo Francisco Franco a letter urging restoration of the monarchy in Spain before the end of the war as a safeguard against repercussions that might follow, the newspaper La Suisse of Geneva said today.

Restoration of the monarchy would be an instrument of "supreme conciliation among Spaniards at home, and guarantee the stability and efficacy of our action abroad," the letter said.

MARY SAYS
I'm a Goon!
Imagine, a goon! And us married 18 years. I think she meant it, too. Because I'm one of those guys who buys high and sells low. Hang a fancy price on anything, and I bite. It gets Mary wild.
She says it's plain horse sense to look behind the price tag before you buy. So when I hinted it's time for a new suit, did she give me the works. It added up, too.
Did I know that Bond prices aren't lots higher only because Bond's make the clothes they sell? Did I know how this saves a heap of in-between costs? Did I know these dividends go to the fellows who wear Bond clothes? Mary gives it to me, fast.
So instead of seeing the light, I stick out my neck. "So far so good", says I looking wise. "But I'm after a long time investment—a suit that'll stand up and look good for a long time".
You should have heard the barrage that got. How about America's finer 100% pure woolens? Are there any better? And Bond needlework—where can you find any with a higher rep than the Rochester kind? Don't tell me how to buy wisely. Why do you suppose more men wear Bond clothes than any other clothes in America?
You can't argue with a woman. Didn't I say it added up?

Substantial reductions in enormous demands for labor from West Coast industries have resulted already from one month's operation of the drastic Pacific Coast "labor-budget" plan, a program under review conducted by War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes has disclosed, it was learned yesterday.

The immediate results from the plan have convinced officials that its extension to other critical labor areas may be just as effective in bringing manpower demand and supply into balance as operation of the controlled materials program for steel, copper and aluminum has done the job for metals.

Confer With Byrnes

The fear of possible widespread contract cancellations has prompted manufacturers to reexamine their labor needs to try to do the same job with less men, it was said. In addition, community pressure has been mobilized to force suspected "labor hoarders" to reduce their demands for men to retain contracts.

Representatives of the various Government agencies concerned in the operation of the plan met with Byrnes this week to review the month's progress. Under the plan, monthly reports must be filed with Byrnes by WPB Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson.

One high official was reported to have stated, "This plan has put an air of sanity into the whole question of manpower."

Another official expressed the opinion privately that reductions in anticipated manpower needs of as much as 30 per cent may be accomplished. Byrnes had previously disclosed that West Coast shipbuilding and ship repair will require 160,000 workers in the next few months with West Coast aircraft construction requiring 100,000.

Labor Ceilings Set

The plan is operating in the five West Coast cities of San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, and Portland, Oreg. It is expected to be extended shortly to Detroit, Akron, and Hartford, and eventually to most of 71 critical labor markets listed by the War Manpower Commission.

Labor ceilings—the maximum number of men an individual contractor may employ—have been set for a number of major war contractors in four of the five cities. These ceilings have been established lower than schedules previously submitted by the contractors, without receiving any serious complaints. One official reported that Seattle has stopped complaining about its labor shortage problem.

No Hiring Restrictions

Controlled hiring or referral of all workers through the United States Employment Service—another phase of the plan—has not gone into effect yet, although the groundwork is being laid. Other phases of the plan include establishment of plant priorities to guide the referral of workers, and the withdrawal of civilian and war production from the area where necessary to bring manpower supply and demand into balance.

Net effect of reducing the labor demands of the area without reducing the production schedules would be to compel greater utilization of the existing supply of labor.

Thus, when no restrictions were placed on hiring and holding of labor, employers were inclined to be lavish in their demands—particularly with the Government paying the bill. With the establishment of controls which by their very nature might cost them considerably in the loss of additional contracts, employers have apparently found that they can do the same work with fewer workers.

Needs Against Supply

About a year ago, when shortages of steel and other metals represented the principal production problem, the setting of ceilings on the use of metals through rigidly controlled allotments promptly reduced considerably inflated demands.

In putting both programs into effect, it was pointed out, officials had to run the risk of having the plan meet destruction as a result of the combined pressure of all the various claimants for materials in the first case and manpower in the second. Once in effect and operating, however, the job boils down to a bookkeeping operation—of balancing needs against supply.

Presumably, if the manpower control plan works as well in subsequent months as it worked during the past month, consideration of national service legislation will be shelved for the duration. Meanwhile, officials believe that the next job is to make necessary technical adjustments in the plan while it is operating. Thus far, it was said, no need for major changes has been discovered.

Long Underwear Promised by WPB Trails Cool Days

Kansas City, Oct. 13 (AP).—Those children's "longies" that the WPB promised will be too short and too late, mothers fear.

The days are nippy now, fuel is scarce, and stores are resieged for the warm underwear that hasn't arrived.

F. M. Lee, manager of a department store, said there are a few "uppers" but no "lowers" on his shelves—and the uppers are going fast. The shortage, he explained, is Nation-wide.

A 6 per cent increase in production ordered by the WPB last month won't reach retailers until next month, he added.

Mothers' plaints reached Dr. Hugh L. Dwyer, city health director, who remained unalarmed.

"Do the kids still wear those things?" he inquired in surprise.

Coal Forgotten For 50 Years to Go To 100,000 Homes

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 13 (AP).—A million tons of hard coal, mined a half-century ago and forgotten, has been rediscovered just in time to help relieve the pinch of an acute fuel shortage in the East.

The coal is small-sized anthracite, for which there was no market when it was mined before the turn of the century. But stokers and other modern equipment make it suitable for home heating now. Operators estimate there is enough of it to heat 100,000 homes all winter.

When the anthracite shortage became serious recently, an official of the Stevens Coal Co. suddenly remembered the huge banks of "waste," piled about 10 miles outside this city. Investigation revealed that most of the coal could be salvaged with comparatively little effort.

Work Stoppage in Alabama Incident to Mines' Return to Private Ownership Spreads to Sixth Shaft

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 13.—A work stoppage of Alabama coal miners spread to a sixth shaft tonight. Approximately 2500 men are idle.

The newest mine to shut down was the Praco operation of Alabama By-Products Corp., employing about 900 men.

Five others were closed this morning. They were Republic Steel Corp.'s two large Sayreton mines, employing approximately 1100; Colta of Alabama By-Products, 380; Warrior River of Brookside-Pratt Coal Mining Co., 100 and Calumet of Brilliant Coal Co., 100.

A company official said Calumet was closed by a local dispute involving higher pay for several men. Work stoppages at the other five mines were described by an operators' spokesman as resulting from Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes' order restoring the mines to their private owners.

Replacement Authorized

By the Associated Press

The Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company of Kearny, N. J., was authorized last night by the War Labor Board to suspend and replace any of the approximately 200 striking employes at the plant who do not return to work by today.

In a telegram to company officials, WLB Chairman William H. Davis directed that in view of "continued defiance" of WLB orders that striking workmen return to their jobs, the company must cease all negotiations with the union and strikers until full production is resumed.

Truckers Strike Near End

Atlanta, Oct. 13. (AP).—A driver's strike that snarled war-vital truck shipments in six Southern States for a week neared an end tonight as several local unions, assured a speedy War Labor Board (WLB) wage decision would be sought, voted to resume work.

Robert Borden, international representative of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers (AFL), said union locals in Nashville, Mobile, Birmingham and New Orleans voted to go back. He said others should follow suit quickly and predicted all the estimated 8500 who quit would be back tomorrow.

Ration Tokens To Go Into Use In February

Ration token money, expected to be ready for use in February, will be made of counterfeit-proof vulcanized fiber and worth 1 point per token, the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday.

The plastic coins will be slightly larger than a nickel and about one-twentieth of an inch thick, OPA said.

The contract for manufacturing 900 million of them has been awarded to the Osborne Register Co. on a bid of approximately $1.44 per thousand—making their total cost to the Government around $1,300,000.

Half of the tokens will be made with blue sides and half with red, the former being used with blue ration stamps for buying processed foods and the latter with red stamps to purchase foods rationed under the meats-fats program. A yellow "innerband" will show around the edge of both.

When they are put into use, all red and blue stamps will be given a value of 10 points each and the tokens will be used for making change. The "change" can then be used at any time to buy other rationed foods.

With the coins used to supplement stamps, OPA expects War Ration Book Four will last about three times as long as earlier ration books, saving many man hours of labor and large amounts of "scarce paper."

Governor Makes King Admiral In Nebraska Navy

Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States Fleet, accepted a commission as admiral in the Nebraska Navy yesterday.

The commission was sent to King by Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska in recognition of King's visit to Omaha last month to address the American Legion convention.

In a letter to the Governor, King declared, "It is with pleasure that I accept this appointment of a great responsibility and I shall 'diligently discharge the duties of admiral by doing and performing all manner of things there to belonging.'"

The commission provides that an admiral in the Nebraska Navy shall be obeyed in all manner by "seamen, tadpoles and goldfish under his command."

U. S. Chamber Head Urged For Presdient

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Deneen A. Watson, national chairman of the Republican Postwar Policy Association, today declared the organization "inactive" and said he, personally, would support Eric Johnston of Spokane, Wash., president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, for the Republican nomination for President.

Watson, whose organization has advocated international cooperation with a council of nations and a world police force, said he had declared the association "inactive" because "we have attained our principal objectives."

He said the action was taken that individual members could support various presidential candidates.

In a telegram to Johnston, Watson said, in part:

"I have made a careful survey all over the country and I am convinced that you are the man the Republican Party should nominate and elect as our next President. . . . I have contacted scores of Republican leaders throughout the country and they approve 100 per cent. You can win the nomination and election."

Not a Candidate

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 13 (AP).—Eric Johnston said today he was not a candidate for any public office. "I do not want to live at either end of Pennsylvania ave.," he said. "I prefer to live at either end of Main st, of any good American town."

Subsidies Asked By Md. Canners

By the Associated Press

Representatives of the Baltimore Canned Food Exchange, the Tri-State Packers Association and individual Maryland canners told the Banking and Currency Committee of the House of Representatives that they favored food subsidy legislation.

The packers criticized past OPA price regulations, asserting they had resulted in numerous instances of curtailed production.

The packers complained they had not been consulted when various ceiling prices for canned vegetables were established by the OPA, but were assured by an OPA spokesman that they would be consulted in the future.

Price of Tequila Established by OPA

The OPA yesterday established price controls for tequila, Mexican liquor now being imported in bulk because of the general whisky shortage.

The base F. O. B. port of arrival price was set at $2.10 a proof gallon. Importers and bottlers figure their maximum price per case under an established formula. A representative retail price will be $4.25 a fifth.

AFL Votes Lewis Welcome With a 'But'

By Joseph A. Loftus
Associated Press Staff Writer

Boston, Oct. 13.—The American Federation of Labor overwhelmingly voted a gesture of welcome today to John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, but made it clear that settlement of jurisdictional conflicts must precede his readmission.

The convention authorized the executive council to negotiate the return of the miners after federation leaders made impassioned pleas to delegates to place no obstacles in the path of labor unity.

Chairman Matthew Woll of the resolutions committee assured the delegates:

"This formula is designed to protect the interest of every affiliated organization. This council is not going to bargain away the jurisdictional rights of any organization merely to admit the United Mine Workers."

Lewis' Terms Rejected

The convention's action was a rejection of Lewis' terms that the federation take the UMW "as is" and leave any jurisdictional questions until "after the fact of reaffiliation." The principal issue was the UMW's catch-all District 50, which has enrolled workers claimed by many AFL craft unions.

The committee report directed unions which have jurisdictional grievances to file their complaints within 30 days. The council then could negotiate with Lewis with a view to early reaffiliation "on a basis in keeping with the traditions, conditions and requirements of the federation."

The committee's report touched off a series of denunciations of Lewis at the morning session, but the big guns of the federation unlimbered immediately after the luncheon recess to beat down an amendment offered by George Q. Lynch of the Patternmakers to require convention approval before a charter could be issued to the United Mine Workers.

The amendment received scanty support and the original report was adopted with barely noticeable dissent.

Tobin Pleads for Unity

Daniel S. Tobin, president of the Teamsters, disclaimed political considerations, and pleaded for adoption of the report in the interest of labor unity.

He said he was not ashamed of any assistance he may have given the Roosevelt administration but declared:

"If this Administration attempted to raid the labor movement I would meet it with a sword in one hand and a torch in the other and my last entrenchment would be my grave."

The president of the Teamsters added that if labor could be united "there would be no danger to the labor movement. But there is danger, because I see no hope of unity with the CIO. I want the United Mine Workers back, but I want them back in such a way that greater confusion will not obtain upon their return."

He said the federation could have had the CIO unions back several years ago on the terms laid down by Lewis, but the AFL executive council thought that would be unfair to other AFL unions.

Liberalized Benefits Get House Backing

Strong House Republican support for the Senate's liberal scale of benefits for dependents of servicemen last night appeared to have clinched House approval of at least $30 for the first child of enlisted men.

Action on the service dependents bill went over until today when a bipartisan drive will be launched to lift House Military Committee proposals of $50 (as at present) for service wives, $25 for the first child, $20 for the second, and $15 for each additional.

Debate Is Postponed

Four hours' debate had been slated for yesterday, but the House adjourned quickly as a mark of respect to the late Representative Edward W. Creal (Democrat) of Kentucky, who died yesterday.

An amendment to the House bill by Representative Clason (Republican) of Massachusetts, to raise the child benefits to the Senate level, gained important backing yesterday when House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., announced for it. Martin said he was confident House Republican votes would swing the decision. The Senate scale: For all seven grades of enlisted men: wife, $50; first child, $30; for each additional child, $20.

Increased Benefits

Led by Representative Sadowski (Democrat) of Michigan, other amendments will be offered to increase benefits even above the Senate level. Sadowski will propose that service wives (held at $50 in both bills) receive payments of $55. He asks $35 for the first child and $30 more for each additional child.

Representative John J. Sparkman (Democrat) of Alabama, chairman of the subcommittee which framed the House bill, will offer an amendment affecting enlisted men in the upper three grades (given the option for the first time of choosing family benefits in lieu of monetary rental allowances).

Sparkman's amendment will provide that servicemen who elect to continue receiving $37.50 in rental allowances rather than family benefits, must assign the money to their dependents. Sparkman said they do not have to do so at present.

Representative Celler (Democrat) of New York will offer an amendment for a fixed $25 payment for each child of an enlisted man.

Dr. Mann Sees New Humanism Emerging From Chaos of War

Thomas Mann, frequently called "the world's greatest living man of letters," last night told an audience of 700 at the Library of Congress auditorium that "what needs to be reestablished more than anything else are the commandments of Christianity which have been trod underfoot by a false revolution."

The self-exiled German novelist, a fellow of Germanic literature on the Library staff, declared: "Ever and again, historical upheaval such as we are now experiencing is inevitably followed by a movement of renewal.

"The need to establish is as imperative as the demand for renewal . . . and from these commandments must be derived the fundamental law under which the peoples of the future will live together and to which all will have to pay reverence.

Bill of Rights as Model

"No real pacification of the world, no cooperation of the people for the common good and for human progress will be possible unless such a basic law is established, which notwithstanding national diversity and liberty must be valid for all and recognized as a Magna Carta of human rights, guaranteeing the individual his security in justice, his inviolability, his right to work and to the enjoyment of life. For such a universal basis, may the American Bill of Rights serve as a model."

It is his belief, he said, that "out of the suffering and struggle of our difficult period of transition, a wholly new and more emotional interest in humanity and its fate, in its exceptional position between the realms of nature and mind, in its mystery and its destiny will emerge a humanistic impulse which even now is alive and active in the best hearts and minds."

The new humanism, Dr. Mann asserted, will be different in character, color and tone from the earlier, related movements. It will have endured too much, he added, to be satisfied with "an optimistic naivete and the desire to see human life through rosy glasses."

Basis of New Order

"Optimism and pessimism are empty words to this humanism. They cancel each other in the determination to preserve the honor of man, in the paths of sympathy and duty. It seems to me that without such a pathos as the basis of all thinking and doing, the structure of a better, happier world, the world community that we wish to achieve out of the present struggle, will be impossible. The defense of reason against blood and instinct does not imply that its creative power should be overestimated. Creative alone is feeling guided by reason, is an ever-active love."

Concerning his native land, Dr. Mann said: "The case of Germany is confusing and complicated because in it good and evil, the beautiful and the detestable are combined and blended in a singular way.

"For example, the great artistic personality of Richard Wagner has often been mentioned in connection with the phenomenon of national socialism, and Mr. A. Hitler's preference for his art has been pointed out, a preference against which one would like to protect Wagner and which, nevertheless, is not without significance and instructive meaning."

The German mentality, Dr. Mann declared, is essentially indifferent to social and political questions; this sphere, he pointed out, is utterly foreign to it.

"Horrible and Humiliating"

"It is horrible and humiliating to behold the civilized world obliged to fight to the death against the politically distorted lie of an aggressive folk fairy tale, which in its earlier spiritual purity had given the world so much that was beautiful. Originally, it was innocent and idealistic, but this idealism began to be ashamed of itself and became jealous of the world and of reality."

Neither Germany nor the German people should be sterilized or destroyed, said Mann; what should be destroyed is "that fatal power combination, the world-threatening association of the junkers, the army generals and heavy industry."

"The German people should not be prevented, but should be helped, to shatter forever the domination of these groups; to put through the already overdue agrarian reform, in short, to bring about the real, the honest, the purifying revolution which alone can rehabilitate Germany in the eyes of the world, of history, and in its own eyes, and open for her a path into the future—for this future, for the new world of unity and cooperation for which we hope the German spirit is by no means historically unprepared and unfit.

"Let us trust that German universalism will again find the way to its old place of honor, that it will forever renounce the wanton ambition of world conquest and that it will again prove itself in world sympathy, world understanding, open-mindedness and spiritual enrichment of the world."

Extra Quotas Of Newsprint Hit at Hearing

By the Associated Press

Elbert Antrim, assistant business manager of the Chicago Tribune, told Congress yesterday the War Production Board's practice of gratning extra quotas of paper to some newspapers has caused an unequal distribution.

Despite orders limiting its use, he said, "many newspapers are using as much newsprint, and a lot of them using more newsprint, than they did in 1941."

eH told the Boren subcommittee investigating newsprint supplies the additional tonnage to some papers "in most cases was granted as a result of ex-parte hearing . . . without due regard to any competitive situations . . .

Few Know Rules

"I doubt if 90 per cent of the newspaper publishers in this country are familiar . . . with the rules to be followed in making appeals," he said. "When they find out what is going on, I believe they are either going to demand extra tonnage in self-protection or they are going to insits that the appeals system be abolished . . .

Antrim said the present system of WPB appeals for extra paper quotas might result in a "paper czar" and eventual allocation of paper, giving certain newspapers an advantage over others.

"This committee is not going to stand for any paper allocation system of paper czar in this country," observed Chairman Boren (Democrat) of Oklahoma. "If it is being done through the back door of the WPB appeals system then we are going to stop it."

Sunday Issues Cited

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Inland Daily Press Association today asked the Government to bring about greater reduction in allotments of newsprint used "for Sunday issues of large 'magazine' and feature content."

The organization, representing 324 daily newspapers published in the central States, passed a resolution asking a cut "particularly in newsprint consumed in the production of predated issues of such Sunday newspapers."

The resolution said curtailments resulting from the War Production Board's general limitation order L-240 on newsprint "have in many instances worked undue hardship upon smaller newspapers."

WPB Seen Nearer Peace Than Other U. S. Agencies

"The War Production Board is not doing much peace planning, but in the daily shift of the industrial war pattern, they are more nearly ready than anyone else to carry on into the armistice emergency."

This was the conclusion of a report to the special Senate Committee on Postwar Economic Policy and Planning made by two Justice Department economists — George P. Comer and Fred L. Berquist—after interviews with key officials in 20 Government agencies.

The report indicated that WPB was planning a gradual let-down of industry "from the war peaks to the peace level," with war-born priority controls to be retained during a transition period.

One of the most important planning steps advocated by the War Production Board, the report said, "is to decide upon a program of conversion, industry by industry, lay all the cards on the table as soon as strategy will permit, and let the public know of the plans."

All the producers of motor cars might be called into agree to make only 1942 cars for a certain period during the armistice to stabilize the transition period. Such an agreement would have to be cleared with the Department of Justice under the antitrust laws by WPB or whatever other agency is set up to do the conversion job.

"Therefore," the report added, "one of the most urgent steps which should be taken would be to grant authority to some agency to begin the formation of these planning groups for the emergency and get the clearances where necessary."

The program should cover all durable goods industries including automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, etc., the report said.

"One of the shocks to civilian employment which must be cushioned is the disposition of the war supplies, running all the way from crude materials to the finished products, many of which are ready for civilian channels of trade," the report stated, indicating that this was the view of high WPB officials.

The agency has generally denied officially that it is doing any formal postwar planning, but it is understood that WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson and other top officials have done considerable thinking about the subject.

'E' Citation Again Awarded Gichner Firm

An Army and Navy "E" pennant, with star added to denote a second citation meritorious and exceptional plant efficiency, was run up the flagpole yesterday in front of the Fred S. Gichner Iron Works, 1214 24th st. nw.

There's nothing slipshod or slovenly about this 45-year-old company, which last April won its first "E" pennant and at yesterday's ceremonies received the congratulations of Admiral C. C. Bloch, chairman, Navy Board for Production Rewards.

Its 60 employes, averaging 12 years each in company service, have one of the lowest absenteeism reports in the national war production picture.

Production High

Its production of ship parts has been consistently high, with every man from Alfred E. Hornung, shop foreman, down to the lowliest 'learner,' fired with a determination to see previous month totals exceeded.

The men gathered outside the Gichner building yesterday to hear the company's founder, 73-year-old Fred S. Gichner, former Vienna, Austria blacksmith, read Admiral Bloch's citation, which read in part:

"In the first instance it was difficult to win the Army-Navy 'E' and by meriting renewal, the management and employes have indicated solid determination and ability to support our fighting forces by supplying equipment necessary for ultimate victory."

Three Sons in Service

It was 45 years ago Gichner opened a blacksmith shop on the site of the present Postoffice, 12th and F sts., and in those years he watched his adopted city grow and he, with his sons, assumed importance in the industrial expansion of the Nation.

Three of the sons are in the armed services, Jacob a lieutenant in the Navy, Joseph a sergeant in the Army and stationed at Aberdeen. Bill, the youngest, follows his father. He is a blacksmith with rank of private first-class at Camp Pendleton.

Henry, eldest son, works with his father and is a vice president of the firm his father heads.

The men of the company have 20 sons in the services. It is the elder Gichner's proud boast that he writes to every one of them each week and knows where all of them are doing their bits.

Appeal Board Places 37 in 1-A

The District Selective Service Board of Appeal, acting on 45 cases, put 37 men into Class 1-A, it was announced yesterday in a review of cases during the week ended September 25. Among them was a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, who had been classified as a minister by his local board.

District Draft Director William E. Leahy's appeal of the classification of James F. Jackson as minister was granted, a headquarters spokesman said, because Jackson was devoting his full time to his job as a welder for the Engineering and Research Corp. Four-D classification as a minister, he added, implies devotion of the major time of a draftee to religious endeavor.

The board reclassified three men on occupational grounds and five men were deferred for hardship reasons. Appeals of 10 men on account of occupational claims and 26 hardship appeals were denied.

Placed in 2-B were:

Edward D. Palmes, 27, assistant chemist, U. S. Public Health Service; Carl M. Russell, 26, electrical engineer, and Gerald D. Collier, 22, junior radio engineer.

The following were placed in 3-D:

John Randolph, 31, laborer; William M. Jarboe, 25, owner, Jarboe Printing Co.; Wilbur H. Quigley, 37, accountant; Joseph H. Kucinski, 25, construction engineer, and Carl M. Boyd, jr., 25, owner of photographic studio.

The following were denied appeals for occupational deferment and put in 1-A:

Norval J. Hyde, 27, private, D. C. Fire Department; Samuel L. Racette, 24, processor, Eastman Kodak Co.; Lawrence A. Lucas, 25, draftsman; George M. Johnson, 32, cook; John F. Fee, 27, clerk, Norfolk Naval Air Station; Wilfred J. Desmarais, 36, foreman; W. Glen Harlan, 30, technician, Eastern Air Lines; Charles H. Leavell, 36, president, Mechanical Research Corp.; Melvin L. Ogden, 33, manager, and Charles J. Byers, 27, installer.

The following men, who appealed on hardship grounds, were also continued in 1-A:

Guy Fountain, 34, busboy; Edward Green, 31, truck driver; Wilbur B. Colbert, 30, maintenance man; David Berger, 32, grocery store manager; Perry J. Thompson, 31, draftsman; James H. Bern, 22, paymaster; George F. Van Ness, 36, clerk; Henri C. Schlueter, 22, electrician; Frank T. Moy, 20, laundry employe; Milton Kaplan, 30, attorney; Orlando R. Grassi, 18, clerk; Lewis Welberg, 30, clerk; Gordon W. Kelley, 29, guard; John W. Breen, 23, foreman; Alex Spiegel, 26, storekeeper; Arthur Shapiro, 25, conomist; Jerome Nathanson, 28, pricing examiner; Raymond Kibbey, 37, accountant.

Benjamin Ennis, 24, printer; Herman I. Aboud, 24, salesman; Woo Sack, 29, waiter; William J. Kelly, 20, rooming house manager; Cecil R. Lee, 23, acting chief, Food Distribution Administration, Denver, Colo.; David Barke, 28, routeman; Maurice S. Rosenfield, 30, manager, and Stanley W. Mozingo, 30, mechanic.

Mexico Releases More U. S. Workers

The Mexican government has agreed to increase to 70,000 annually for the duration of the war its recruitment of Mexican laborers to help harvest American crops, Col. Philip G. Burton, director of labor for the War Food Administration informed Representative Anderson (Republican), California, yesterday.

Anderson said the new figure represented an increase of 20,000. The additional recruitment, he declared, probably would necessitate congressional appropriation of more funds for WFA.

Warrant Issued For Witness Who Vanished

Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher of District Court issued a bench warrant yesterday for the arrest of Larry Kelly, union official, who disappeared last July in the middle of a grand jury investigation into possible embezzlement of union funds and an alleged liquor tax violation.

Kelly, once treasurer of the Building Committee of Local No. 74 of the Building Laborer's Union and president of its District Council, was a principal witness in the case. He had not been excused from the grand jury sessions, and had been ordered to testify under threat of contempt of court proceedings.

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly said, the alleged embezzlement involves "well over $100,000."

After the bench warrant was signed the grand jury resumed its investigation with other union officials as witnesses.

The only clew to Kelly's whereabouts was revealed by the postmark on a card he sent from a "Western State," Fihelly told the court.

The investigation resulted from the seizure of 850 cases of liquors, valued at slightly under $50,000 last February in the El Patio Restaurant and at the headquarters of the union by Federal agents.

Father Penalized For Putting Girl Of 15 to Work

Detroit, Oct. 13 (AP).—A municipal judge of surburban Dearborn penalized the parents of a 15-year-old girl today for refusing to send her to school and getting her a factory job instead.

Expressing hope his action would be "a lesson to other neglectful parents," Judge George T. Martin fined the father, Alonzo Ansell, $50 and ordered him to spend five weekends in jail. He gave the mother, Nora, the choice of spending 90 days in jail or quitting her own factory job.

Judge Martin said the parents had obtained a fraudulent birth certificate for their daughter, Annis, to get the factory job. She was represented as 18. Judge Martin said four other children had been left to shift for themselves while the parents worked.

Justice McGuire Hits Civil Service In Passing Convict

Justice Matthew F. McGuire of District Court branded as "sheer stupidity" the act of the Civil Service Commission giving a Treasury Department job to a man who had served nine years in a penitentiary for grand larceny.

Justice McGuire made the reference as three Negroes were arraigned on a charge of stealing 4000 one-dollar bills from the Treasury Department.

The defendants were Clifton A. Hall, 43, and Ernest Talford, 21, both of whom pleaded guilty, and Tettie A. Moore, 18, who pleaded not guilty. All are laborers at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

When told of Hall's long criminal record, Justice McGuire said. "Do you mean to tell me that the Civil Service Commission gave an appointment to a man who served a sentence like this? That's what I call 'sheer stupidity.'"

Subsidy Fight Reaches Floor Of House Today

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

House banking committee members will vote today on a bill extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corp., thus sending the fight on food subsidies to the floor of the House.

Chairman Steagall (Democrat) of Alabama yesterday expressed doubt the agency needed a half billion dollars—the sum asked by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones—and indicated he expected the measure voted out would contain strict subsidy limitations.

"There's a difference in voting money for price supports and in voting money to pay grocery bills," he declared.

Jones asked the funds to finance price supports under war powers in 1944 and said to make the program work he needed authority to sell perishable foods at less than parity prices "in emergency situations."

Fear Of Subsidy Trend

While generally in favor of price supports, which would guarantee adequate returns to farmers, some Congressmen have expressed fears they would be used as subsidies—with OPA placing retail price ceilings below them and, "the Government making up the difference."

There is still considerable sentiment in Congress for "fair returns in the market place" and for "consumers footing their own grocery bills." President Roosevelt, who has said he would soon send to Congress a message on the "food situation," is supposedly delaying the statement until this sentiment has had its airing.

Meantime, the OPA labor policy committee—set up by the AFL, CIO and railroad labor unions "to represent their interests in price control and rationing"—declared yesterday a new drive to force higher living costs "daily gathers strength in Congress, while the rollback program promised by the President a month ago is not yet launched."

Higher Living Costs

"If the influencers in Congress kill off necessary and limited subsidies proposed by the Administration, the rollback will fail and an early and rapid upswing in living costs undoubtedly will take place," the committee said.

Other food news yesterday included:

1. Announcement by WFA of rates of subsidy payments to be made to farmers selling whole milk and butterfat revealed they would range from 94 cents to 96 cents per hundredweight, rather than from 25 to 50 cents, as previously anticipated.

The lowest payments, supposed to offset the dairymen's increase in feed costs, will be made in the regular corn and dairy States and the highest in Texas and other Southern nonfeed-growing areas, which have suffered droughts.

The rate for Maryland and Virginia was placed at 40 cents for milk and 5 cents for butterfat. It was pointed out, however, that dairy farmers of this area already were able to purchase hay at subsidy prices. Distributors in this milkshed asked for a retail price increase of at least 1½ cents per quart in the cost of milk and their leaders have called the subsidy provisions not only unsatisfactory but "insufficient."

The payments were announced for October, November, and December and the cost of the Nation-wide program estimated at around 65 million dollars. CCC funds will be used.

To Offset Rollback

2. Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones announced butter subsidy payments made by the Defense Supplies Corp. were extended October 1 to all "commercial producers of creamery butter." Heretofore, only producers who manufactured 1000 pounds or more of butter per month were paid the subsidy.

This butter subsidy, put into effect in June to offset a rollback of 5 cents per pound in the retail cost of butter, cost $25,873,637.20 through September 30, Jones said.

3. Potato growers, with the Nation's largest crop on their hands, joined the food groups opposed to subsidies. Meeting in Washington with shipper representatives, they expressed confidence they could dispose of the crop without Government payments, which they described "political thunder."

Tommy Manville's 'Eternal Marriage' Goes on the Rocks

Reno, Oct. 13 (AP).—Tommy Manville's seventh wife divorced him today.

Sunny Ainsworth Manville, 19-year-old showgirl, whose wedding to the asbestos fortune heir last August 25 was to be his "eternal, the lasting marriage," charged him with mental cruelty.

She was granted permission to resume the name of Macie Marie Moran, her name by a previous marriage.

Immediately after the divorce was granted attorneys rushed the latest former Mrs. Manville to the bank to get there before 3 p. m. closing, where she deposited an $18,000 check signed by Manville.

Blonde Sues Errol Flynn

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 13.—Errol Flynn was sued today by a 21-year-old blonde who alleges the handsome film hero is the father of her 2-year-old daughter.

MRS. HASSAU

The complaint, filed by Shirley Evans Hassau, demands that the actor be formally adjudged the father of the child, and required to pay $1750 monthly for her support. The child, identified as Marylyn Evans Flynn, was born November 18, 1940, the petition alleged. Mrs. Hassau is the wife of Henry Hassau, a singer, whom she married last April.

Court records disclose that late in 1940 Mrs. Hassau's mother, Mrs. Marion Taylor, sued Flynn for alleged personal injuries she contended he inflicted on Shirley in November of that year. The actor made a compromise settlement of $3000, said Miss Evans' attorney, Charles B. Taylor, and was released from all future claims by the girl.

However, Taylor said, the child is not bound by this release and therefore is listed as the plaintiff in today's paternity suit, with Mrs. Hassau described as the child's "natural mother."

The suit also asks $5000 for hospitalization and medical care for Mrs. Hassau, $2000 court costs and $10,000 attorney fees.

The suit alleged Mrs. Hassau met the actor at a night club in February, 1940, when she was 18, and that their alleged intimacy followed.

The actor, through his attorney, Robert Ford, strongly denied the charges.

Last February the tall 34-year-old actor was acquitted of three charges of statutory rape brought by Peggy Larue Satterlee, brunette showgirl, and blond Betty Hansen, former Lincoln, Nebr., girl. Miss Hansen alleged intimacies with Flynn at a dinner party at a fashionable Bel-Air home, while Miss Satterlee asserted he seduced her at Santa Catalina Island aboard his yacht, Sirocco.

Tire Shortage Of 7,900,000 Seen by Jan. 1

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 13.—Sparks Bonnett, chief of the tire rationing branch of the OPA, envisioned today a shortage of at least 6,400,000 passenger car tires and 1,500,000 truck tires by the end of this year with a consequent sharp reduction in the number of tire ration certificates issued.

"The shortage indicated," Bonnett told the National Association of Independent Tire Dealers, "carries a threat of serious disruption of warworker transportation."

Asserting the threat could be eliminated by "much greater selectivity in the issuance of certificates," Bonnett said the cut-back from the 1943 rate would carry "all the inescapable inconveniences and hardships that are associated with the strictest type of rationing."

Of the truck tires, Bonnett said: "Something will have to give somewhere. Either trucking operations will have to be drastically curtailed or production of civilian truck tires must be sharply increased."

Bonnett said acute tire shortages have developed already in almost every section of the country and asserted there was no hope of getting anywhere near the number of synthetic tires needed for passenger cars and trucks.

He added, however, that if the Nation can produce 30 million tires in 1944, as stated by the Office of Rubber Director, the Nation might, by the middle of the year, operate on the same basis as in 1943.

Tomorrow Is Limit For Mailing Gifts To Army Abroad

Parcels to Army men and women stationed overseas must be in the mails tomorrow if they are to be delivered by Christmas.

Postoffice authorities last night also urged early mailing of overseas gifts to Navy personnel, for which the posting deadline is November 1.

District Postmaster Vincent Burke said Washingtonians were beginning the "Christmas rush" in earnest. Tuesday's crowd doubled Monday's, he said, and those yesterday became increasingly larger.

On Monday, 7511 mailed parcels. On Tuesday, 15,115.

Weight of gifts is limited to 5 pounds, size to 15 by 36 inches, and addresses must indicate rank, serial number and unit.

Navy's Salvage 500 Million

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 13.—Capt. B. E. Manseau, Navy supervisor of salvage, reported today the Navy had recovered 500 million dollars worth of ships and cargoes in the past year, at a cost of only four million —less than 1 per cent.

He made the report before the New York Advertising Club, and said the figures did not include raising the former French liner Normandie in New York harbor.

Captain Manseau said the Navy had undertaken salvage operations on 180 sunken or crippled vessels, and that all the work had been done through a private company—the Merrit, Chapman and Scott Corp.

He said the corporation, which employed most of the experienced salvage experts in peacetime, carried on salvage operations for the Navy in all major combat zones. He said the Navy paid all expenses, and also paid the concern an annual fee equivalent to its average yearly profits during the past 10 years.

Captain Manseau said a study of Great Britain's salvage experience in the first World War and the present one convinced the Navy that the best plan would be to place all salvage in the hands of a private concern.

The most important function of the Navy salvage service in the combat zones, he said, is removal of menaces to navigation so American shipping can move freely.

Allies Make Italy Partner In War on Nazis

On Basis of Performance

This carries the implication that further concessions to Italy, both during the war and in postwar settlements, will be on a quid pro quo basis—in return for whatever aid Italy actually delivers to the Allies.

Marshal Badoglio issued a proclamation to the Italian people saying:

"Italians! I inform you that His Majesty the King has given me the task of announcing today, the 13th of October, the declaration of war against Germany."

Italy's declaration against her former Axis partner came a little more than a month after Allied bombings forced her to sue for an armistice.

Badoglio failed to state specifically whether his government intended to maintain control over the Italian fleet, the bulk of which is in Allied hands, or over such units of his army as might still bear arms and offer some assistance in the campaign to drive the Nazis from Italy.

Ships in Allied Hands

Italian vessels in Allied hands consist of more than 100 warships and more than 150,000 tons of merchant shipping.

It was not immediately clear whether Italy's declaration would result in the release of hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners in Allied hands. Many of the men hvae been sent to prison camps in the United States, while others have long been in only nominal custody on this side.

There is no question that the hapless Italian soldiers who escaped from the Germans at the time of the armistice September 8 have been much more of a handicap than a help to the Allies to date.

Accusing the Nazis of "abuses of power, robbery and violence of all kinds" in Catania while Germany and Italy still were nominal allies, Badoglio asserted in his proclamation to the Italians—that even more savage incidents against our unarmed populations took place in Calabria, in the Puglie and in the area of the Salerno. But where the ferocity of the enemy surpassed every limit of human imagination was Naples."

"Shoulder to shoulder we must march forward with our friends of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and all other United Nations. Italians, there will not be peace in Italy as long as a single German remains upon our soil."

(Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin also spoke of the "brutal maltreatment by the Germans of the Italian population" since the armistice.)

Promises Democracy

Badoglio said every political party would be invited to participate in an Italian government soon to be completed, with himself at its head. He said the present arrangement would "in no way impair the untrammeled right of the people of Italy to choose their own form of democratic governmnt when peace is restored."

In his message to General Eisenhower, Badoglio advised his former enemy that the war declaration was being handed to the German Ambassador in Madrid at 3 p. m. Greenwich time today (11 a. m. EWT), and asked the Allied chieftain to "be kind enough" to inform the Italian Embassies in Buenos Aires, and the legations in Bern, Stockholm, Dublin and Lisbon.

The United Nations radio broadcast the declaration of war in four languages to listeners in all Europe, together with the texts of Badoglio's press statement and his message to Eisenhower. In his address to the Italians, the conqueror of Ethiopia ordered Italians to fight against Germans in the Balkans, Yugoslavia, and Albania "to the last man."

Date for Election Set

He gave the Italians formal assurance that at the end of the war they would be free to choose the government they desired, and set the date for an election four months after the conclusion of hostilities.

"The present government has the clearly defined task of leading the country until peace has been won," Badoglio told the press. "With that its mandate will cease."

Although today's declaration came when scarcely more than one-fifth of Italy's mainland was under Allied control, Allied commanders made it plain they hoped that the action would stiffen Italian resistance to the Germans in the occupied part of the country.

Italy thus completed today a swift transition unequalled in modern war. Less than three months ago Mussolini was a ruling teammate of Hitler.

In a succession of events beginning with Mussolini's overthrow on July 25, the Fascist regime fell apart and the Allies swept over Sicily and southern Italy. Next the Badoglio regime surrendered, and soon afterward the Italian fleet steamed out of its hiding places and fled to Allied ports.

Tonight the transition from enemy to friend was complete.

There is no question of bringing pressure on the Badoglio government to declare war. On the contrary, the Italian regime was ready to do this weeks ago as a means of getting on good terms with the Allies and to assure the best possible treatement in a postwar settlement, and it had to be held back.

Want to Oust Germans

The Italians now want to get the Germans out of Italy. Since the Allied plans to defeat Germany naturally include driving the Nazis out of Italy, among other places, the Badoglio government and the United Nations have a common goal.

The first French reaction to the granting of a cobelligerent status to Italy was unfavorable. The French were quick to point out that the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin statement did not specifically mention the French, the Greeks, the Yugoslavs or other United Nations.

Some French here are asserting that the United States and Britain are treating the Italians too kindly and say—without much foundation—that North Africa is to be drained of food and resources to help the Italians.

Marshal Badoglio's statement that the present regime will step aside to let the Italian people choose their own government after the war is accepted as sincere by all those who have come to know Badoglio in his new role.

Allies Still Advancing

3 MORE TOWNS CAPTURED—With capture yesterday of San Croce, Riccia and Bonefro, the front (solid line) in central Italy moved forward approximately 9 miles from Tuesday's positions (dotted line). Along the flooded Volturno River (small arrows), an artillery duel was in progress. The British registered slight gains in east while air forces bombed Vasto and Termoli area (plane symbols)

Enemy artillery positions were blasted at Cercemaggiore, north of San Croce. At dawn today, RAF Wellingtons heavly bombed railway bridges and yards at Civitavecchia, on the coast 40 miles northwest of Rome.

No planes were lost.

RAF heavy bombers again struck in the Dodecanese, Cairo announced, hitting Maritza airfield on Rhodes Monday night, and with other planes raiding the harbor of Cos last night, and hitting an enemy merchant ship off that German-invaded island. One raider was missing.

Victory Declared Main Parley Topic

delegation at the tri-power meeting. It was believed in Washington that Secretary of State Cordell Hull would represent the United States.)

Pravda also took definite notice of contradictory rumors in Allied countries that the Russians intend to make a separate peace with Germany when the Red Army reaches the Soviet 1940 frontiers and that the Russians will try to get to Berlin first in order to be able to dictate the peace terms and the future organization of Europe.

It quoted favorably the British observer which had scouted these rumors.

The Communist Party organ took to task "some Allied papers" which it described as attempting to poison relations between the Soviet Union and the Western Powers.

Further, Pravda quoted an observer as saying that the sooner the Moscow conference and the Allied Mediterranean commission get under way the quicker the rumors regarding Russia's intentions will be silenced.

The Pravda editorial replied to and commented on some conjectures appearing in the foreign press concerning the conference.

"The New York Times and many other American papers say political and not military questions will be the main item before the conference, particularly questions regarding the postwar organization of Europe," said the editorial. "These papers forget at the present moment that the main task of the United Nations is to hasten the advent of the postwar period more rapidly."

Churchill Lauds British Unity

in civil aviation. . . ."

As for the course of the war, Churchill told the British they would be "absolute fools" to count on an "altogether unexpected collapse" of the enemy.

Worst Fighting Ahead

"The worst fighting of the war so far as the British people are concerned lies ahead," he said, adding that for this reason the current coal debate would not attempt any "far-reaching changes of a controversial nature."

As to the future, Churchill said: "We can all lie awake thinking of nightmares we are going to suffer after the war is over.

"Everyone has his perplexities and anxieties about that time. But I for one, being an optimist, do not think that peace is going to be as bad as war, and I hope we shall not try to make it as bad."

The House, which has been sharing these anxieties, laughed.

Navy Officials Linked to Brewster Failure

the Navy will take 130 before the bomber contract is complete. The bombers will be used in training because Brewster's production delays were so great they are now obsolete. The Navy will let no more bomber contracts there, but will concentrate on Corsair fighter planes.

The sum total of taxpayers' investment was not added, first because the fighters, for which the 139-million contract was let, have not been delivered and therefore that money has not all been expended, and second, because if the company finally succeeds, the cost of the V-loan guaranteed by the Navy Department will be paid by the company, not by the taxpayers. If the corporation fails, the taxpayers' according to yesterday's testimony, will foot the bill.

Deny Blame for Failure

Navy officials stoutly denied any responsibility for the production failure at Brewster. They were unanimous in claiming that the fault lay equally with management and labor.

Congressmen pressed them hard about the manpower allegedly wasted at the plant by "crap games, sleeping on the job, and open loafing," in view of the fact that under the cost-plus contracts, the Navy Department, and thus the taxpayer, is footing the bill.

Ranked "Average"

Representative Maas led in questioning Forrestal and others about claims by the UAW-CIO union at Brewster that according to a War Production Board efficiency rating table Brewster ranked not last but merely average in production among naval aircraft plants. Maas asserted that if the WPB table is correct the committee should examine into other plants with naval contracts. Officials admitted they had "plenty of other headaches."

It was brought out that the Brewster plants with 21,000 men produced only nine planes last March, and officials were pressed to state produce one plane in a month. produce one plane ni a month.

Forrestal and Gates brought out that the company itself had such a totally inefficient accounting system that it would be impossible to get cost accounting straightened out without stopping production altogether. Prodding as to how the Navy could proceed with cost-plus fixed fee contracts when there was no system of cost accounting was unproductive.

Contracts Defended

Navy officials defended their award of contracts to Brewster on the ground that the Navy had to have planes in a terrific hurry after Pearl Harbor, the Brewster plant had developed the Buffalo, fastest carrier-based plane on record in 1938, and the Navy Department had no reason to expect that this company could not expand with as much success as the Grumman plant, which was equally small to start.

Forrestal said company management was weak and had paid large fees and declared dividends when it needed funds to finance its expanding production.

He termed the labor contract with the UAW-CIO "very restrictive." Forrestal described the contract thus: "It prevents discharge or disciplining of any employe without prior consent of the union. The union fixes the company's draft deferment schedules. No employe can be transferred from one kind of work to another without his personal approval. Overtime schedules cannot be changed without advance notice to the union. Layoffs, rehiring, transfers and promotions must be made in accordance with strict plant-wide seniority, and no employe can be promoted over the objection of the union. Leadmen and subforemen were included under the contract and until recently the union also asserted jurisdiction over company guards who were in the Coast Guard Reserve."

Power of Withdrawal

It was this contract question that led to Drewry's charge of "pampering labor." Drewry asserted the Navy Department had had for 18 months the power to withdraw its contracts, thus throwing 21,000 people out of work. Use of that power—or threat to use it—would have forced a better labor contract, he asserted. Need of production and consideration of the Wagner Act, among other factors, had prevented any attempt by the Navy to use such a weapon, Navy officials said.

Admiral Kraus flatly came to the defense of the union in explaining existence of the contract. Brewster Corp., under the old management, he said, prior to granting of Navy contracts, had attempted to maintain an extremely low pay-scale by granting all sorts of union concession. The pay-scale is very high, he said, but the concessions remain, until the whole matter is straightened out by the arbitrator for the War Labor Board, who is shortly swinging into action.

Accounting Faulty

Kraus also told the committee that the company's business mismanagement and poor accounting had made for labor trouble since it had been impossible to get a definite accounting many times on question of overtime and the like.

The committee questioned the admiral at length about the number of union officials who were carried on the company payroll at taxpayers' expense, without doing much if anything in the way of production. In asking the question, Drewry read from an article by Agnes E. Meyer in The Washington Post of October 3 calling attention to a union executive board of 17 men who were on the payroll, sometimes to the tune of $8000 a year, devoting all their time to union business.

240 Shop Stewards

Kraus said that there were approximately 240 shop stewards, who contributed little to production, who were paid the top rate for their grade earned in their department, and given time and half for overtime for serving union business. This comes in the costs paid by the taxpayers. There were beside that, he said, an undisclosed number of committeemen. He said he was told of one who was paid at the rate of $10,000 a year. He said he did not know whether he had received that sum always but that in a month he had earned $900, counting overtime spent on union business. That business can be conducted inside or outside the plant, he said.

All committee members, Representatives Hebert (Democrat) of Louisiana, Harris (Democrat) of Virginia, Grant (Republican) of Indiana, Johnson (Republican) of California and Maas were critical of wasted manpower.

Maas declared one of the main reasons for the drafting of fathers was that the Navy had to have more personnel.

"Isn't there something you could have done when you knew of this terrific waste of manpower practically in your own ranks, certainly under your control?" Maas challenged.

Knew About Mirandas

Hebert pressed for and received an admission that the Navy was aware of the connection of the two Miranda brothers, A. J. Miranda and I. J. Miranda, with the Brewster company. The two were convicted in 1940 of having violated the Neutrality Act and were sentenced to the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. They were munitions dealers of Mexican birth who had dealt with nearly all nations of the world. Recently the Navy consented to settlement of a suit brought by Brewster stockholders by which the two received $500,000. They had already received about $2,500,000 from the company for securing Finnish, Dutch and British orders, all of which are now either taken over or canceled. They claimed seven millions dollars as fees.

Red Army Breaks Into Melitopol

Kiev on the west bank of the Dnieper that reached five miles farther inland. Bitter German counterattacks were declared repulsed, and 2000 Germans were killed. Twenty-eight German planes were brought down in this area.

"We can see the steeples of Kiev Pechera Lavra (biggest and oldest of Russian monasteries) and the big building of the Council of the Peoples' Commissars of the Ukraine," a front-line dispatch to the Moscow newspaper Izvestia said.

In Vicinity of Gomel

Despite autumn rains that turned roads into bogs of mud, the Soviet armies in White Russia advanced to "the immediate vicinity of Gomel" the communique said. The Germans were forced into retreat after their counterattacks proved too costly and hundreds of Germans were killed.

With fighting in the center of Melitopol, capture of that town was imminent. Already lost to the Germans by this gain was the railroad from the Crimea north to Zaporozhe and the Dnieper bend. However, they still have an escape route on the railway going west through the Perekop land bridge.

Threatened Zaporozhe was another key-point for Russian attackers for its capture would clear the last Germans from the east bank of the Dnieper bend and mark another step in the attack against the Crimea.

In the middle Dnieper fighting Russian bridgeheads were so well established that Moscow dispatches said troops no longer were fighting for bridgeheads but battling to expand conquered territory.

Dispatches did not make clear in which area Soviet forces had pressed to within 1.8 miles of Kiev. They were already established on a Dnieper island only a few thousand yards across the river from the high bluffs of the city but their crossings north and south outflanked the most difficult terrain. Earlier dispatches had told of gains toward Kiev from the north but the communique spoke of gains south of Kiev.

Gallinger Scandal

Senators Bushfield and Buck, members of the subcommittee which has been investigating the intolerable conditions at Gallinger Hospital, have asked for the immediate removal of Guy Mason as District Commissioner and of Dr. George C. Ruhland as District health officer. The reasoning here seems to be that since Messrs. Mason and Ruhland are primarily responsible for supervision of the hospital, theirs is the primary guilt. There is a justice in this. If, as the senatorial report seems to charge, Messrs. Mason and Ruhland failed to inform themselves of the current state of affairs at the hospital, that was certainly a dereliction. If they knew of these conditions, and took no serious steps to correct them, or if finding correction impossible, made no public protest or agitation concerning them, that also was a dereliction.

However, in equal justice it must be recognized that we are dealing not with a fresh but with an ancient scandal. Gallinger had been notorious long before either Commissioner Mason or Dr. Ruhland took office. There have been any number of investigations, all of them unproductive of any real or lasting reform. This would indicate that a reform which would go beyond minor and superficial abuses is beyond the power of any individual official. This fact must by now be evident to the Senators themselves, and it possibly explains the last-minute revision of the report which in its original draft had called for a virtually clean sweep of the whole hospital administration. Senator Holman, chairman of the investigating committee, also recognized the same truth when he traced the root of the difficulty to "confused and divided authority" in which he was fair enough to include Congress itself.

In other words, a real and radical reform at Gallinger would have to begin with a radical reform of the governmental system of the District of Columbia and would certainly have to include a radical reorganization of the District budgetary system.

Maritime Labor

In its careful, comprehensive report on our shipping resources the Kilgore Committee of the Senate had this to say about American seamen: "The men who man our ships are doing a magnificent job. The crews are efficient and their morale is high. Adequate numbers of seamen have volunteered or have been recruited so that ships sail fully manned and with only negligible delays. The number of seamen on American ships has nearly doubled in the past year. There have been no strikes. Discipline has been excellent in spite of difficult living and working conditions imposed by wartime operations. Despite high casualties from enemy attack, labor turnover has been lower than in war industries ashore . . . American seamen are heroes. Thousands have died under bombardment and torpedo attack. They and their organizations, particularly the National Maritime Union, have acquitted themselves with honor." There has been so much careless disparagement of our merchant sailors that this objective report by senatorial investigators comes as a cool, clean breath of fresh air.

But it is disturbing to learn from the Kilgore report that outmoded peacetime employment practices still impede the effective utilization of our merchant seamen. Because the ships are operated by different general agents with different wage agreements, there are wide disparities in pay throughout our merchant marine. Obviously this condition complicates the difficult task of recruitment. As the Kilgore Committee observes, "All wages on most United States vessels are now paid by the Federal Government; there is no reasonable justification for maintaining any peacetime inequity which obstructs the war effort."

Recruitment is hampered also by the antiquated practice of hiring men for the duration of one voyage only. This is a hangover from the days of long sailing voyages. In wartime it can be considered only a wasteful relic. A somewhat similar wastefulness exists in the employment of longshoremen—to whom the Kilgore report refers as "forgotten men." They are, indeed, victims of what amounts to an ugly racket, the "shape-up" system under which stevedore contractors hire them by the day. Says the Kilgore report: "There is no mechanism by which men who 'shape' at one pier, but are not hired, are shifted to another pier. Thus there are 'shortages' of men at some piers, while at others men are turned away. The shape-up system of hiring is wasteful and inefficient; it has been condemned for over 30 years; it should be tolerated no longer."

These problems are serious and compel remedial attention. The Kilgore Committee suggests that one member of the Maritime Commission should be drawn from labor and an industry-labor advisory committee should be attached to the War Shipping Adminjstration. The proposal seems to be worthy of consideration. As to the need for the voice of labor (or, for that matter, industry) on the War Shipping Administration, that may not be entirely proven. WSA is at the very center of the strategic setup of the warmaking. Thus the top positions must be held by men who are not only expert but who also can be trusted to maintain secrecy about WSA operations, free from any heckling by advisory committees. However, there is no doubt that the experience and skill of labor spokesmen should be more fully utilized in the determination of policies affecting the loading and manning of ships.

Wanton

What is so baffling about the German military psychology is not so much its faith in the efficacy of frightfulness as an end in itself. There is nothing particularly modern about the general principle of frightfulness in warfare. Perhaps its most thoroughgoing exponent was Jenghiz Khan, though the Japanese of our own day show some signs of challenging his preeminence in this field. Jenghiz and his followers slaughtered, pillaged and destroyed on a scale which the Nazis themselves have as yet been unable to emulate, but he did so for very definite and even sensible purposes. He believed that it was the will of God that he should conquer the world, and he came very close to proving it. Murder and destruction were the quickest and most successful means to that conquest. By laying one highly developed civilization after another in ashes, Jenghiz, an illiterate barbarian, considered he was removing the sources of a possible corruption and decadence of his own warrior race. The subsequent dead-end history of the Mongol empire in China and elsewhere indicates that in this notion he might have been right. Again, with the early Moslems, fire and sword were the quickest and surest means of converting the world to Islam, and the Christian Charlemagne seems to have been guided by a somewhat similar missionary purpose.

It is quite different with the German leadership. The Nazis are not illiterate and are barbarians only in the moral sense. The wholesale looting of Italian art treasures, like the similar looting in Poland and France, shows that they have a very good idea of the financial value of such things. On the other hand, the destruction of the irreplaceable archives of the Royal Society at Naples, described in a dispatch by Mr. Herbert L. Matthews published in the New York Times, was utterly without military, political, financial, or religious reason. In no way did the Germans benefit by the destruction of these books, paintings and antiquities. In no way did the act impede their adversaries. Nor was there any element of religious fanaticism in their action, as there may have been in the burning of the Alexandrian library in the time of the Caliph Omar. There is no Nazi pretext that the books at Naples were contrary to the teachings of "Mein Kampf" and therefore heretical or satanical. Nor was there any pretext that reading of them might have weakened or corrupted German soldiers. There is not the least doubt that had it been possible for the Nazis to have carried off the contents of the library, they would have done so. Since they could not, the library was destroyed without pretext, and wholly for the sake of destruction. It was exactly the same as the pointless destruction of the ancient university and library of Louvain 29 years ago.

Whether it is in the same spirit of purposeless destruction that the Germans on the other front are now putting Kiev to the flames, it is perhaps too soon to say. But they know as well as anybody what Kiev means in Russian history. "Kiev of the Churches," the cradle of Russian Christianity, is the most famous and storied of the ancient Russian cities, not even excepting Novgorod of the Bells. Some of its ancient monuments were destroyed, and many more were damaged in the civil wars that followed the revolution and in the Russo-Polish conflict that followed the civil wars. But some escaped. This time, we may be sure, the Germans will make certain that nothing is saved.

Lend-Lease

To all those who recognize that we are engaged in a coalition war it will be good news that our lend-lease food shipments to our Allies have been 50 per cent greater thus far in 1943 than they were in 1942. More than a billion pounds of food and other agricultural commodities were delivered "to shipside" in August for export to Allied fighting fronts. In other words, we are beginning to make good on our pledge to serve as the larder of democracy. Yet we have given up for lend-lease purposes only 9.2 per cent of our domestic food supply.

This is the sort of thing which so upset our five peripatetic Senators and caused Senator Ellender, after hearing them, to observe that "we have been the sucker in the nth degree." One is at a loss to figure out what the Louisianan means. We could, of course, let the British eat cake and advise the Russians to withdraw their men from the Dnieper in order to cultivate their own food supplies. Would this, we wonder, be deemed shrewd and hard-headed by the men who look upon lend-lease as pure philanthropy?

If we were to pursue this course, our Allies might reasonably be expected to stop supplying foodstuffs to our forces overseas. During 1942 Australia furnished American troops in the South and Southwest Pacific with the bulk of their food supplies. This meant that civilians in that Allied country went without potatoes, citrus fruits, pork products and other staples of their diet. New Zealand contributed similarly. Our army in England received 38 million pounds of fresh food last year through reciprocal lend-lease. If supplies of this sort were not made available to us by our Allies, our shipping problem would be insuperable.

But these are aspects of lend-lease which our senatorial tourists apparently did not notice when they were abroad. Perhaps this is because they have wholly failed to grasp the meaning of the lend-lease program. It is a program for the prosecution of a United Nations war. It involves a pooling of resources for the achievement of a common goal—a contribution by each member of those things which it can most effectively produce. This may not be the smartest sort of horse-trading. But it is the most effective way to win a global conflict.

Erratic Butter Policy

No doubt the first reaction to the suspension of Government purchases in the butter market will be one of relief, particularly in those areas where acute shortages have developed. Where the facts are known, however, this relief is likely to be accompanied by sharp resentment over the ill-considered and haphazard way in which the butter problem has been handled.

The Government is withdrawing from the market after laying up a store of 200 million pounds of butter. This is enough, officials say, to meet essential military, lend-lease and other noncivilian requirements until spring. In other words, the Government has dipped into the market heavily enough to build up large stocks of butter at the cost of acute shortages in some areas. It has insisted upon covering military and lend-lease requirements far in advance of the time the butter is to be used, with little regard for the effects of that policy upon the civilian supply.

Much the same policy appears to have been followed in the case of eggs. Having overestimated its need for eggs, the Government is now not only withdrawing from the market but is also releasing several million cases of storage eggs. Certainly this erratic policy reflects no credit upon the War Food Administration. We believe the American public is willing to make whatever sacrifice, large or small, is necessary to see this war through to a successful conclusion. But civilian food requirements are no less important than military and lend-lease demands. The least that can be done is to divide scarce foods equitably among the major consuming groups and to even out the Government purchases so as not to create a shortage of scarce commodities in one period and a comparative flood in the next. The willingness of the public to bear necessary hardships may easily be undermined if it is subjected to unnecessary hardships through official mismanagement.

Coffin Nails

Nothing has more shockingly brought home to the American public the awful deprivations of war than the Commerce Department's recent announcement of an impending cigarette shortage. We have weathered a dearth of coffee. We can manage without butter. If the jeeps and fortresses must consume our gasoline, we shall continue to peddle or plod to our appointed destinations. But the "No Smoking" sign which the Commerce Department threatens to hang athwart our national addiction will be a test of fortitude so monumental as to make all our other tribulations seem trivial.

In essence, the cigarette is an American phenomenon. American ingenuity subjected it to mass production. American advertising genius foisted the inhalation of it, first upon our males, later as well upon our wives, sweethearts, mothers, sisters, aunts and nieces. To a majority of the adult population of the United States today, the breathing of air unadulterated by nicotine is an ordeal endurable only when asleep or for brief intervals during waking moments. Abstinence may prove, as early moralists asserted, very beneficial to our souls—and even to our respiratory systems. But it is likely to play hob with our national morale.

In Germany they have means of dealing with such problems. Der Fuehrer has made it plain that anyone who goes around with a despondent or sour look on his countenance is liable to have it removed via the guillotine. We shall have to discover some more subtle way of handling our frustrated cigarette fiends. For they are pretty certain, in the early stages of deprivation at any rate, to view the world with jaundiced eyes and to snap irritably at all their compatriots. If anything is needed to exacerbate the relations between lower Pennsylvania ave. and Capitol Hill, a shortage of cigarettes will indubitably supply it. We tremble before the prospect of a Nation-wide wave of ill-temper. The Government had better get to work, forthwith, on the development of an effective substitute for the coffin nail.

Above a harvest-toughened earth
That gathers rust and smells like pears—
When noonday spins frail silken webs,

When cornfields begin to whistle,
And the first black wing turns rover—
Look to your latches! See to your firewood!

America At War

By Selden Menefee

Vision Needed

WHEN DEMOBILIZATION comes, it will find the great majority of business executives woefully unprepared, judging from the current Fortune poll.

Seven out of ten businessmen look for a postwar boom, after an initial two-year period of adjustment. And an even higher proportion—74 per cent—believes that private business will be able to maintain "reasonably full employment" after the reconversion period.

This attitude is dangerously over-optimistic considering a recent estimate of the postwar job situation made by William Benton, vice chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, a business-sponsored organization.

Mr. Benton pointed out that we now have 63 million men and women in our working and fighting forces. Of these, he estimated that 58 million will want to continue as workers or members of the armed forces, and this is 12 million more than ever worked in America in any prewar year. To employ this many workers, production of goods will have to be increased 30 to 50 per cent over the previous peacetime record.

Full Employment

The general public doubts that such full employment will be achieved. A poll by the National Opinion Research Center last June showed that only 23 per cent believed there will be enough jobs for everyone after a year or two of readjustment. Forty-five per cent expect some employment, and 28 per cent "lots of unemployment."

The Fortune survey shows that most businessmen favor lifting Government controls over our economy as soon as the war is over. Some 52 per cent want immediate abolition of price ceilings at that time, despite repeated warnings by economists that the dange. of inflation will be worse then than during the war.

The great majority of those interviewed by Fortune's management poll believe that repeal of excess profit, corporate and personal income taxes will be most essential to stimulate business expansion after the war. Only 39 per cent favor continuation of the United States Employment Service into the peace period, despite the public's almost universal acceptance of this agency. And over 18 per cent—a surprisingly large minority—actually prefer to have a substantial group of unemployed persons seeking work when peace comes.

Social Security

Three out of five of the executives think that a "cradle-to-the-grave" program of social security is undesirable. Of the other two, one believes that it is impractical. Approximately nine-tenths of the general public, on the other hand, favors the Government's social security program, and almost as many are for broadening the program to include all types of workers.

Postwar Depression

In the event of a postwar depression, the businessmen's prescription is much the same as it was in 1929 and 1930. About a quarter of them concede that public works and spread-the-work programs will be necessary. But some 77 per cent favor "economy by Government departments," as a remedy, despite the failure of this policy to help the situation in the early thirties; 62 per cent vote for lower corporate taxes, and 54 per cent think that private business can handle the situation through cooperative efforts.

Yet three-fourths of the executives polled by Fortune recognize that a depression would cause the public to demand some type of Government relief, and 41 per cent predict that it would bring a strong labor party onto the American political stage. With this degree of insight, one would think that businessmen would be more willing than they are to make concessions to popular opinion as have their counterparts in Great Britain.

The one constructive step that businessmen have taken toward preparing for the postwar responsibilities they so eagerly demand is the setting up of the Committee for Economic Development, with its 600-odd local chairmen throughout the country. The CED's objectives are laudable: to stimulate plans for conversion of medium and small industries to peacetime production, and to get businessmen to think in terms of expansion.

The CED is the first to admit, however, that its program is still in the experimental stages. It provides no blueprint for avoiding deflation, though it has made some progress toward its limited objectives.

All of us hope that a postwar unemployment crisis can be averted. But if one does develop, and if a large-scale public works program becomes necessary to close the gap in our economy, it will be largely because a large section of private business has been unable or unwilling to admit that the apparent verities of the golden 'twenties no longer fill the bill.

Azores Triumph

By Barnet Nover

Portugal Aids The Allies

DURING RECENT YEARS German agents in Lisbon have been as numerous as ants in an uncovered sugar barrel and just about as busy.

They kept their eyes on the refugees who had streamed into Portugal from every conquered country in Europe. They watched the plane arrivals from England and America. They trafficked in documents of greater or lesser authenticity and real or dubious value. And they sent long and elaborate reports to their principals in Berlin.

Yet it was right under their very noses that the British pulled off one of the neatest diplomatic surprises of the war—the agreement whereby Portugal is to permit Allied use of the air and sea bases in the Azores.

THERE APPEARS to be no doubt that the German government was taken by surprise.

Rumors had been current for some time in neutral capitals that some kind of important action by Portugal was impending. But as late as Monday, the day before Prime Minister Churchill made the news of the Anglo-Portuguese agreement public, Dr. Schmidt, the Nazi press chief, did all he could to discount these rumors. He gave evidence, at this press conference, of being worried but also of being in the dark as to just what was transpiring at Lisbon.

BEING CAUGHT SHORT, Berlin's first reaction to the news was one of stunned silence.

The Nazis are certainly fully aware of the importance of Portugal's action. They know that it means an intensification of the war on the U-boats since the Atlantic sea lanes can now be effectively patrolled by land-based bombers.

They know that it will be interpreted in the neutral world and in Axis countries alike as still another indication that the stock of Germany is going down and that of the Allies is rising.

It is particularly humiliating to the once invincible Reich to be defied by one of the very weakest of the neutrals. And the Nazis are also aware that with the Azores in their hands, the Allies have acquired still another important springboard for the coming invasion of Europe.

For a good deal less provocation than Portugal has now given him, Hitler once chewed up a dozen countries. Now he may have to content himself with chewing up another carpet.

CERTAINLY we must assume that Dr. Salazar, the Portuguese premier, did not act blindly or impetuously in granting bases in the Azores to Great Britain. For the danger of a German attack on Portugal, a danger that loomed very near in 1940, has now evaporated.

It has evaporated for three reasons.

The first is that since the Allied occupation of North Africa, Sicily, Sardinia and Corsica and the surrender of the Italian fleet, the Allies are now in unquestioned control of the Mediterranean.

Secondly, the Allies have a large force in North Africa which, in the event of a German attack on Portugal (which would also by virtue of the existing Spanish-Portuguese arrangement be an attack on Spain, could be moved into Spain.

And, thirdly, a German invasion of Spain would compel the diversion of a German force far beyond Hitler's present capacity to provide.

Not only would the Germans, if they moved into Spain, have to guard Spain's long and difficult communication lines but they would also have to garrison all of Spain's numerous ports—Vigo and Coruna in the west; Gijou, Santander, Bilboa and San Sebastian on the Bay of Biscay; Malaga, Almeria, Cartagena, Alicante, Valencia and Barcelona on the Mediterranean.

Every one of these ports, unless held in strength by the Nazis, could serve as an Allied bridgehead for the creation of another European front.

The most that Germany could do at this juncture to penalize Portugal for its pro-Allied move is to bomb Lisbon and other Portuguese cities and to do that German planes would have to fly over neutral Spanish territory. In fact, not even a break in Portuguese-German diplomatic relations may occur since the Nazis may decide that Lisbon is much too valuable as a listening post to be abandoned.

THERE IS A PASSAGE in the ancient Anglo-Portuguese Alliance (it was made in 1373) which it is well for Americans to ponder at this time.

"They shall," says that document, "henceforth reciprocally be friends to friends and enemies to enemies."

For it is not Britain alone that will profit by the use of the Azores as a sea and air base. All of the United Nations will profit from that development. Because of it fewer American and Greek and Dutch and Norwegian ships and sailors will be sunk. Because it will make possible the substitution of carrier-based planes for U-boat hunting by land-based aircraft the naval balance in the Pacific will be further altered in our favor.

So because, through dark years and bright, Britain kept alive an alliance made five and a half centuries ago all the members of United Nations will benefit, just as the British and our other overseas allies benefit from the Good Neighbor policy which we have so earnestly and honestly pursued toward our sister republics to the south these many years.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters should be held to not more than 200 words. They are subject to condensation.

Grabbing The Credit

In justice to the British divisions that reinforced and fought with General Clark's Fifth Army, a great deal more credit should be given them.

For many days the British infantry had the hardest fighting and casualties greatly exceeding those of the Fifth Army, fighting their way slowly, as they had to do under the heaviest mortar and machine-gun fire, through narrow valleys and extraordinarily rough country.

An entire German headquarters was also captured by comparatively few British, yet this is barely mentioned in our newspaper reports.

Take as an example General Montgomery's generous tribute to the Canadian division serving with him: "The Canadian division traveled farther and fought longer than any division of the Eighth Army. They had the hardest work of any division because they are always on the outer circle of the advance, with the most frightful physical conditions and terrain to contend with. They have been our left wing and their performance is simply wonderful. It is amazing how they have done it—quite amazing! They came here untried in battle and cracked away at once like veterans."

It is both an unsportsmanlike and childish trait to "grab" all the credit of a game won by the good teamwork and lives of one's fellows. E. M. S.

Perverse Congressmen

This evening as I read William Shirer's column I had an idea which I am inspired to send you.

Shirer makes the point that 80 per cent of the people were ready to join some form of collective security after the last war, but the will of the people was short-circuited by a handful of perverse Congressmen. And there is nothing to prevent the same thing from happening after this war.

Inasmuch as it is impossible to attack one living Congressman without all rushing to his defense and Sam Rayburn's bursting into tears and eloquence, what could be done in the way of educating the public to our present peril by presenting a series of sketches of the members of the "little group of spiteful men" and what they contributed to our withdrawal from collective security? Let the public draw the analogy.

Senators' Testimony

It strikes me that the tour the five Senators made of the war fronts was a very strange one, according to the report they gave this morning. They state our Allies are not cooperating. I gather their itinerary didn't include a sightseeing tour of the vast Russian battle front and their five million dead or a visit to General Montgomery's army. As for the charge that their press is anti-American, I would suggest that Senator Lodge look to his own New England.

While there a short time ago I heard the British booed in a movie house, and it was Boston that raised such a howl about showing "Mission to Moscow" because it was favorable to the Russians. When England was facing the enemy alone in those early days and being bombed, I can remember quite distinctly now many of our newspapers and Senators were expressing anti-British feelings on the subject of lend-lease. If our allies weren't so busy fighting, they might have time to save press clippings and gripe about them. J. K.

I am for the Fulbright resolution without any reservations and I agree with Shirer when he writes that the isolationists use "propaganda catchwords that will try to trick us out of another honest attempt to make peace endure."

We must at all cost and at whatever effort learn and understand how this war was made in order to avert another and greater holocaust.

To this understanding Shirer does not contribute when he labels as "bilge" the prophetic words of Representative Walter E. Brahm of Ohio, who declared:

"If we had been strong internally and had not been so anxious to furnish the munitions of war to countries which we knew were preparing for war, just for the sake of amassing fortunes in this country, we would not be at war today."

If this is bilge, as Mr. Shirer assures us it is, then let us hear more of it.

The Once Over

"Too Tough"—A Short Story

"Boy, is this a tight spot! . . . Talk about tough going! . . . Come on, Now! . . . Let 'em have it! . . . Cripes, but this is driving me nuts!"

The speaker was an Army bomber pilot, veteran of harrowing encounters in the New Guinea area. His face was taut, he was biting his lips and there was a note of terrific apprehension about his every move and word.

"If we get out of this it will be a miracle! . . . Watch it! . . . Let's go! . . . Come on, put all you've go into it! . . . Attaboy! . . . Wow!"

He was clenching his fists now and staring straight down with a look of gravity. He had been in scores of dog fights with Jap Zeroes, taken part in fierce exploits over the enemy airbases and been decorated for conspicuous valor and exemplary coolness under fire.

But he was beside himself with excitment now.

"The bums! . . . The dirty bums!" he hissed.

No, he wasn't on another mission over Bougainville, Finschhafen or Kaigulin. In fact he was in no danger whatsoever. There was no enemy within thousands of miles. He wasn't even in a plane.

He was in an upper tier at a World Series game!

We tried to sound him out about the Jap fliers between innings. "They're poison," he said, but I saw he was referring to the Cardinals, he being for the Yanks and the Cardinals having just taken the lead in the game.

"It's plain murder," he gasped a few minutes later, but air battles were furthest from his mind. A Cardinal had nailed the first pitch.

"Hold 'em! . . . Steady, kid! . . . Yeabo! . . . Oh, boy, did he miss that one! . . . There it comes! . . . Zowie! . . . That's two gone! . . . Get this next one now! . . ."

No Zeroes! No ack ack! No dog fights! New Guinea thousands of miles away. But this was a battle! This was the Cards versus the Yanks! This was the World Series!

"Steady! . . . Ouch! . . . That was close! . . . Yah-h-h-h-! . . . Here it is! . . . He got him! . . . He Got Him! . . . Three Down . . . Is this terrific? I'm all in a lather. But I lose 5 pounds already . . . Cripes!"

"Can't stand excitment," laughed his dad.

"That's it," we said.

International Legion

The record of the American Legion after the last war up to the present time shows nothing really constructive in fostering or maintaining peace for this country or for the world at large. They have played politics up to the hilt. It is nothing more or less than a political organization, with each individual doing everything he can to further his own ends. Whether or not detrimental to the general welfare of the country or world makes no difference whatsoever. They are now trying to pass a resolution to accept members of the armed forces whether or not they have been discharged. This, I suppose, is being done in the hope that they will have enough members recruited by the time the war is ended to hamper or entirely discourage the organizing of a new legion.

I, for one, advocate the forming of a new legion entirely disassociated from the American Legion or any other organization now in existence. This new legion should be an international legion, composed of men who have served in the armed forces from September 2, 1939, to the end of the war. It should include every serviceman in the world. Not only our Allies but the men who have served in the Axis armies should be included. The potential strength of the international legion of this kind would be tremendous and of such magnitude that it can practically control world politics. The men or members of this legion, I'm quite sure, would not want another war in their lifetime and, banded together, they would be capable of maintaining peace for some time to come.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Senators And The Bases

NOW THAT the traveling Senators have seen the great American overseas bases which have been constructed during the war, they would serve the country well if they made it their next business to understand what they have seen. A serious discussion of the future of these bases is long overdue, and it has been a serious fault of British and American diplomacy that this critical problem has been so long neglected.

LIPPMANN

For the bases raise in their most concrete and practical form the real issues of our foreign policy. If these issues are not dealt with wisely and soon, they will continue to be agitated foolishly and ignorantly.

THE GREAT fact about this war is that, so far as we are concerned, we have had to wage so much of the war from bases which are not in American territory. This is as true of the war in the Pacific as it is of the war against Germany. Yet for some strange reason, there are not a few of our people who cannot seem to remember that when we were driven out of our own bases at Wake, Guam, and in the Philippines, we fell back upon the British Commonwealth and Empire and upon the French Empire.

The bases, which the Senators saw and are concerned about, are situated in British and French territory across Africa, in India, in Australia and New Zealand, and along the chain of islands which connect Hawaii with Australasia. When General MacArthur retreated from Bataan, he retreated into British territory in order to rebuild his forces for the reconquest of the Philippines. If, after Pearl Harbor, Britain had not also been at war with Japan and had not brought British territory into the war, we should be fighting Japan from the obviously inadequate bases in Hawaii and Alaska. General Chennault and General Stilwell and all of China would be 10,000 miles beyond our reach if we could not get to them from British India.

SO WHEN we talk about the future of bases in the Pacific, let us not for an instant forget that we would not be able to fight Japan from those bases if Britain were not our ally. Yet there are Senators who seem to think that after this war it will be possible for us to keep the bases without continuing the British alliance. This is total nonsense, and the sooner they realize it, the better.

Some of them seem to have fixed their eyes upon the island stepping stones from Hawaii to Australia. But the most elementary knowledge of military strategy ought to make them realize that these islands are valuable only as the stepping stones to Australia and New Zealand. Without these British nations as our allies at the other end, the stepping stones would be as useless and as unsafe as a bridge built way out across a big river, but never connected with the other shore.

Now no one, I suppose, is so idiotic as to think that we would desire, or that the Australians would cede to us, bases on the Australian continent. That being the case, the little stepping stone islands are in themselves of practically no military value unless we have a firm military understanding with Australia. In other words, it is the alliance which makes the bases important. The bases without the alliance are a bridge hanging in mid-air.

The same principle holds in regard to bases in the Atlantic. Iceland, Greenland, New Foundland, are vital to the defense of the North American continent. But what real military value would they have if we could not count absolutely upon the support of the British Isles in the defense of these outposts? Without the substance and reality of an alliance with the sea and air power of Great Britain, Iceland is a military liability. With Britain, it is a vital link in the chain of our common security.

In the South Atlantic we now understand the importance to the whole Western Hemisphere of bases on the bulge of Brazil, in the Portuguese Islands, and in the French and British West African empires. But since no one is lunatic enough to think that Brazil, Portugal, France, and Britain are going to be asked to cede these territories to the United States, it follows that the use of these bases must be based on a system of security alliances.

THE SENATORS are quite right to be interested in the future of these bases. They are crucial to the defense and security of the whole Western Hemisphere. But they must see that the airfields and naval installations can be defended and maintained only with the wholehearted cooperation of the countries in which they are situated. What military value is there in an airfield in Africa unless Africa can be counted upon in case the airfield is threatened?

Without the equivalent of an alliance with the country, a "base" in that country is meaningless.

NOW ONCE the Senators have faced that fact, they are bound to see that there is no point in agitating themselves about any particular base. If we continue our alliances, we can obtain, by reciprocal agreement of course, not only the use of all the bases that could conceivably interest us, but also the support of powerful countries if ever we have to use these bases in a war.

It follows that to negotiate about the future of the bases is to negotiate about the bone and sinew of the alliances which are necessary to the security of the American republics. Without the necessary alliances, we might gouge out some real estate, but we could in no possible way obtain the certain use of the indispensable strategic bases. With the necessary alliances we shall have the bases in the way which gives them their maximum military value.

Fight Brews on Postwar Stand

Connally. "Unity and harmony are vital if the Senate is to pass a resolution by a substantial majority. Cooperation and conciliation and accommodation of all views had to take place in order to arrive at something for which represents a substantial advance all could stand. The resoultion toward international cooperation and the establishment of peace machinery."

Senate Majority Leader Barkley also praised the resolution as: Brief and to the point—it expresses what I think is the overwhelming purpose of the American people."

Advocates of a more clearcut course of postwar action, including use of international military force to suppress aggression, were more temperate in their praise. A fight was plainly in the making, both in the committee and on the Senate floor, to spell out postwar intentions in more definite terms.

This was implicit in a statement by the four Senators who have led the fight to place Congress on record for a definite line of postwar procedure—Ball of Minnesota and Burton of Ohio (Republicans), and Hatch of New Mexico and Hill of Alabama (Democrats).

The bipartisan four said the resolution is "a long step forward" and in accord generally with the principles they have advocated, but added:

"Naturally, we hope the full committee will further clarify and strengthen the resolution. It seems to us that a potentially universal organization of free nations is the type of international authority which the United States should favor and we see NO reason for NOT saying so plainly. America's position with regard to where the power, or military force, to prevent future aggression should reside could well be clarified. It is our hope that the full committee will consider favorably such changes."

While many Administration Senators were prepared to go along with the discreet language in the interest of a big Senate vote, one, Claude Pepper (Democrat) of Florida said the language is "good as far as it goes" but is "too general to constitute a firm declaration of foreign policy on the part of the Senate upon which both the executive department of the Government and other nations may rely."

Sovereign Nations

Others questioned the use of the words "sovereign nations," advocated in the subcommittee by Senator Vandenberg (Republican) of Michigan. Said Senator Radcliffe (Democrat) of Maryland: "I think we could afford to sacrifice a little sovereignty, if thereby we could prevent another war in 25 years."

Only the most extreme Nationalist Senators took exception to the phrasing, which split the strong former isolationist bloc. Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican) of California, veteran of the fight against Wilson's League of Nations, held out. "Of course I'm against it," Johnson said. I'll never put this country in a strait jacket. I'll leave it for our country to decide great questions as they arise."

Ground For Unity

But as in the case of the House Fulbright resolution, the subcommittee declaration found common ground for unity of once diametrically opposed factions. Most nationally minded Senators lined up with it. Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican) of North Dakota saw no "harm" in it. Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio said: "It looks all right."

Typical of the reaction of a strong group of Senators who, in the past, have opposed binding foreign commitments was a statement by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican) of Kansas that this "is a real invitation to the other nations of the world to cooperate with the United States in the establishment and maintenance of international authority (but not the creation of any separate authority) to prevent aggression and preserve the peace of the world."

Capper said the language makes clear to other nations that postwar treaties will be subject to the approval of the executive branch "and as I see it, the language certainly does not give an encouragement to those who would have us incorporated into a world superstate, as some of the proposals for a world council and a world parliament would bring about.

Cannon explained that the committee had "borrowed" employes from the Federal agencies to work on specific investigations. These employes have continued to receive their regular salaries, out of committee funds, and when their job is finished they go back to their regular work.

The General Accounting Office, Civil Service Commission, FBI, and others have contributed personnel, Cannon said. It was expected the Senate committee plan might be worked in a similar way.

Called Forward Step

Senator McKellar called the action "the most forward step taken in many years to bring about economy."

Senator Reed (Republican) of Kansas said it was a step in the right direction, but sharply criticized it as not going far enough.

Reed had urged a $250,000 appropriation to carry out the resolution. The smaller amount, Reed protested, meant "using a tack hammer when a sledge hammer is needed."

He said, too, that the plan to borrow GAO and other personnel would be less effective than hiring a staff of accountants directly responsible to the Appropriations Committee.

"There are seven or eight subcommittees," he explained, "each of which should have a first class financial analyst with enough clerical help to do a thorough job. I want to have a staff of our own to pick up the Federal Departmental estimates and follow them right through, so when the bill comes over for me to vote on I will know what to do."

Despite his objections, however, Senator Reed made clear that he welcomed the committee plan as far as it went.

Cannon was asked whether the experience of his committee with borrowing investigators had revived suggestions that an independent staff of fiscal experts should be hired instead.

"We don't want a permanent staff," Cannon replied. "We'd get that, and the first thing the staff would want is more pay, more pay. Second they would get lazy on the job, and third, the people in the departments would get familiar with them."

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee heard new arguments for a sales tax, which is oppose dby the Treasury.

One member predicted the committee would approve a sales levy before agreeing to the Treasury's program of increased income rates.

10% Tax Asked

Representative Elliott (Democrat) of California urged the committee to approve a 10 per cent sales tax, and said "I believe every human being should be paying something to help win this war."

Representative Gearhart (Republican) of California interrupted to say that their State sales tax had not proved unpopular, adding that the "State got out of the red and reduced the tax from 3 to 2 per cent."

Prof. Paul Haensel, of Martha Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., told the committee he thought a sales tax would check inflationary trends as well as provide the best answer to the Nation's revenue problems.

The Senate Finance Committee scheduled a meeting at 10:30 a. m. today to hear Social Security Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer urge that the automatic doubling of Social Security levies authorized in present law be allowed to take effect January 1. They would go to 2 per cent of payroll for employer and employe, in place of the present 1 per cent levy on each, which has been frozen at that level by Congress for the past two years.

clear through the USES to get nonagricultural work, while farmers are free to hire anybody regardless of any WMC regulations.

Channeling of Workers

4. Continued channeling of all workers who want to change from essential to nonessential jobs through the USES. Government has been classified as "essential activity." All workers who want to switch from one essential job to another one must present a statement of availability which will be issued by the employer or the USES if "he is discharged, laid off, subject to undue personal hardship, or working at wages or under working conditions below Federal or State standards."

In another move to increase control over employment, the new provisions require that the statement of availability or the record of prior employment, which have to be presented by "essential" workers and "nonessential" workers respectively before they can be hired, must contain a list of all employers during the preceding six weeks instead of listing his last employer only.

Employers are required to keep all hiring papers on file, open to inspection by the WMC.

Manpower officials pointed out, though, that cooperation by all concerned has been excellent and violations of the rules are "mostly due to ignorance rather thant willful action."

As an example of the "good spirit" found all around, officials cited the cooperation of newspapers which have recently agreed to insert highlights of WMC regulations at the head of their want ad column and draw the attention of advertisers to these regulations in wording their ads.

Steinbeck Tells How Invaders Blush at Wild Italian Welcome

By John Steinbeck

Somewhere in the Mediterranean War Theater.—The Italian people may greet conquering American and British troops with different methods in different parts of the country, but they act always with enthusiasm that amounts to violence.

One of their methods makes soldiers a little self-conscious until they get used to it. Great crowds of people stand on the sidewalks as the troops march by and simply applaud by clapping their hands, as though they applauded a show. This makes the troops walk very stiffly, smiling self-consciously, half soldiers and half actors.

But this hand-clapping is the most restrained thing that they do. The soldiers get most embarrassed when they are overwhelmed by Italian men who rush up to them, overpower them with embraces and plant great wet kisses on their cheeks, crying a little as they do it. A soldier hates to push them away, but he is not used to being kissed by men, and all he can do is to blush and try to get away as quick as possible.

Fruit-Throwing Popular

A third method of showing enthusiasm at being conquered is to throw any fruit or vegetables which happens to be in season at the occupying troops. In Sicily the grapes were ripe and many a soldier got a swipe across the face with a heavy bunch of grapes tossed with the best of will in the world.

The juice ran down inside their shirts, and after a march of a few blocks troops would be pretty well drenched in grape juice, which, incidentally, draws flies badly, and there is nothing to do about it. You can't drown such enthusiasm by making them not throw grapes.

One of the most ridiculous and most dangerous occupations, however, was the investment and capture of the island of Ischia. There, the people, casting about for some vegetable or floral tribute, found that the most prominent and showy flower of the season was the pink amaryllis. Thi. is not a pleasant flower at the best, but in the hands of an enthusiastic Italian crowd, it can almost be a lethal weapon.

A reasonable-sized bunch of amaryllis, with bi., thick stems, may weigh 4 pounds. In a short drive through the streets of the city of Ischia, some of the troops were nearly beaten to death with flowers, while one naval officer was knocked clear out of a car by a well-aimed bouquet of these terrible flowers. His friends proposed him for a Purple Heart, and wrote a report on his bravery in action. "Under a deadly hail of amaryllis," the report said, Lieutenant Commander So-and-So fought his way through the street, although badly wounded by this new and secret weapon." A man could easily be killed by an opponent armed with amaryllis.

The pressures on the Italians must have been enormous. They seem to go to pieces emotionally when the war is really and truly over for them. Groups of them simply stand and cry—men, women and children. They want desperately to do something for the troops and they haven't much to work with. Bottles of wine, flowers, any kind of little gift. They rush to the churches and pray, and then, being afraid to miss something, they rush back to watch more troops. The Italian soldiers in Italy respond instantly to an order to deliver their arms. They pile their rifles up in the streets so quickly that you have the idea they are greatly relieved to get the damned things out of their hands once for all.

But whatever may have been true about the Fascist government, it is instantly obvious that the Italian little people were never our enemies. Whole towns could not put on such acts if they did not mean it. But in nearly every community you will find a fat and sleek man, sometimes a colonel, sometimes a civil administrator. New and then he wears the silver dagger with the gold tip on the scabbard, which indicates that he was one who marched on Rome with Mussolini.

Tried to Cling to Power

In a country which has been hungry this man is well fed and beautifully dressed. He has been living on these people since Fascism came here and he has not done bad for himself. On the surrender of a community he is usually the first to offer to help in the government. He will do anything to help if only he can just keep his graft and his power.

It is to be hoped that he is never permitted either to help or to stay in his position. Indeed, our commanders are usually visited by committees of townspeople and farmers who ask that the local Fascist be removed and kept under wraps.

They know that if he ever gets power again he will avenge himself on them. They hate him and want to be rid of him. And if you ask if they were Fascists, most Italians will reply: Sure, you were a Fascist or you didn't get any work, and if you didn't work your family starved." And whether or not this is true, they seem to believe it thoroughly.

As the conquest goes on up the length of Italy, the crops are going to change. Some soldiers are already feeling an apprehension for the cabbage districts and the potato harvest, if they, too, are used as thrown tokens of love and admiration.

Increase Pay Of 1600 Now, Board Orders

More than 1600 Washington area warworkers will get pay increases ranging from 10 to 40 cents an hour, the Regional War Labor Board ruled yesterday when it ordered the wage boost at the Engineering and Research Corp. of Riverdale, Md.

Effective immediately, the decision was based on comparable rates paid in other airplane and aircraft equipment factories in this area.

The Riverdale plant received the Army-Navy "E" award in February. It has quadrupled its labor force within the last two years.

Company officials were not available for comment on the WLB action yesterday and spokesmen at CIO and AFL headquarters here declared that none of their unions were represented at the plant.

The board will meet in Baltimore again today, and other disputes involving the District area may come up for decision, it was said.

WLB Studies Los Angeles Rail Case Anew

The War Labor Board has resumed consideration of its decision refusing to grant an increase to 3500 employes of the Los Angeles Railway Co. and may wind up by granting an increase of 5 cents an hour, informed officials predicted yesterday.

If 5 cents an hour is granted, it will mark another recession from strict application of the "Little Steel" yardstick in favor of a more liberal attitude where acute production and manpower problems are involved.

Recently, WLB reconsidered its decision in the Boeing Aircraft Co. case and approved a new wage classification system which gave the vast majority of all employes substantial wage increases. At the time, WLB Chairman William H. Davis insisted that WLB policy remained unchanged, but that the Boeing workers' problem represented a "rare and unusual" case where greater adjustments were required.

Vinson's Action Recalled

Presumably any adjustment in the wages of Los Angeles transit workers would be justified similarly.

An increase of 5 cents an hour would permit a special emergency panel to adjust the wages of Pacific Electric Railway employes by a total of 8 cents an hour, instead of the 3 cents an hour approved by Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

In trimming to 3 cents an emergency board recommendation of 13 cents in the Pacific Electric case, Vinson indicated that he would have approved 8 cents an hour had the War Labor Board granted 5 cents to the Los Angeles workers. Both the Los Angeles and Pacific Electric workers are employed in the same area on substantially the same work. Three cents an hour was due to the Pacific workers under Little Steel, but nothing was due to the Los Angeles workers.

Difference in Jurisdiction

The Los Angeles case went to the War Labor Board because it involved the AFL Street Railway Employes Union. The Pacific Electric case went to a special emergency board under the Railway Labor Act because the company operates an interurban line, with the employes represented by the railroad brotherhoods.

The two "tough" wage decisions created considerable unrest in Los Angeles and precipitated a strike by the Pacific Electric workers which resulted in presidential appointment of a second emergency board composed of three judges. The board has held hearings, but is expected to await WLB action on the Los Angeles case before making its decision as it is bound by executive order to follow WLB policy.

'Bomber's Moon,' Sadly, Is Clouded by Antiquity

"BOMBER'S MOON." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Leonard Lee, adapted to the screen by Kenneth Gamet and Aubrey Wisberg, costarring George Montgomery and Annabella, with Kent Taylor, Walter Kingsford, Martin Kosleck, Dennis Hoey, Robert Barratt, Kenneth Brown, Victor Kilian, Robert Lewis, Mike Mazurki, Christian Rub, Otto Reichow, Frank Reicher and Gretl Dupont. Directed by Charles Fuhr. At Loew's Columbia Theater.

"WELL, IF PAUL HENREID and his fellow-RAFers could do it, 'way back there in 'Joan of Paris;' Errol Flynn, Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale and Arthur Kennedy get away with it in 'Desperate Journey,' and even the silvering Monty Woolley, youthful Anne Baxter, Roddy McDowall and all those other kids could make a monkey of the Gestapo in 'The Pied Piper,' there's no reason why we can't do it, too. Everybody else has!"

That, understandably, might have been and probably wasn't the resigned attitude of George Montgomery and Annabella when Twentieth Century-Fox handed them the script of "Bomber's Moon" as a costellar vehicle for their more-deserving talents.

"Bomber's Moon" is the dog-eared story—it got that way, of course, from the "dogfights"—of the bomber pilot who makes his way back to England after having been shot down and captured deep in the interior of Nazi Germany. It has been dragged in and out of the cinema's permanent wartime files until it must be hanging in tatters.

When it is unspooled this morning for the first time in Washington, on the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater, it will reveal only two notable variations of the adventurous yarn that the public already knows by heart.

The first is the disclosure that one of its supposed heroes is an undercover heel, as murderous as even Herr Himmler could wish; the other, that the superiority of the Allies' air forces over the Luftwaffe is a human rather than mechanical matter When Mr. Montgomery, as the fugitive American airman, takes off in a Messerschmidt 109 to bring down Martin Kosleck, as the Nazi ace of aces, in a British Spitfire—the better to disguise his purpose of blasting the train bearing Prime Minister Churchill and his high command—the comparative merits of the two fighting ships have nothing to do with it. It is merely that Mr. Montgomery has to blow his adversary out of the skies to avenge the machine-gunning of his pals parachuting to a bogus safety, and safeguard the climacteric passages of the plot which decree that he rejoin "the girl" in London.

How It All Comes About

To clarify this whole antiquated business, it should be known that when Capt. Jeff Dakin—that would be Mr. Montgomery—is captured, he is tossed into the cell of an ostensible Czechoslovakian patriot, about to make his escape with the aid of "Alec," a young, captive, Russian lady-doctor, whose medical skill is being utilized by her captors as a prisoner-member of the staff. Kent Taylor, as the "Czech," early in the action whittles these "three musketeers" down to two and from there on Mr. Montgomery and "Alec" Annabella go it alone.

There is nothing particularly askew in the manner in which the screenplay, fashioned by Kenneth Gamet and Aubrey Wisberg from an original story by Leonard Lee, has been executed. Director Charles Fuhr has kept it moving at an appropriate pace and the initial bombing sequence and concluding dogfight have been efficiently photographed.

George Montgomery is agreeably aggressive as the pilot with the charmed life, and Annabella a captivating romantic foil who never bothers with any attempt to convey the impression that she is up in the profundities of medical science, beyond lugging a doctor's hand-satchel around with authority.

Kent Taylor, as Capt Paul Husnik; Walter Kingsford, the ill-fated underground agent; the aforesaid Martin Kosleck, Dennis Hoey, the Maj. Von Grunow, head of the secret police, and Frank Reicher, Robert Barratt and Victor Kilian are the ringleaders in the supporting conspiracies.

The usual short subjects supplement the feature on the Columbia's new bill.

Dots and Dashes

Such seats as are still available for the fortnight's engagement of "Oklahoma," opening next Monday night in the National Theater, will go on sale at the box-office at 9:30 o'clock this morning . . . Since there are precious few left, "first come, first served" takes on an added significance . . . First balcony seats are sold out for the entire engagement; a few second balcony seats are to be had for the matinees, but none for any night performance. Early comers will be able to secure orchestra chairs for all performances, except opening night, Monday, October 18, which was sold out by subscription and mail orders two weeks ago . . . So that's it.

Further word of Tom Powers—a Theater Guild contract player for 10 years and last seen locally at the National with Katharine Cornell in her all-star revival of Chekhov's "Three Sisters"—is that he has been cast as Barbara Stanwyck's husband in Paramount's "Double Indemnity" . . . It will mark his screen debut, but not a too happy one . . . He is murdered in the script by Miss Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray for his insurance benefits! . . . It is happily reported that Katina Paxinou, the sensational Pilar in "For Whom the Bell Tolls"—entering its fifth week at the Palace—will leave a Los Angeles hospital within three weeks, following her successful fight against an attack of general peritonitis . . . Mme. Paxinou had four transfusions before weathering the crisis . . . The New York Drama Critics Circle is undergoing violent internal dissension . . . Four resigning members are charging that the Circle isn't on the square!

In Their Fix, You'd Be Scared, Too!

GEORGE MONTGOMERY AND ANNABELLA as the "love interest" and most of the thrills, in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Bomber's Moon," which this morning begins its first Washington engagement on the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater. Others of importance in the cast include Kent Taylor, Walter Kingsford, Martin Kosleck, Dennis Hoey, Robert Barratt and Frank Reicher

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

A Possible 'Petty Girl'

Hollywood, Oct. 13 (INS).—Virginia Mayo, young, beautiful Sam Goldwyn glamour girl, now is in the enviable position of having her contract shared by RKO. Charles Koerner wanted an unknown beauty for his famous "Petty Girl" movie, and one look at Virginia convinced him that from the standpoint of looks she filled the bill. Sam saw her first in Billy Rose's "Diamond Horse Shoe" and brought her out here for "Up in Arms."

ERROL FLYNN

The only thing that stands between Virginia and the "Petty Girl" lead is her ability to go through with the stiff course of dramatic coaching that has been outlined for her. Helena Screll, whom I am willing to say is the finest diction coach I know, will work with Virginia, and I mean work, with all night club dates definitely out.

I would have been willing to wager my ration book that Angela Greene wouldn't be here long without some studio grabbing her quick. She looks like Alice Faye did when she first landed in Hollywood, which means Angela is blonde, pretty and not at all dumb. She came here from the Broadway show "Early to Bed," and from the moment she started dining out with her agent, Louis Shurr, the Hollywood gents stood in line to meet her. So it's not surprising that Warners signed her on a long-term contract. She'll make her debut in "Hollywood Canteen."

"We don't want money—we want pickers," said the foreman of a vineyard at Escondido, California, when Errol Flynn's "Uncertain Glory" troupe asked if they could rent the land for the movie. "Nope," repeated the foreman, "can't use the money, but we can sure use the hands. How many folks you got up here with you?" When Director Raoul Walsh said they were 75 strong, the foreman said: "Well, that's the deal. Take it or leave it!" So what do you think happened? They "took it" every last one of them — including Errol and Raoul—agreeing to pick grapes for three hours a day in order to get the necessary background shots.

Johnny (Scat) Davis, whom I haven't seen since he appeared with me in "Hollywool Hotel," is back in pictures to stay. He is in "Knickerbocker Holiday," for Harry Joe Brown, and after the first day's shooting was signed to a three-year contract to make 12 pictures. He is the first featured player to be signed by Producers Co., so he must be good. Johnny has given up his band and will now spend all his time in our fair city.

Mrs. Tex Ritter is Mrs. Gene Autry's house guest in Phoenix. Mrs. Autry moved there to be near Gene; Cecil B. DeMille brought in the "Dr. Wassell" movie eight days ahead of time.

HEDDA HOPPER

Mr. De Mille Explains How and Why

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 13.—With accusations flying back and forth about propaganda on the screen, a Senator's assertion that a scene from "This Is the Army" is "fourth term propaganda, and Mrs. Roosevelt's latest newsreel from Australia, I heard that "Dr. Wassell" was a request by the Government. I hied me over to Cecil De Mille to find out, and this is what I got . . . On April 28, 1941, De Mille listened to the President's speech about Dr. Wassell. It was so moving that before the President was done talking, De Mille got Frank Freeman on the phone and said: "That's the best story I've listened to in ages. It's the saga of a great humanitarian—the country doctor. Do you mind if I tie up the story?" Freeman didn't. When the broadcast had ended, De Mille had Stephen Early, the President's secretary, on the phone. Early thought it would make a picture, too. He phoned Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, and told him what De Mille wanted to do. Knox got in touch with De Mille and told him, "I'll be on the coast in three days. Hold everything till I get there." De Mille didn't wait till next morning to register the story idea, and it's lucky he didn't, because by morning three other companies were bidding on it.

CECIL B. DE MILLE

Approved Plan

When Knox arrived here, De Mille told him he wanted to give a percentage of the gross, not profit, to Navy Relief. Knox said, "That does it. I'll fly Dr. Wassell back from Australia where he's recuperating" . . . Word was sent Dr. Wassell that he mustn't talk to anybody till he landed in America and got orders from Knox after his arrival. He, poor soul, didn't know whether he was coming back to a court-martial or to be shot. On arrival he was taken in tow by De Mille. Then he, James Hilton, and three secretaries, whipped up to Paradise Ranch and they put the story down on paper. Wassell's been here ever since. They've got all his mannerisms and colloquialisms in the film. When he gets excited, he says, "Good gravy!" instead of "damn!" He loves succotash, apple butter and ginger snaps . . . One of Wassell's wounded, who lost an eye, worked in the picture. After a hospital bombing on the studio set, he turned to De Mille and said, "Please, sir, I'd like to go back to the South Pacific for a rest. It's quiter there" . . . The President's voice will be used in the picture just as it came over the networks . . . De Mille thinks he has a fine film. Says he, "How can I miss? It's the story of a great American."

Could You Weep

A friend sent Writer Warren Wilson a venison roast. His wife called Dave Chasen to ask how it should be cooked and got a recipe for a special sauce. She slaved over it all day, while Wilson drooled at the thought of it. He came home and took a look at it in the oven. Then his little girl asked him to read her a bedtime story. She selected it. He read, then sat down to dinner, but couldn't eat a mouthful. The story he read was "Bambi" . . . Fred Brady, who replaced Bob Burns on the summer breezes, is up for another radio show and a good part at Metro . . . Our moguls suddenly realize Joan Davis' name is hot as a firecracker, so she'll do "Beautiful But Broke" . . . Alan Mowbray's 8-year-old son broke his arm in two places. He didn't cry or yell while it was being set. Alan's giving him a medal for bravery.

Can She Cook!

Ella Raines of "Phantom Lady" is sharing glamour honors with its producer, Joan Harrison. Everybody wants pictures of them together. Ella had a night out with Charles Feldman, Greer Garson, Marlene Dietrich, and a bunch. Marlene said, "Come to my house. I'll scramble you some eggs." Now she's hailed as the best cook in town. She's been that for years. When Dietrich was at Paramount, and a new female star arrived, first thing she did was bake her a sponge cake with nuts. Gosh! I wish I had some right now . . . Ilona Massey's aunt sent Alan Curtis a roast chicken by mail from New York. Guess Hungarians don't know the distance between East and West.

They Shall Have Music

Jascha Heifetz played 36 concerts in 11 days in our coast hospitals. In one there was a paralyzed soldier in a bed just outside the ward where Heifetz played the "Ave Maria." As he passed the bed, the boy's Italian mother came over and grasped Heifetz by the hands and said, "My boy's going to get well—I know he is He can cry now" . . . Bide Dudley's many friends are pulling for his quick recovery. Bide's serious ill in a New York hospital . . . Before Lillian Gish started her lecture tour she and Dorothy Gish went to see their old silent film, "Romola," and stood in line to get in . . . Gene Lockhart's taking time from "Going My Way" to do condensed short story classics for the Office of War Information.

Fashion Note

If the women's ferry pilot command needs more gals, recruiting will pick up after they see Loretta Young togged out in that uniform. Boy! That's the best looking one in our ladies services. Too bad she can't wear the ermine Tam o' Shanter she bought at Frederic's with it . . . Hal Mohr tells me he's had more compliments on the way Nelson Eddy looked in "Phantom of the Opera" than any one he's ever shot before . . . Sergt. Sam Brown, of "Gung Ho!" Marine hero of Makin Island, wears a long scar on his face which everyone thinks was put there by a Jap. Not at all. He got it in an automobile accident when he was driving a general, before he ever went to the South Seas.

Chinese Players Sought

Tom Gubbins, "Mayor" of Los Angeles' Chinatown, has been engaged by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to assist in recruiting Chinese players for the forthcoming picture, "Dragon Seed." He served similarly for "The Good Earth."

LEONARD LYONS

New York, Oct. 13.

MARSHAL BADOGLIO: Count Carlo Sforza, the former Foreign Minister of Italy, went to England last week, instead of directly to Italy, so that he could iron out with Winston Churchill the question of the Prime Minister's desire to retain a monarchy form of government for Italy . . . GEN. ROBERT JOHNSON: The Small War Plants Corp., from which you recently resigned, may have a new official soon—the famed Bill Jack of the Jack & Heinz Co. . . . CORDELL HULL: Leo T. Crowley has asked the Director of the Budget to make a survey of the Foreign Economics Division of the State Department and to make the expense-saving recommendations.

MERLE OBERON

LIEUTENANT GENERAL HASKELL: Wendell Willkie will make a speech supporting your Republican opponent, Joe R. Hanley, for the Lieutenant Governorship of New York State . . ./PRENTISS BROWN: Paul O'Leary, who resigned as deputy administrator and ration chief of OPA, isn't returning to Cornell. The university has granted him a year's leave and he's following Leon Henderson into the Research Institute of America. O'Leary will head the Washington office . . . TOM DEWEY: The Nebraska primary campaign in behalf of Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota was abetted by Pierce Butler, jr., of St. Paul, son of the late United States Supreme Court justice.

T. V. SOONG: Lauchlin Currie, one of the President's assistants with a passion for anonymity, who fulfilled two missions to China, now is on leave from the White House. Currie's new job is with Leo T. Crowley in the Office of Economic Warfare . . . CBS: Cecil Brown, the correspondent-commentator who started the current censorship battle, is limping now. Brown, who survived the campaigns in Italy, the Balkans and Singapore, as well as the sinking of the Repulse, suffered his first injury when he twisted his leg during the intermission of "Three's a Family."

SIR ALEX KORDA: Merle Oberon probably will play the role of Madame Chiang Kai-shek in Twentieth Century-Fox's movie adaptation of Willkie's "One World" . . . ETHEL MERMAN: Betty Garrett, who played your role in "Something for the Boys" for four days last week, during your illness, was rewarded with a $500 check from producer Mike Todd. With it came flowers, the star's dressing room and movie offers . . . HARRISON SPANGLER: Ambassador Winant was asked if he'd permit his name to be entered in the New Hampshire Republican primaries for United States Senator. Winant declined, explaining that this was not in accordance with his plans.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE: Tom Benton, America's best-known artist, after all these years will move from Kansas. Benton, center of many of the Midwest art battles, probably will settle in Pennsylvania . . . POSTMASTER GENERAL WALKER: Did your luncheon with Haskell and Brooklyn Leader Kelly wind up in a demand from Kelly for Federal patronage? . . . GENERAL ARNOLD: The Boston drama critics will have a difficult time in deciding which of two play-openings they should cover—Moss Hart's Air Force show, "Winged Victory," or Billy Rose's production of Oscar Hammerstein's "Carmen Jones." They'll both open there on the same night.

LOCAL 802: Benny Goodman will take his orchestra overseas for a tour of the foreign bases. He'll take Gene Krupa with him . . . SENATOR LA FOLLETTE: The report from Australia is that your brother, Col. Phil La Follette, is helping the "MacArthur for President" boom . . . JESSE JONES: Peter Hunt, the decorator, has introduced a new handicraft industry for the natives of Provincetown, Mass. The natives, who have been spending their winters fishing—as their ancestors did for 300 years—while waiting for the summer tourist season, now repaint their old, worthless antiques, reviving American folk-art for collectors.

JIMMY BYRNES: Has John Maynard Keynes, the British economist, arrived yet—for a conference on finance? . . . ELMER DAVIS: The Union for a Democratic Foreign Policy has requested the State Department to give the five anti-Fascist underground parties in Italy access to our Algiers radio, to present their pleas—before our Government recognizes any Italian setup . . . MAYOR LAGUARDIA: The Nazi prisoners of war who now are at Halloran General Hospital in Staten Island—where they can see the New York sky line—tell the guards: "America must have wonderful engineers. Otherwise, how could they have rebuilt bombed-out New York City so quickly?"

DARRYL ZANUCK: Are you really planning to proceed with the movie production of "Ambassador Dodd's Diary"? . . . LOUIS BROMFIELD: The stranger to whom you nodded at the Mayflower in Washington and who didn't recognize you either was Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, the subject of your radio and magazine attacks . . . DOROTHY THOMPSON: Paul Hagen, who wrote "Will Germany Crack?" now has a new book, "What to Do With Germany" . . . CHESTER BOWLES: Prentiss Brown would like to fulfill the prediction that he'll quit the OPA to join the Federal Reserve Bank. But the truth is that he's still waiting for the job to be offered to him.

Diana Likes Films—It's Mutual

Changing her mind is traditionally a woman's prerogative—especially when the woman is a Barrymore.

Twenty-two-year-old Diana, "last of the Barrymores," has definitely changed her mind about Hollywood.

The daughter of the late "Great Profile," John Barrymore, came to Hollywood more out of resignation than by choice. She had been among the many sufferers from a weak season on Broadway.

Diana had turned down numerous movie offers simply because friends had told her it is a "terrible place. But the combination of a weak footlight season and an attractive offer from Producer Walter Wanger, and Universal brought her to California.

When Miss Barrymore did agree to try the screen, it was with the provision that she could return to the stage six months out of each year.

The actress' first picture was Wanger's highly successful story of American flyers in the RAF, "Eagle Squadron." She played a versatile role in her second effort, "Between Us Girls." Meanwhile, she had changed her mind about Hollywood.

With her new husband, Bramwell Fletcher, Diana set out to find a suitable vehicle for her return to the footlights but after five months decided nothing matched the movies in appeal.

Meanwhile Universal assigned Miss Barrymore to a comedy of marital mix-ups called "Fired Wife." Hers is a role that any Barrymore would enjoy, that of radio's "Sunshine Lady," idol of the kiddies, who privately is partial to night club parties.

Susanna Foster—Lady Bountiful

Susanna Foster is one actress who today is determined to make the success path smoother for other girls than it was for herself.

The 18-year-old star whose singing voice and personality threw the critics into a shower of glowing adjectives over her "Phantom of the Opera," has spent the past several months quietly arranging music scholarships for other talented girls.

Susanna first met with a number of the young graduating girls from Occidental College in Southern California. She obtained studio auditions for three of the girls, one a pianist, and two vocalists, of whom two obtained desirable jobs after Susanna's intervention.

Susanna next offered two $500 music scholarships for promising girls in Cincinnati, one to the Cincinnati Conservatory and the other to the Cincinnati College of Music.

"Anyone as lucky as I am after 'The Phantom of the Opera,' ought to be glad to share good fortune with other girls who are finding out the difficulty of getting started in a music career," Miss Foster explains.

She had been destined for grand opera auditions when she was 15, but got shunted into motion pictures, with alternate periods of rosy promise and gloomy setback until Universal Studio supplied her with her golden opportunity opposite Nelson Eddy and Claude Rains in the $1,500,000 Technicolor "Phantom" picture.

Lukas Still Flying

Paul Lukas, starred in "Watch on the Rhine," who was a flyer in the Hungarian army in World War I, is a member of the Civil Air Patrol.

Marines Meet Deanna Durbin

If you had gone through 81 air raids and had listened to a girl sing through the worst bombing of all, you'd like to meet the girl.

That's the way Staff Sergeants Al and Walt Madden, United States Marine Corps, felt when they got to Hollywood on a brief furlough. So they set out to meet Deanna Durbin.

The Madden brothers, whose home is in Glendale, Calif., were with the first Marines to storm Guadalcanal and they remained on that South Pacific island through four months of jungle fighting and almost daily air raids.

During the early months of their fight for possession of Guadalcanal, the Marines had practically no entertainment. Then the Army moved in, bringing portable movie projection equipment.

On the night that the Japs dropped their heaviest load of bombs on Henderson Field, some of the Marines were looking at Deanna Durbin's "It's a Date." The thing that most impressed the Maddens was her rendition of "Ava Maria," punctuated by the explosion of bombs.

"When we get home, we're going to meet her," they declared. And they did, visiting the star on the set of her new Universal picture, "His Butler's Sister."

New Contract

Jean Parker is inaugurating a new three-picture contract with William Pine and William Thomas by starring in "The Navy Way," extra budget production which is being filmed at the United States Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, Ill.

New Role Awaits Lena at Studios

Hollywood.—Good news awaits Lena Horne upon her return to Hollywood soon from her personal appearance trip to Camp Huachuca, Ariz., where she is entertaining at the request of her soldier-nephew, who is stationed there. Lena will be handed an important assignment in "Two Sisters and a Sailor," which features June Allyson and Gloria De Haven.

Capital Sales Of Furniture Decline 14%

By S. Oliver Goodman

Seven furniture stores in Washington showed a sales drop of 14 per cent in the first eight months this year as compared with the same 1942 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday in its monthly business review.

Furniture sales here in August were off 22 per cent, one of the widest drops in the Fifth Reserve District. The entire district experienced decreases of 9 per cent in furniture sales in August and of 5 per cent for the eight-month period.

The decline was attributed to difficulty in filling orders and more stringent credit requirements. Majority of furniture makers now are producing war materials.

The Reserve Bank also reported that outstanding loans of the 41 reporting member banks aggregated $263,379,000 on September 15, an increase of $29,853,000 over the same time of the previous month but a decrease of $30,303,000 as compared with September 16, 1942. Business and agricultural loans were up about 13 million over the preceding month. Commenting on the latter increase, the bank noted that this was nearly three times larger than the average seasonal increase experienced in a similar period in recent years.

52.3% Prefer Sales Tax

Fortune Magazine said yesterday a survey appearing in its November issue shows that 52.3 per cent of Americans in all income brackets would prefer a sales tax to an increased withholding tax on salaries.

The publication said the survey disclosed 33 per cent would favor a stiffer withholding tax while 14.7 per cent could not decide between the proposed alternatives.

All economic levels showed pluralities favoring the "tax on all things you buy" but there was less enthusiasm for the sales tax in lower income groups, according to the survey.

Baseball Virtually Certain to Continue in '44

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

An hour after he shut the Cardinals out in the final game of the World Series, Spud Chandler was making lively conversation in the Yankees' St. Louis hotel. That 2-0 victory, his second of the five-game series, gave him plenty to talk about, but he wasn't talking about it. He was talking football.

POVICH

The guy who had just won the series for the Yanks was now discussing the T-formation, and mouse-trap plays and the single-wing. Baseball is Chandler's business, but football is his hobby. Baseball writers covering the Yankees don't bother much about interviewing Chandler unless they want to listen to football talk. They have wearied of asking baseball questions and getting football answers.

Chandler is a surprising sort of big league ball player anyway. It is axiomatic that football stars don't make good as baseball players. The pounding they take around the shoulders leaves them muscle-bound and minus the flexibility to swing a bat or cut loose with a fast pitch. Or, so it is supposed to be. Especially for football players who aspire to be pitchers.

But Chandler was famous as a football player in Yankee Stadium long before he made an appearance on the pitching mound there. He was a great halfback with the University of Georgia teams when they were beating New York University and Yale a dozen years ago. On those teams he was a teammate of the famed Catfish Smith, Georgia's All-American end.

Chandler was talking about the Catfish. "The Catfish was a swell football player, but he wasn't the best end on our team even if they did name him All-American," said Spud. "The best end on the Georgia teams was the fellow who played on the other end of our line, Moffatt. Everybody on the squad knew that Moffatt was a better man than Catfish Smith, and so did the Catfish, for that matter."

All-American fame came to Smith for what he said, equally as much as for what he did, opined Chandler. "He was a witty fellow," said Spud, "and his wise-cracks made good reading. Catfish didn't make as many tackles as Moffatt and he couldn't block like Moffatt, but he was more spectacular. He was like Larry Kelly of Yale. He was always in on the important play of the game."

The Nation's football fans never knew him by any other name except "Catfish," but on the rolls of the University of Georgia he was listed as Vernon Smith. He came by his nickname very quaintly. It stemmed from his boyhood habit of prying the fishhooks from the catfish he used to haul in by the direct if not tasty method of biting the hook out of the fish, or vice versa.

The stories about Catfish Smith are many. He was quick on the uptake. He made news in Yale Bowl that day when Georgia beat the Elis in 1931. Albie Booth was the big star for the Yale team, a diminutive tailback who had been running the opposition dizzy until he met up with Georgia and Catfish Smith.

That afternoon, Booth was never able to break away. The Catfish was banging into the Yale backfield all day and throwing Booth for sizable losses, and very urgently, too. Finally, after one bruising tackle by the Catfish, Booth became angry. He didn't like the Catfish's method of banging him around. He protested:

"See here, Smith, that's one thing that doesn't go in the Yale Bowl," said Booth.

"And you're another," said Catfish, quite unruffled.

The Alabama team of 1930 was also very sore at the Catfish. He had just tackled their fullback, Tony Holm, so emphatically that Holm was taken out of the game. It seems that Catfish met Holm coming through tackle and laid him out so forcibly that Holm was a stretcher case.

The Alabama players were furious. They went over to Smith and said, "we'll get you for this."

The Catfish was unperturbed. He merely looked up at the clock. "I'm a sophomore," he said, "and you've got exactly 2 years, 4 minutes and 20 seconds to get me, if you're man enough."

It wasn't all egoism with Smith, though. He could see the wry humor in Georgia's defeat by California by the whopping figure of 60-0. Georgia had made the trip to the Pacific Coast for the game. The team had been accompanied by a group of Georgia alumni. On the way back East after Georgia's horrible lacing by the Golden Bears, the train stopped in a Kansas town where local Georgia alumni were turning out to greet the team.

The Georgia players were quartered on the rear cars of the train, and when the president of the Kansas alumni recognized no football players among the first passengers to detrain, he asked: "Where are the football players?"

Just then, the Catfish came into his hearing.

Byrd, Kirkwood Top Field In Chevy Chase Pro-Senior

Sammy Byrd, winner of one of the two major golf tournaments of the year, and Joe Kirkwood, dean of golf's trick shot specialists, will head a field of at least 25 professionals in the fourteenth annual Pro-Senior Tournament today at Chevy Chase.

Host Pro Bob Barnett will make pairings immediately after lunch and the pros and their partners, made up of the active senior golfers of the club, will start play at 1:15. Play will be over the 18-hole route with total scores, minus handicap, deciding the winning team.

Byrd, who lost a challenge match last week to Harold McSpaden for the unofficial "golfer of the year title," will be making one of his first appearances here. Kirkwood, one of the topnotch playing pros, will give his exhibition following the tournament.

Bobby Cruickshank, North-South Open champion, and Tommy Galloway of Hermitage, will represent Virginia, while in addition to Byrd and Kirkwood, George Smith will also represent the Philadelphia PGA. Other pros will come from Baltimore and metropolitan Washington.

Interhigh Night Game Set Nov. 11

Teams to Be Named On Monday Before Contest; Riders Hit by Injuries

Washington's first inter-high night game in four years will be played under the lights at Griffith Stadium at 8 o'clock Friday, November 11, J. Dallas Shirley, director of senior high school physical education, announced yesterday.

Three inter-high games are scheduled for that weekend—Coolidge-Roosevelt, Tech-Central and Wilson-Anacostia—and the night game will be a choice between them. Shirley said all arrangements for the game had been completed with the exception of the choice of the contending teams.

That choice will be made on the Monday before the game, just as the Saturday spot contest is made each week in the regular inter-high series.

Coolidge, Roosevelt Unbeaten

At present Coolidge and Roosevelt look like the choice for the night battle, for both are unbeaten. There is an old rivalry between Tech and Central, however, and both Wilson and Anacostia are comparative Johnny-come-latelies in the high school series, so there is a possible choice in that combination, too.

In this week's spot game at Central Stadium Saturday, undefeated Roosevelt will meet Wilson, which holds a win over Central, a tie with Tech and a loss to Coolidge. Artie Boyd's Rough Riders will be going into the game slightly hobbled, however, for Fullback Bernard Citrenbaum won't start and Right Half John Moore probably will be out of the game, too. In addition, three of the tackles have bad legs and probably won't be able to play a full game. The same is true of a couple of ends, so Artie isn't facing the future too happily.

But Wilson isn't in too good shape either. Two backfield men, Bob Henry and Bill Haycock, probably won't start, Coach Joe Carlo said last night, and Mason Armstrong, the Colts' big tackle, also isn't in very good shape. Russel Keith also may be out.

In the Coolidge-Eastern game tomorrow Eastern will go in with a pretty much revised lineup, one which Coach Dick Mentzer hopes will build a better mousetrap to whose door Coolidge will beat a path. It'll be a toss-up between Grimes and Gates at right tackle and an equal toss-up between Vorobey and Young at left tackle. Dixie Howell won't be able to play right guard and Curtain will go in there in his stead. It will be Papafotis or Merrill at quarter and English or Cross will remain in the halfback spots, with Settle or Adriani at full.

Seeks Sub for Henry

Gil Conn at Coolidge is hardest put to find a right end to replace Buck Henry, out for the season with a broken collarbone and Paul Sickles, who has pulled a tendon in his shoulder. Dick Bergmen, a back, also is on the sick list. Offsetting this, however, is the fact that he'll have Addie Bassin and Charlie Greenbaum, both out of the George Washington game, back in play.

Western, defeated in a somewhat surprising manner by Eastern last week, will have a few changes in its backfield, Coach Fred Mulvey revealed last night. Dick Ballard will take the tailback position, replacing Bill Stratos as starter, and Bob Guillott will fill the fullback position. Opponent Anacostia under Zuzu Stewart plans a few changes also, but nothing drastic.

John Jankowski's boys at Central face a tough test under the lights at Griffith Stadium tomorrow night when they meet the tough St. John's Prep outfit, despite the fact that St. John's bowed to Bullis

'Skins Ready For Packer Ground Game

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Post Staff Writer

With Cecil Isbell a fixture on the Purdue campus as backfield coach, the Redskins are not worrying as much about the passing attack of their Sunday opponents, the Green Bay Packers, as they are the Packers' running game, which at present is the best in the league.

The Redskins, who leave at 5:30 p. m. today for Milwaukee and their second league test, will meet the league's leading ground gainer, Tony Canadeo, the former Gonzaga back now in his third year in the professional league.

In thre games, in which the Packers have beaten the Cardinals and Lions and tied the Chicago Bears, Canadeo has picked up 187 yards in 26 attempts for the enviable average of 7.2 yards each time with the ball. Not far behind Canadeo the Packers have 10-year-man Joe Laws, Andy Frisch and Roookie Irv Comp, all with better than 110 yards gained in three games.

Running Game Clicks

The Packer running game has clicked to the point that Don Hutson has made only one of the 12 Green Bay touchdowns to date, although he has added all the extra points. Hutson's 124 yards picked up in pass receiving this year has been from the tosses of Laws, Lou Brock and Canadeo.

In more than 1000 yards gained to date Green Bay has leaned to its ground attack for 647 yards. Most of their touchdowns have resulted from steady, powerhouse downfield marches. The Redskins may have liked it better the other way, when they could concentrate on Isbell. Now they have to watch the entire crop of Packer backs.

The swelling in Redskin captain Bob Masterson's ankle receded Tuesday night and yesterday Masterson pronounced himself fit to play Sunday, although he is a doubtful starter. The only Redskin player definitely out of the Packer game is Joe Gibson, the end still carrying a bad charley horse. Gibson will not make the trip.

NOTES—Ray Reutt, the former VMI guard who talked himself into a Redskin contract, left the team, returned and was finally released, has signed with the Phil-Pitt team . . . When Redskin Frank Akins' punt was blocked in the fourth quarter Sunday credit was given the Dodgers but the kick was actually blocked by teammate Leo Stasica, who was trying to cover two charging Dodgers at once and got in the way of the ball. It was not Stasica's fault, but a teammate who missed his man . . . Irv Comp is the only Green Bay player still with the team from the Packers' '43 list of college draftees. The Redskins have five . . . One of the Redskins' league records was erased from the books last weekend. In the Pittsburgh game of 1937 the Redskins fumbled eight times, a number tied later by five teams, but the Phil-Pitt Eagles fumbled 10 times in beating the Giants last Saturday . . . Vic Carroll, traded to the New York Giants by the Redskins for a player now in the Marine Corps, played more than half the Eagle game last Saturday at tackle . . . One of the most overlooked performances by a Redskin lineman against the Dodgers was the fine play of veteran Clyde Shugart, a tackle this year, a guard in past seasons, and a center should anything happen to George Smith.

London Daily Mail Dismayed At American Brand of Cricket

Bleedin' Baseballers Razzed More'n Played; Maj. John Mitchell, College Park, Top Scorer

By Bob Considine

International News Service Staff Writer

London, Oct. 13.—Coo, Guvnor, these bleedin' American baseball players gave us all a bit of a turn recently when they played the first All-American cricket match ever staged in this country.

The match was done at Cambridge and was committed by elevens recruited from flying officers at two of our fortress stations. Most of the boys had never seen a cricket match, but the English provided them with three instructors a few weeks ago and the boys took up the game for the fun of it. Their conduct during the eventual match caused some bewilderment and some dismay to the English galleries and the sportswriters.

CONSIDINE

One of the umpires, Maj. E. R. T. Holmes, Royal Artillery, retired to his country seat and, quite naturally, wrote a letter to the editor of the Times.

"Sir," he wrote, acquainting the editor some days later that the match had been played, "it was evident that there was plenty of keenness to be victorious in this match.

Batted Batsmen

"The two captains tossed up for choice of innings, and then they went at it with true American enthusiasm. The fielders actually indulged in a ceaseless flow of 'chatter' and baiting the batsman provided everybody (except the batsman) with amusement. Cries of 'here's an easy man!' would greet the new arrival, and woe betide the outgoing batsman who had failed to score.

"Englishmen on such occasions are apt to become suddenly engrossed in deep conversation with their neighbor, thereby affecting not to notice the early return to the pavilion of one who has covered himself with inglory. Not so with the Americans who came to see this match, and those who engaged in it. The outgoing man becomes the verbal butt of everybody, friend and foe alike, but he merely smiles or makes some fitting re-

John Kimbrough May Play Football For 'Flying Kellys'

By the Associated Press

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Oct. 13.—Lieut. John Kimbrough, "Jarrin" Johnny Kimbrough to Texas A. & M. football fans, reported for duty at Kirtland Field here today as a twin-engine pilot but whether he will don the moleskins for the field's "Flying Kelly"s eleven remained a question.

Condition of Yank President Better

New Rochelle, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP).—The condition of Ed Barrow, 75-year-old president of the New York Yankees, was slightly improved today according to his personal physician.

Badgers Fear Worst at Best In Irish Game

By the Associated Press

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—The Notre Dame-Wisconsin football game here Saturday, says Wisconsin Coach Harry Stuhldreher, is just another ball game to be taken in stride—because the Badgers can't do anything else about it.

"Notre Dame, without a doubt, is the Nation's No. 1 team," he says, "while our inexperienced fellows are just plugging along making a lot of mistakes.

"We don't kid ourselves that we can beat Notre Dame. But anything can happen in football, and we'll be in there trying and maybe we can keep the score down."

Stuhldreher isn't any more concerned about the Irish man-in-motion T formation than he is any offense, taking the position that you can stop that kind of an attack as well as any other—if you have experienced manpower.

And experienced manpower is something Stuhldreher hasn't got.

All that he had left of his fine 1942 team when this season opened was a reserve quarterback, Len Calligaro. Now he doesn't even have him because he was declared ineligible, and the Badgers have lost to Illinois, Camp Grant and Marquette while beating Iowa.

Adding to Stuhldreher's troubles, two of his most dependable men, Halfbacks Don Kindt and Paul MacLaughlin, have been missing from recent practice sessions due to injured legs. They may be ready for action again Saturday, but aren't likely to be in top shape.

Clarence Esser, a first string tackle, and Doug Hodges, a quarterback, also are ailing and not likely to be much use to the Badger coach.

Fan Reaction Pleasing to Club Owners

Player Shortage Most Serious of Problems; Change For Better Seen

By Judson Bailey

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 13.—In an uncertain world one of the reasonable certainties is that there will be baseball again next season.

The question of baseball's future was uppermost in the minds of many players and fans during the World Series and most of them wondered whether they were seeing their last diamond classic for the duration.

The presidents of the two major leagues and other leaders of the sport were kept busy answering queries about next year and there was no hesitation in the declaration of all of them that baseball would keep going.

One Vital Difference

The problems confronting the sport appear more hazardous now than they did a year ago when some baseball men were wavering about the advisability of continuing. However, there is one vital difference. The magnates know now that the reaction of the public to baseball in wartime is favorable. A year ago some were afraid there might be a clamor for cessation of the game, or at least that attendance would drop sharply.

Instead, the fans supported the game well throughout the season, both in the majors and minors, and there now is but one threat to the existence of baseball. That, of course, is a shortage of manpower.

At the moment no one knows how serious this will become and therefore no one can say precisely how the situation will be met.

The most optimistic baseball men are counting on a change for the better in the war, particularly in Europe, before the 1944 season opens. If this comes they say the rest will be easy.

But baseball is prepared to go ahead whether or not this improvement occurs. Practical observers say that the clubs can operate with as few as 18 players each and this would require a pool of less than 300 men for the major leagues.

There is every reason to believe that this number, or more, will be available. The majors have a nucleus of 30 or 40 players who already have been rejected by the Army on physical grounds. They also have several players who are over 38 years in age.

Taking War Jobs

Many players are taking war jobs this winter and may be passed over in the draft of fathers. There is a widespread belief that if they are not taken during the winter they will not be called next summer because the Army will have been raised to its peak size and additional fathers will not be needed.

Naturally, baseball expects to lose many of its figures. Players, and some club officials, are being called before their draft boards almost daily and lots of them will be in a different kind of uniform next spring. There may not be enough players for all the minor leagues, but it's a cinch the majors will open even if they have to use boys and old men.

The clinching argument is that they know that once started they can always stop, but if they fail to open the 1944 campaign and the war takes a turn for the better in midsummer, then it would be too late to begin and an entire year would be lost.

Heroic Son of Georgetown

Bill Nealon, Ex-Hoya Grid Star, Killed in African Campaign

Georgetown University athletic officials learned yesterday that Capt. William F. Nealon, USA, cocaptain of the Hoyas' 1941 Orange Bowl team, died September 12 of wounds suffered in the North Africa area.

Captain Nealon, who left Georgetown in his senior year to enter the Army, was last heard from at the Hilltop when he was a lieutenant in charge of rescue work in the North African campaign. He later saw action in Sicily.

The War Department notified Nealon's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Nealon of Scranton, Pa., of his death. A sister, Johann G. Nealon of the Postoffice Department, and two aunts, Rhea Nealon, a White House aide, and Mrs. Edward C. Moylan, are residents of Washington. He was the son of the late William Nealon, former superintendent of mails in Scranton.

Suffered Knee Injury

Nealon, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound youth, played on two of Georgetown's unbeaten teams, but suffered a knee injury in his third year on the varsity. He played through the final games of the schedule, however, and with the other regular tackle, Jim Reichey, now in the Coast Guard, was named cocaptain of the team which met Mississippi State in Miami's 1941 Orange Bowl. He was not graduated, but intended to return

Director J. E. Wins Johnson Stakes, Feature at Pimlico

Son of Sickle Length Up on Reckoning

Crowd of 13,835 Sees Royal Prince Crowded to Third; Winner Pays $5.80

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Oct. 13.—Emerging from a speed jam on the backstretch, E. K. Bryson's Director J. E. forged to the front and led from that point home to win the $5000-added Richard Johnson Stakes, the feature event transferred to this meeting from Laurel.

The son of Sickle and Dead Reckoning came to the wire a length and a quarter in front of Mrs. H. J. Mohr's Royal Prince. A neck farther back came Alfred P. Parker's By Jimminy for third in the field of eight operating over the 1 3-furlong course.

A surprising crowd of 13,835 saw the top-flight action and wagered briskly on Director J. E., a three-time winner this year before the race. The Bryson-owned colt paid a $5.80 mutuel and was clocked in 1:13 2-5 over the resurfaced track.

There was a merry battle for the lead in the opening furlong. Director J. E. along with Dustman, By Jimminy, My Malcha and Autocrat were closely bunched. Somehow Director J. E. in the center of the pack got through and on top. Dustman was in close quarters along the rail and Royal Prince, attempting to move up, was pinched back.

Jockey Johnny Breen urged Director J. E. along and the colt shook off Dustman to take a definite lead. In the strech, Royal Prince, weaving between horses, and By Jimminy, losing ground on the outside, started after the leader, but Breen increased the cadence of his ride and held the challengers safe.

Director J. E. earned more purse money today than he has accounted for this year. He added $5070 to the Bryson bankroll.

The day's secondary feature, the Patuxent Purse, went to Meneither, owned by Eddie Talbert of Washington. The Menow colt proved much the best and overcame some trouble to win in handy fashion by five lengths.

Washington has a new saddle hope. . . . He is Ramond Arduini who rode the first winner of his career on a mile track aboard Rare, a 10-1 shot in Tuesday's eighth race. . . . It was his eighteenth birthday and he had to register for selective service. . . . Ray looks like a good prospect and Jimmy Wallace is handling his engagements. . . . Kent Miller is here with Elkridge, a steeplechase star. . . . Mrs. Marion duPont Scott is going to sell some horses in training at auction here. . . . Several others will be offered at the sale. . . . Slide Rule, the Arlington Classic winner, will be here next week to carry the Boeing colors. . . . With Regards is through for the season and will be shipped to winter quarters in California. . . . Trainer T. D. Grimes blames his defeat by Shut Out on the fact that With Regards was stabled at the top of the track and tried to go home entering the stretch in the Laurel Stakes. . . . Thumbs Up, scheduled to compete in the $15,000 added Havre de Grace Handicap Saturday, arrived in good condition. . . . Carries the Louis B. Mayer colors and gets in the race with a pound less than Shut Out. . . . When Shut Out won the Laurel States, John M. Gaver, the Baltimore trainer, chased a jinx. . . . Since he took over the Greentree horses he had not been able to get one home in front in a stake race at this track.

LOVELY ONE raced forwardly on outside to stretch, disposed of MAR d'ESPRIT in midstretch and held on gamely in final drive. BOLA MOWLEE dropped back early, improved position between horses approaching stretch, bore out badly entering straightaway and was wearing down winner at end. POMPA NEGRI, first away, lacked early speed and came willingly through stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1300. For maiden 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 12:37. Off at 12:39. Winner, Calumet Farm's br. c. Daily Double, LOVELY ONE and BULL WEED, Paid $375.50.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 1:07. Winner, M. Marmorstein's br. h. GALLANT WITCH was in thick of contention from start, took command approaching stretch, but could not resist winner. PORT HARMONY broke well, but was miserably handled, carried MOST ALERT wide and weakened in stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 1:36. Off at 1:37. Winner, Cedar Farm's br. g. (4), by Kantar—The Spare. Trained by C. W. Shaw, jr. Value to winner, $1000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

Navy Admits Upset Possible

Mental Hurdle Seen for Tars In Penn Tilt

Nittany Teams Always Good for Apple-Cart Turning Each Season; Real Battle Expected

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Oct. 13.—A psychological advantage was expected by Navy's football coaches today to be in Penn State's favor when the Nittany Lions clash here with the Middies Saturday afternoon in the Middies' last home game of the season.

Explaining the factor, one of the Tar mentors asserted that the Lions had a habit of upsetting some big team's apple cart every year and breaking up an undefeated season for some squad.

"Coach Bob Higgins, Lion coach, is uncanny about pulling things like that," say the Sailor mentors, "and we might as well admit now that Saturday will see a real battle here."

Continuing, the Navy men pointed out that the Lions' line averages 210 pounds per man, while the backs weigh around 190 pounds each.

"They've always had a good ball club, and this year finds no exception."

Penn State this season has defeated Bucknell, 14 to 0; lost by 19 to 0 to North Carolina, and played to a scoreless tie with Colgate.

Navy has met and defeated three gridiron opponents this season.

The Middies walked away with North Carolina Preflight 31 to 0, shellacked Cornell 46-7, and outgeneraled a strong, battling Duke University eleven for 14-13 win.

But the attitude at the Naval Academy is that the opponent whom you least expect to give you a strong battle not only will surprise you with the way in which he tears into you but probably will take you for a merry ride.

Hence, the so-called psychological advantage in favor of the Nittany Lions.

But the Middies are not apt to sit calmly by in order that a factor's worth be proven. In fact, they are more apt to open up with their big guns in an effort to prove that an advantage can work two ways.

Officials of the Navy Athletic Association said today that ticket sales for the game Saturday, which starts at 2:30 p. m., were comparatively good, but that there were plenty of tickets available.

Hanbury 2-1 Favorite Over Petro Tomorrow

Intra-City Scrap Slated at Uline's; Both Boys Wind Up Heavy Training

Lew Hanbury, rising young lightweight from Northeast, will climb through the ropes of Uline Arena tomorrow night at least a 2-to-1 favorite over his intracity rival, Danny Petro, "Walloping Wop" from Southeast.

For some reason there is little betting, although the fight itself apparently has caught the fancy of the town's boxing cult. Promoter Goldie Ahearn confidently expects a crowd of between 5000 and 10,000 and is looking to a gross gate of between $8000 and $12,000. Close to $2000 already is in the till, Ahearn reported yesterday.

For Petro the bout could be a stepping stone to bigger and better things fistically. Hanbury, who knocked out Gus Levine Coen and won over Frankie Rubino in smashing Madison Square Garden performances, now is being sought by Promoter Mike Jacobs for a main-go in the Garden with Bobby Ruffin, recent conqueror of Beau Jack. Al "Weskit" Weill, Hanbury's manager, is pondering the offer and will not decide until after the bout with Petro.

Should Petro, therefore, upset Lew, he would be in position to petition Jacobs for a couple of New York shots. In addition, he sits in the driver's seat here for a possible return shot at Jackie Wilson, who holds technical kayoes over both Petro and Hanbury, scored this summer at the ball park. Jack (Reverend) Laken, business representative of Wilson's, already has notified both Ahern and Promoter Joe Turner that he will sign papers for a return bout with the winner tomorrow night.

Supremely confident of the numbing power of his left hand and convinced he has worked himself in the finest condition of his career to enable him to take the body pounding, Hanbury is expected to dish out, Petro has bet a sizable chunk of cash on himself. Hanbury, too, has wagered on himself.

The eight-round semifinal brings together Herbert Marshall, Negro heavyweight from New York, and Indian Foran, another Negro from Scranton. Marshall wants a return shot at Jimmy Bivins after being kayoed in seven rounds by the Clevelander here this summer.

Dan Biggers, Baltimore heavyweight, has been added to the card in place of Soldier Otis Harris for a five-rounder with Sailor Eddie White of New York. Other five-rounders bring together Charley Bennett, who recently stopped Eddie Kane's winning streak against Victor Creelman, and Ossie Rodriguez of Peurto Rico vs. local Jimmy Jericho.

London Mail Dismayed at U. S. Cricket

Shocking Repartee

The Daily Mail's man spread before the eyes of his readers not only the thumping fact that voices were lifted at the match but recorded some of the shocking things said. He write:

"The Americans took the green vowed 'to put some pep' in cricket. So it was that their English friends were astounded onlookers at a game that was cricket played to a storm of good-humored jeers and loud, derisive comments such as normally accompany a baseball contest in the United States.

"The opposing teams 'yelled their heads off' at one another and possibly the Blue team's yells proved the more effective, for this side won by 92 runs to 35.

"Top scorer was big, cheery Maj. John R. Mitchell, who comes from College Park, Md. He made 60 runs. He endured a razzing which would have caused an English batsman to wilt right away. He was greeted with 'Here's a new baby!' 'He's easy!' and 'Bowl fast—he'll never see it!'

Overzealous Soldier

"But he merely grinned and went steadily on knocking boundaries. Then the fielders started on a new line of taunts. 'Get this leading lady out,' they bawled, and 'He's not clever, he's only lucky!' and one American soldier-spectator even cried, 'Send him back for a bath'."

The Mail's man sympathized also with Maj. James P. Hartman of Montrose, Colo. "He had to stand up to such barbs as 'He's only a novice!' and 'Another recruit!' and 'Get that big chump!' But perhaps the sharpest taunt of all was 'This baby's got a hole in his bat'."

I wish I could have arranged for the Mail's man to sit in the Cardinals' dugout during the World Series. It's just as well he never got around to covering the Gas House Gang.

P. S.—The Marquess of Queensberry and Jack Harding say they lost 2000 blinkin' quid when they were forced to cancel the Freddie Mills-Jack London heavyweight title fight. But they have the consolation of knowing that the cancellation saved the British public from a damaging blow to its morale. . . . Lieut. Col. Tommy Hitchcock is stationed at the American Embassy in London as a liaison officer between our air forces and the RAF. . . . Tommy Farr, after plunging heavily on the favored Straight Deal in the St. Leger, got out with a "saver" on Herringbone, which paid 100 shillings for 6. But he took more punishment during the running of the race than he did against the Messrs. Louis, Braddock, Baer, Nova and Burman.

Peruvian Star As Navy Tops Duke Booters

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Oct. 13.—Sparked by the educated footwork of Peruvian-born Plebe Arturo Culisto, the Navy soccer team trounced the Duke University ten, 7-0, today in the opening game of the Middies' 1943 season.

Culisto, who said he had never played varsity soccer before he entered the Naval Academy a few months ago, placed three boots into the net for the Tars as the Midshipmen completely outplayed the stubborn but ineffective Duke squad.

200 Golfers Will Compete At Manor Club

Pro Clagett Stevens expects more than 200 golfers for the annual Manor Club Field Day to be held Saturday, the first and only competitive event to be held at the Norbeck Club this season.

Members and guests are urged to play as early as possible so that all players may finish their rounds. Prizes for low net, low gross, blind bogeys, selective hole events, etc., will be awarded at the dinner following the golf. Entertainment is also on the program.

Due to gas rationing golf has been on a strictly informal basis at Manor this season but the field day committee decided to go ahead with the annual fall tournament in usual style. All prizes will be in war stamps.

Prep, 13-0, last week. Central, even in defeat, looked better against Roosevelt than it has so far this season and the Vikings seem to be taking shape in some semblance of their old form.

A hard-fought prep school game is in the making between Gonzaga High and Georgetown Prep at Garrett Park at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow, for it will be the first time the traditional rival Jesuit schools have met in five years. Gonzaga will have a couple of men out of its lineup, Bo Richards says, Horan and O'Neill, both backs, who have been doing nicely for the Northeast school this season.

In out of town games Devitt will journey to Mercersburg, Pa., for a game with powerful Mercersburg Academy. Devitt took a big walloping from Gonzaga last week, and Len Askin's men are out to redeem themselves.

Bullis Prep of Silver Spring will take a squad of 25 to Cumberland Saturday for a game with unbeaten LaSalle High, and Coach Joe Grossman is jubilant over the fact his team will be full strength for the first time this year. Tackle Jack Burke will be in for the first time since the Bullis opener, as will Burkart his passing back. What's more, Grossman avers his boys all are in tip top shape. McBRIDE.

Hubert Signs For Bout With John Garner

Lee Hubert, hard-punching Negro who has hung up a record of seven straight victories here, will meet John Garner, District light heavyweight and middleweight champion of the District, in the feature match of Promoter Joe Turner's Monday card at Turner's Arena, it was announced last night.

Turner today will petition the District Boxing Commission to sanction the match for the light heavyweight title, inasmuch as Garner was loathe to take off five pounds to come in at 164 as John Carter, Hubert's manager, demanded.

Garner won 14 fights before losing to Holman Williams here recently when he took off poundage to make 163, which he claimed slowed him down and weakened him against the Detroit Negro veteran.

to school and get his degree. Nealon was a close personal friend of former coach and now Lieut. Jack Hagerty, and was one of the school's most popular athletes.

In four years at Central High in Scranton, Nealon won letters on football basketball and baseball. He was twice an all-scholastic court selection and was on the 1937 all-scholastic football team. He concentrated on football at Georgetown.

A brother, Lieut. Robert J. Nealon, is with the Army in India and another brother, Jack, is taking Navy training at Mount St. Mary's College. A third brother, John, is a member of the football team at Scranton's Central High.

Georgetown is still awaiting word of another outstanding tackle and cocaptain, Corpl. Al Vaccaro, '37, who, with Capt. James A. Gallagher, '36, a sports manager at the Hilltop, has been missing in action for several months. The first of Georgetown's great athletes known to be killed in World War II was Lieut. John P. Burke, winner of the National Intercollegiate Golf Championship, from Newport, R. I., who was killed on the field of battle in North Africa in May.

Brazle and Walker Sworn Into Army

St. Louis, Oct. 13 (AP).—The services of two regulars were lost to the St. Louis Cardinals for the 1944 season as Outfielder Harry Walker and Southpaw Alpha Brazle passed their physical examinations and were sworn into the Army today.

They will report back to Jefferson Barracks after a 21-day furlough.

Walker, 25, is married and has a boy less than a year old. Brazle is 28, married, but has no children.

Oust Mason, Report Asks On Gallinger

Senators Bushfield of South Dakota and Buck of Delaware, all Republicans, as members—also approved consideration of "some form of city government such as has been introduced recently by Senator McCarran." They were referring to the McCarran resolution last week providing for home rule in the District, with an elected board of seven Commissioners and a city manager.

The immediate removal of Commissioner Mason was recommended "because of his complete failure to perform the duties of his job in supervising Gallinger Hospital."

In addition to Dr. Bocock, whose dismissal was advised because "this investigation has convinced your committee that he is unsuited to the job of superintending an institution as large and varied as Gallinger," the report recommended the removal of Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, chief psychiatrist, "because he has not displayed an attitude of sympathetic understanding for the patients . . . and seems temperamentally unfitted for the position he holds."

Commissioners Responsible

Ouster of the hird Gallinger physician, Dr. Charles P. Cake, in charge of the tuberculosis ward, was suggested "because he has permitted an atmosphere of callousness, indifference and neglect of patients to pervade that ward."

The subcommittee added:

"We recognize, however, the retention of these doctor to be the direct responsibility of the superintendent of Gallinger and that he first should be held strictly accountable for the unsatisfactory conditions that prevail in their respective wards."

Concerning administration of the hospital, the report said:

"The management is lodged primarily by the law in the Commissioners of the District. They are the ones who are responsible for the conditions which your committee find to exist here. No delegation of authority can release them from the responsibility placed upon their shoulders by the law.

"Under an agreement by the three Commissioners, Hon. Guy Mason has direct charge and responsibility for Gallinger. His visits to the hospital are substantially negligible. His supervision is a supervision in name only. Although he has known of the complaints against the administration of Gallinger for a considerable length of time, he has taken no steps whatsoever to correct the situation.

"When your committee summoned him as a witness to inquire into his administration of Gallinger Hospital, he defied the committee and refused to answer its questions. His demeanor before the committee was not only defiant, but tinged quite strongly with insolence."

Dr. Ruhland Criticized

The 117-page report also said of Doctor Ruhland: "His attention to the hospital for several years has been no more than casual. Certainly he has not given the institution the close inspection and attention which continued complaints over the years call for."

The committee continued: "If Dr. Bocock did not know of the things which the testimony before this committee indicates exists, he has not performed his duties as superintendent in a manner that merits approval. If he did know of these things and has failed to take action, then of course, he has shown his complete unfitness."

The report drew these conclusions:

1. Food is improperly prepared and served.
2. Filth and dirt are prevalent.
3. A calloused indifference to the welfare of patients exists among the attendants and employes;
4. Petty pilfering is prevalent, with no apparent effort on the part of the management to stop it;
5. Insanitary conditions exist in the T. B. ward, the garbage disposal room, kitchen, laundry, maternity and baby wards;
6. There is unwarranted and inexcusable barbarity, cruelty and complete indifference on the part of the attendants in the psychopathic wards;
7. While Gallinger has not received all of the money asked for by the superintendent in his recommendations to Congress, it has received substantially the amount recommended by the District budget officer.
8. A lack of direct responsibility to anyone seems to pervade the entire management, commencing with the Commissioners.
9. Instead of being a credit to the Distict, Gallinger as at present conducted is a disgrace.
10. Modernization of the psychopathic ward, substantial enlargement of the kitchen and the laundry are necessary.

"The very evident lack of responsibility by the District government to anyone has, in the opinion of your committee, tended to make possible some of the conditions which this investigation has disclosed," the subcommittee asserted.

"It is not the province of this committee to investigate or discuss the merits and demerits of the District government. We do feel, however, and make this recommendation to Congress, that a measure of responsibility direct to the people . . . on the part of the city government, would have a tendency to bring about a better situation within the District and a better administration of various agencies and repartments of the city government."

In addition to other recommendations, the Senators urged:

1. Removal of old frame buildings used as part of the T. B. ward;
2. Modernization of the psychopathic ward;
3. A board of visitors, composed of outstanding Washington women, to be appointed by the President, to make regular inspections of all hospitals and jails in the District at least once monthly.

Chairman McCarran, commenting on the report, said: "Where findings of this emphatic nature are made by a diligent, painstaking and fearless group of men, peremptory action should follow. Public money should not be expended in such a way as to bring about conditions such as those found by the subcommittee. There may be an excuse for poverty but there is no excuse for filth. Misfeasance in office may be excusable, but nonfeasance or malfeasance has no place in a public institution. The recommendations of the subcommittee, in my judgment, are proper to flow from the findings of the subcommittee."

The attitude of Commissioner Mason was described by the Nevada Senator as "unfortunate and poorly advised, if not reprehensible."

"The unanimous findings of the subcommittee must of necessity arrest the attention of Congress and the entire municipality of the District of Columbia," he went on. "No institution in the National Capital should be so conducted as to warrant the findings of the subcommittee."

A full committee meeting will be held soon to consider the report, McCarran said.

Rabaul Raid Ruins 177 Planes

tion late in June of island groups north of New Guinea."

This obviously referred to occupation of Kiriwina and Woodlark Islands.

"The division of his air forces into two great groups based upon Wewak and Rabaul has made it possible to use our main mass against first one flank, then the other, thus acquiring in each case superiority of force at the point to combat and destroying his force in detail," the communique said. "The surprise at Rabaul was as complete as at Wewak."

Broke Foe's Back, MacArthur Says

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, (Thursday) Oct. 14 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, after studying reports on the terrific air assault on Rabaul, New Britain, today issued this statement:

"It was a crushing and decisive defeat for the enemy at a most vital point. Once more surprise was predominant. Rabaul has been the focus and very hub of the enemy's main advanced air effort. I think we have broken its back.

"Almighty God blessed our arms."

Continuing the report on Rabaul, the communique related:

"Mustering every appropriate plane available, we struck at midday. The enemy was caught completely unaware with his planes, both bombers and fighters, on the ground. While our medium (Mitchell) bombers raked the airdromes, our heavy echelon (Liberators) swept shipping in the harbor. Both were covered by our fighters.

"A total of 350 tons of bombs were dropped and 250,000 rounds of ammunition fired. Our low flying medium bombers, striking at Vunakanau, Rapopo and Tobera airdromes, destroyed 100 enemy aircraft caught on the ground and severely damaged 51 others. So complete was the surprise that the enemy could put but 40 fighters in the air to defend. Twenty-six of these were shot down.

The communique added:

"Operations buildings, radio installations and many fuel and ammunition dumps were demolished or heavily damaged, antiaircraft positions silenced and a motor transport pool wrecked. Fire raged throughout the areas.

"In the assualt on the enemy's shipping, our heavy bombers with 1000 pound bombs sank or destroyed three destroyers, two merchant ships of 5000 and 8000 tons each and one of 7000 tons, 43 seagoing cargo vessels ranging from 100 to 500 tons and 70 harbor craft.

"In addition, they hit and severely damaged a submarine and its 5000-ton tender, a 6800-ton destroyer tender and a 7000-ton cargo ship.

"On shore, two wharves and a warehouse were destroyed, waterfront installations wrecked and many fires started."

Rabaul has served the Japanese as a feeder point to nearby bases where their ground and air forces are at grips with MacArthur's men.

The enemy naval force which suffered defeat in a battle with American destroyers recently off Vella Lavella in the Solomons, sailed down from Rabaul. The harbor of Rabaul is capable of accommodating a good-sized navy and is ranked second only to Truk in its importance to Japan.

Of the central Solomons where the Allied campaign is at an end, the communique reported that all resistance had ceased on Vella Lavella island after the Japanese fell prey to a pincers movement of Americans and New Zealanders.

Two hundred dead were found in the northwest coastal sector.

The Japanese navy on October 6 made a frantic bid to rescue these remnants but was intercepted northwest of Vella Lavella by an American destroyer group which sank an enemy light cruiser and two to three destroyers.

"The entire New Georgia group of islands now is in our hands," the communique said.

Anti-Axis Trio In Argentina's Cabinet Resigns

Buenos Aires, Oct. 13 (AP).—The government of Gen. Pedro Ramirez has accepted the resignations of three members of the cabinet, an announcement said tonight.

The ministers were Jorge Santa Marina, Minister of Finance; Brig. Gen. Elbio Anaya, Minister of Justice and Public Education, and Vice Admiral Ismael Galindez, Minister of Public Works.

The three ministers generally were regarded as belonging to the moderate wing and with favoring a rupture of relations with the Axis.

The communique said that whatever the reasons were for each resignation they did not affect the unity of the government.

(In Montevideo the newspaper El Diario quoted private reports from Buenos Aires as saying the entire cabinet had resigned.

bluntly said the statements were cockeyed and it was compelled to answer them because of the bitterness it would create in the armed forces. The facts: In the first eight months of this year the commission issued 2380 exam announcements and only 43, or 1.8 per cent, required college education. In other words, the commission said, 98.2 of the jobs can be filled on the basis of experience and proven accomplishment. College education, it said, was required in such technical fields as medicine, chemistry, physics, meteorology, etc. Surely no one can object to that.

Moreover, the commission said, it would give credit to veterans for experience gained in the armed services. It made a point that 354 of its employes were veterans, and 1400 were now in the armed services. And it is a fact that the commission has made it plain to just about every one that it will do everything possible to see that the men and women in uniform get Federal jobs after the war. It has ever asked that it be given authority to overrule personnel officers who balk at giving veterans jobs. The commission points out that training will be made available to returning veterans, after which they'll compete for Government jobs and be given preference for them.

Ivan Carson has been appointed director of OPA's rent division. Potent labor support got the job for him. . . . The Senate will set up its own budget bureau. It'll hire financial experts to help the committee prepare budgets for Federal agencies. This is a sure sign that the committee intends to get a lot tougher. . . . Incidentally, the House committee is reported to have already adopted a hard-boiled attitude, and members predict it'll set a new record in slashing presidential requests. Agency heads that have gone before the committee for deficiencies are prepared for the worst. . . . Government payments by check this year will average one million for each working day, or about 300 million annually. Moreover, tens of thousands of people are paid in cash.

He'll dictate GAO changes in organization and functions and many are in prospect. . . . Victim of Downtown Trolley Accident

Mrs. Marion Reed, 20-year-old legal secretary of 3937 Legation st. nw., lies in the street awaiting removal to Emergency Hospital after having been struck by streetcar operated by Mary Lorraine Hall, 28, of 1312 Park rd. nw., at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., yesterday. Police said it was the first accident involving a woman streetcar operator. At the hospital Mrs. Reed's condition was described as not serious. Her husband is in the Army Air Corps.

Blood Donor Balks at Ban Because of Age

"It's my blood and I don't see why I can't do as I please with it."

The woman who said this so vigorously yesterday in offices of the American Red Cross Blood Donor Center, 51 Louisiana ave. nw., was on verge of tears.

For sometime now she has been coming in regularly and giving up her pint of blood. She was told that because she would be 60 next month her donations would cease.

And she didn't like it.

Hundreds of 'Regulars'

Her spirit, however, is typical of hundreds of "regulars" who make scheduled donations to maintain the average 3000-pint blood shipments out of the Center every week.

Yesterday, in response to appeals for additional donors to make up a deficiency in last week's donations amounting to 3000 pints, four groups from Government service volunteered to appear as donors. They will give their blood today.

Among the Government employes so volunteering are 24 from the General Accounting Office, 19 from the Civil Service Commission, 15 from the Board of Economic Warfare and 15 from Navy Communications.

Mrs. Loretta J. Bickford, Blood Donor Center director, revealed yesterday another dramatic instance of continuing patriotism:

Regularly every day, Monday through Friday, she said, 15 men from the Navy Yard, after quitting their day's work, come to the Center and give a pint of the precious fluid from which plasma is processed to save lives of our fighting men abroad and at home.

The output schedule of 3000 pints a week requires a minimum of 4500 donors, Mrs. Bickford explained.

"Necessarily some prospective donors are rejected for various reasons," she said, "and thus it becomes imperative to keep volunteers numerically high to prevent failure to maintain quotas."

Following The Post story of yesterday, Mrs. Bickford said, 15 newcomers came in as donors, with scores of telephonic queries received during the day.

Postmaster General, Daughter to Give Blood

Leading off on a stimulation of the Red Cross Blood Donor Center's drive to maintain its 3000 pint weekly quota, Frank C. Walker, United States Postmaster General, and his daughter, Laura Hallie Walker, will appear at the center at 9:45 a. m. today each to give a pint of the valued fluid, savior of thousands of the wounded in this war.

Attorney Wins First Round In $7650 Claim

Attorney James J. Laughlin won his first round in court yesterday to obtain $7650 he claims is due him as part of the $11,500 fee he charged Orman W. Ewing, 57, former Utah political figure now serving 8 to 24 years imprisonment for the rape of a 20-year-old stenographer.

Laughlin, who carried Ewing's case unsuccessfully to the United States Supreme Court, bitterly denounced in Municipal Court yesterday the man he had defended, and the aging Ewing was no less vitriolic in statements about his attorney.

The trial which Laughlin won yesterday was for $150 of the fee, but he has filed suit for the rest in District Court and his obtaining the full amount was partially predicated on the trial yesterday.

Ewing testified under cross-examination that he received visitors in District Jail late at night as often as three times a week and that he was granted permission to work at a desk outside his cell. A. E. Green, superintendent of District Jail, denied later that Ewing had been given any unwarranted privileges, explaining it with records showing that the visitors were allowed after they showed they were working on Ewing's case. He said Ewing was treated as he was in order "that he not become a medical case."

Ewing claimed he had paid Laughlin fully for his services and accused the attorney of being negligent.

"But I once believed all the stuff you handed me," Ewing said.

Jews Observing Feast of Sukos

Sukos—ancient Jewish feast of the tabernacles—began last night with special services in orthodox synagogues and reformed temple.

Primarily a harvest festival, it compares to America's observance of Thanksgiving Day, and serves to remind Jewry of the divine protection on their march into the Holy Land centuries ago.

Jewry feels that the Sukos takes on added significance during wartime, since food production plays such an important role in winning the war.

Probe of Death at Gallinger Promised by Senator Bushfield

By Linton Burkett
Post Staff Writer

Probe of the death of a patient at Gallinger Hospital as the result of charges of neglect on the part of attendants was promised yesterday by Senator Bushfield (Republican) of South Dakota, of the Senate Committee investigating the municipal hospital on the very day in which he issued a report advocating the dismissal of Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, hospital superintendent.

Senator Bushfield yesterday received the report of the death of this particular patient and heard also;

1. An account of lax examinations in the hospital laboratory in which failure of the person in charge to distinguish between a specimen of pure vinegar and urine for which it had been substituted was alleged.

2. An account of one patient dying and another being paralysed for life as the result of inexperienced young internes breaking needles in the spines of patients while making injections.

Supplies Disappeared

3. An account of the disappearance of certain supplies from the hospital not covered in the hearings on which the formal report was based.

Dr. Bocock is not involved in any of the instances cited.

In the meantime another development in the Gallinger affair was the request of Commissioner Guy Mason for a report from the Health Department and the hospital on the death of Miss Adie Mae Carroll, nurse at Gallinger, who died of diabetes 10 days after her release from a Gallinger ward where she had undergone treatment for nine months for tuberculosis.

Commissioner Mason said he hoped to have these two reports today.

Senator Bushfield said he intended to proble the story of a former patient at the hospital who told him of having witnessed a student nurse and an interne give a saline solution injection to another patient, leave the ward immediately after inserting the needle in the patient's arm. As a consequence, air bubbles entered the veins of the patient, who died in convulsions.

Pronounced In "Good Condition"

The Senator also was told that two hours before the death of the patient, he had been pronounced in good condition by an examining physician.

Bushfield said he was informed also that young internes were using Gallinger as a testing ground. As a result one patient died when a needle broke off in his spine as a youthful medico was making his first injection. Another suffered paralysis, Senator Bushfield was informed.

He also said that he had received reports of irregularities in the disposition of certain supplies but this was supplemented by information given to him yesterday.

Another account given was that a patient from whom a specimen had been taken for routine examination substituted vinegar for urine and that the routine laboratory report showed it to be simply, acid, not sugar and of a specified gravity, just as could be turned in on any human specimen.

"These reports are among the many that are reaching me daily," the Senator said. "Each one of them will be checked fully. If they are found to be true, then proper action will be taken."

City News in Brief

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, said last night that he had issued a certificate of suicide in the death of Mrs. Virginia Fay Douglas, 24-year-old bride of three months, whose body was found in her gas-filled apartment at 7400 14th st. nw., Tuesday night.

Police said the victim and her husband, George W. Douglas, had quarreled Sunday. When the husband returned Tuesday night he found the doors of the apartment locked. He summoned a policeman who helped him break in. The jets on the gas stove were still on and paper had been stuffed in cracks around doors and windows, police said.

Scalded when she accidentally pulled a pot of soup off a stove, 14-month-old Diane Helene Kay of 4204 Arkansas ave. new., was said to be in fair condition at Children's Hospital last night.

Goble Cleared of Charge Of Assaulting Girl of 4

A District Court jury acquitted Garlon Lee Goble, 23 yesterday of a charge of attempted criminal assault on a four-year-old girl. The assault was alleged to have been made last June while the child was asleep. Goble was represented by Attorney James R. Kirkland, appointed by the court.

Community House Aids War Parents

Capital Institution, 42 Years in Service, Adjusts Program to New Conditions

By Helene Champlain
Post Staff Writer

Wartime is boomtime for the Barney Neighborhood House, too.

Second home to Southwest Washington youngsters for 42 years, the community house today is learning how much that term can embody, as it frees a mother for a war job, a father for Army service.

Barney Neighborhood House doesn't do it with mirrors—but with Community War Fund dollars. And their war-accelerated needs this year call for $37,927 in gifts from Washingtonians who would like to bring stability to the lives of more than 500 2-to-16-year-olds.

What the Dollars Do

Mrs. Margaret Bell Merrill, head of the home, yesterday told what that extra fund dollar could mean for these youngsters whose homes are temporarily broken by war . . . a hot lunch for school-age youngsters . . . afternoon care for the kindergarten group . . . a larger staff and better facilities to handle steadily increasing enrollments . . . an expanded day nursery as applications mount concurrent with the father draft.

"These projects couldn't begin, our other work couldn't continue, without the Community War Fund," Mrs. Merrill explained. "The house means a great deal to the children in this neighborhood—ask any one of them."

So we asked them.

Kept Busy With Programs

Fourteen-year-old Billy Layfield, for instance. Billy's in the eighth grade at Jefferson Junior High School, and he wears the Military District of Washington insignia on his sweater for his father, Sergt. William Layfield, who's an MP at the Army War College.

According to Billy's sister, Rosemarie, 11 whenever their father comes home and questions Billy's whereabouts, Mrs. Layfield retorts, "He's home." And the answer is not 1329 4th st. sw., but the Barney Neighborhood House.

Billy said he participated in "everything" the house offers its young male following—art, airplane building, clay modeling, music, the Coleman Jennings Club and so on—and he thought it was pretty fine.

Sister Rosemarie agreed, and she ought to know for she's been at Barney Neighborhood House since she was 3 years old. Both she and her sister, Virginia, 13, have found every answer for empty hours at the house—sewing, singing, dancing, piano lessons, cooking, story hours, weaving, Girl Scouts.

Praised By the Children

"We think it's pretty swell," they confided.

Then there are the Andersons: Tech. Sgt. Foster John Anderson, with the Army Air Forces in North Africa; Mrs. Anderson, a secretary for the Social Security Agency and Foster John, jr., 9, Bette, 11, Margaret Ann, 6 and Beverly Jean, 5—all Neighborhood House enthusiasts, who rely on Barney as the answer to war-made problems.

'Transition Areas' Resemble Slums Due to Overcrowding

GET THE LOW DOWN—Senator Harold H. Burton of Ohio and Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas talk over living conditions with colored family living at Snows Court, I and K between 24th and 25th sts. nw.

From the squalor of a "neighborhood in transition" to spotless, modern low-income dwellings erected by the National Capital Housing Authority yesterday went Senators Burton (Republican) of Ohio, and Capper (Republican) of Kansas, accompanied by NCHA heads.

The senatorial delegation, part of a subcommittee headed by Burton to investigate the need and possibilities for an extensive housing program in the Capital, were conducted over widely contrasting areas in the northwest section in the second of a series of three such tours, the last of which will be at 10 a. m. Saturday.

First stop for the group was in the 1200 block of N st. nw., described by NCHA Executive Officer John Ihlder as "a neighborhood in transition—once extremely fashionable, now acceptable on the outside but overcrowded and often insanitary within."

Simply Overcrowded

Such buildings, Ihlder explained to the Senators could not be cleared away by NCHA because they are not in the category of slums, but simply are overcrowded because they have been cut up into tiny apartments. The function of the housing agency, he said, would be to provide other quarters for those who live there.

As a typical case, the group was ushered into a third-story, two-room apartment inhabited by a mother and four children, whose father is in the Navy. A glimmer of light entered from one lone window and an atmosphere of dark dankness pervaded the cramped little room. In a corner crib was a baby boy, described by his mother as 2 years old but seriously undeveloped. The rent, she said, was $6.50 weekly.

Both Senators took particular interest in the household and questioned the woman closely about her family's welfare. Ihlder indicated thata other quarters must be found for them immediately.

Next stop was in naylors Alley, in the rear of New Center Market between I, K, 4th and 5th sts. nw. As the Senators alighted from their car, a fire inspector making his rounds looked around the alley and observed: "Hmmm, clean today." On all sides were stacked neat piles of garbage; Tuesday, it developed, is unofficial alley-cleaning day—particularly if a delegation of visitors is expected.

In Naylor's Alley the Senators visited the home of a Negro family, rented for $15 monthly, in which the residents declared that a large section of plaster has "been down since long before Christmas" and that the landlord refused to repair it. In houses on the opposite side of the alley, however, wallpaper was new and floor and furniture were immaculate, despite overcrowding.

The scene was brighter in Snows Court, Washington's largest alley, between I, K, 24th and 25th sts. nw. A playground and a number of shade trees improved the aspect there, although the Senators declared that the back yards were seriously in need of attention.

Happy Ending

It was in St. Mary's Apartments, on 24th st. nw. between G and H, that the work of the NCHA became apparent. Burton and Capper showed great interest in the 24-dwelling project, which was sparklingly clean and worthy of any model housing development. The appartments are occupied by Negro families and rent from $30.50 to $37.50.

Senator Burton stated after the trip that the St. Mary's project "shows what lengths people will go to keep their homes in excellent condition if they are provided with the material."

Thumping Pipes Accentuate Dire Shortage of Plumbers

If Faucet Leaks, Call WPB, WMC or 'Draft' a Father

By Joseph Paull
Post Staff Writer

If the water drips merrily all day long from the faucets in your home there are four things you may do.

Call up a plumber, and maybe he'll say he'll come, but don't count on it.

Call up the War Production Board and learn there aren't enough materials to go around.

Call up the War Manpower Commission and learn there are not enough plumbers, but that the situation here is getting better all the time.

Mostly Misery

Leave it up to Papa to fix, but expect nothing but misery unless he is the rare man who knows his way around the house.

Here's what happens when you leave it to papa:

The head of a household read about the WMC order taking plumbers off the critical list of occupations here and decided to remedy the household problem by changing the washers, tightening the joints and painting the pipes.

For three days there was no trouble. Then it happened.

It's Really Maddening

As the water was turned on, a strange sound came forth. The house shook a little and the noise was like a dying elephant's moan. Within two days every spigot in the house had its individual sound, and the place periodically sounded like a lead-pipe concerto.

Papa tried again and again to fix it, but he ddn't have the touch. The woman who told The Post this story said yesterday she took matters in her own hands and, after many frantic calls, obtained a plumber who promised he'd come within a week.

Another informant called in his wrinkle, telling of how his water closet cracked and of his call to a plumber. He said this was the plumber's reply:

"First, I haven't got a man to send. Second, I can't supply that type of equipment until after the war. But cheer up. Italy has just declared war on Germany. That may shorten things some."

Victory Sidelights

D. C. School Physical Education Chief Named to National Group

Dr. Edwin B. Henderson, head of the District schools physical education department (divisions 10-13), has been appointed to the National Council on Physical Fitness and the subcommittee on colleges and schools of the National Committee on Physical Fitness, Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, announced yesterday.

Henderson, who recently sponsored a "Victory Through Physical Fitness" exhibition here, will work under direction of Col. Theodore P. Bank, chief, athletic and recreation branch, Special Service Division of the War Department.

Declaring yesterday that more boys and girls of high school and college age should participate in sports, Henderson recommended intermural and interclass competitions in addition to varsity teams.

U. S. Retirement Fund

To provide postwar security for Government workers, the United Federal Workers of America yesterday supported legislation to transfer retirement fund payments to social security accounts so that unemployment compensation will begin immediately for those leaving Federal service at the end of the war.

Under this proposal, war workers affected by postwar reductions in Government employe rolls would receive a cash balance of the amount paid into the retirement fund which was in excess of what regular Social Security payments would have been.

The UFWA also voted support for the Scanlon bill to establish a war wage labor board for Government employes, empowered to grant basic pay increases in line with those given to private industry under the NWLB "Little Steel" formula.

The new center which contains a gymnasium, a refreshment counter and facilities for reading, writing and the playing of games, will be open every Saturday from 2 to 11 p. m. to all men and women in the armed forces of the United Nations.

14 Overcome At Gas Plant Are Rescued

Prompt Action By Volunteers Prevents Major Capital Disaster

Fourteen men, employes of Washington Gas Light Co., narrowly escaped asphyxiation when overcome by gas escaping from a conducting pipe in the company's gas cooling and condensing room at the plant, 24th st. and Virginia ave., yesterday afternoon.

Prompt rescue work by workmen who volunteered to go to aid of their trapped comrades, combined with oxygen restorative treatment by fire and police rescue squads, prevented what might have been a major District tragedy.

All Will Recover

Those overcome were taken to Emergency and Casualty Hospitals, where physicians said all would recover. They were identified as:

George Lewis, 28, of 4330 Montgomery ave., Bethesda, Md., shop superintendent, who besides being gassed suffered severe face lacerations after falling from a ladder in a rescue attempt.

Richard Hudson, 38, of Lanham, Md.

William Early, 32, of Brandywine, Md.

Horace Hayes, 34, of 3417 Nichols ave. se.

Norman C. Sherman, 32, of 4449 South Dakota ave. se.

John Powell, 43, of 2214 G st. nw.

John Therman, 43, of 512 North Columbus st., Alexandria, Va.

Richard Lewis, 42, of Richmond, Va.

James M. Counselman, 33, of 1531 Patrick Henry dr., Arlington, Va.

Dallas Hicks, 42, of 310 E. Nelson st., Alexandria, Va.

Thomas Green, 42, of 629 Seaforth ct. nw and Alfred Tillett, 29, of 1115 Pennsylvania ave. ne.

Earner, Counselman, Hicks, Green and Tillett were given treatment and permitted to go to their homes.

Resembled Mine Disaster

First reports were that an explosion had occurred in the condensing room, but this was denied by J. R. McQueen, official of the company.

For several minutes the scene at the gas plant took on semblance of a mine disaster, as inert body after body was taken out through the narrow doorway of the gas-filled room by masked firemen and received first-aid and oxygen treatment on the sidewalk.

Ambulances, police and fire department equipment came sirening into the district, to which a crowd of several hundred was attracted.

According to one of the victims, the men were trying to seal a widening leak in the main gas conductor leading into the room.

Escaping gas rose to the ceiling and began lowering an incipiently lethal curtain down to where they were working.

Others Tried to Escape

As the first man fell unconscious from his work, the others tried to get out, but were overcome at various points in the room as they fought desperately to reach the outside.

Company officials maintained stolid silence when pressed for an explanation of the accident, while police stretched a tight cordon about the plant.

Firemen, after the last victim had been taken from the room, flooded it with water, ostensibly to prevent danger of explosion.

Lieut. Marc F. Pitts, Former D. C. Man, Killed in Action

Lieut. Marc F. Pitts, 21, former Washingtonian, was killed in action June 13, on his seventh mission over Europe as a bombardier with the United States Army Air Forces in Great Britain, his parents learned yesterday.

Lieutenant Pitts was the son of Frederic Pitts of the staff of the Wilmington (Del.) News Journal and a former Sunday editor of The Washington Post, and Alice Fox Pitts, who is an editor of the bulletin of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Lieutenant Pitts attended Sherwood School in Sandy Spring, Md., Northwestern and Delaware Universities before enlisting two years ago, on the day that the air forces began taking 19-year-olds, his father said. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y.

Lieutenant Pitts had previously been listed as missing in action on June 13.

'They Also Serve'

"If democracy is to work, college trained men and women must become more politically minded seeking public office despite the risk of becoming targets of vituperation."
GOV. CHARLES EDISON OF NEW JERSEY.

Not alone on the battle front do soldiers of a democracy serve. Many of them take a lot of punishment at home, as:

The head of a Government agency who is contemptuously called a "bureaucrat," who is condemned and ridiculed by Congress, the press, and the citizenry; who cannot sneeze without being charged with a fascistic plot to seize power; who is damned by everybody for everything he does do and everything he doesn't do.

The higher-up who can never get his work done because he is constantly hailed before some kind of a committee to explain why he did or didn't do something he should or shouldn't; or to testify concerning a report that in 1923 he was seen to take a coke with a Socialist.

The little employes, men and women who work for the Government in small jobs, faithfully and conscientiously, through the long hours of a wartime schedule, and who must constantly hear and read charges that all Government employes are "loafers," malingerers and grafters.

The man—or woman—who gives up the security, honor and peace of mind of a comfortable position in an educational institution in order to serve the Government and is immediately thrown to anti-"perfesser" mobs to be rended.

The one who sacrifices position, income and respect in a business institution to serve the Nation for a comparative pittance or nothing at all, and must perform his service handicapped by uncertain powers and aims, and the necessity of engaging constantly in a dog-eat-dog scramble for power with his colleagues.

All conscientious and efficient public servants who are victims of Congressional inquisitions designed to show off the rudeness, acerbity and demagogic oratory of political ranters.

Candidates who sacrifice personal privacy to run for office and who become the victims of whispering campaigns and rumormongering and who must see their every past action, thought and opinion from the age of 12 dragged before the public.

The unfortunate official who happens to become the whipping boy for something that has gone wrong, and who immediately finds on his back millions of disgruntled citizens who are looking for a cat to kick.

All representatives of the people who must not only be blamed by their constituents for everything they do or don't do, but for all the assisinities of their spectacular and erratic colleagues.

Those who by virtue of being before the public must become the target for the hate and other poisonous emotions of all those looking for someone nearer at hand than Hitler on whom to vent their spleen.

The office holder or candidate who happens to become the poison pen target of unscrupulous journalistic interests, and who henceforth finds every action and utterance misrepresented and distorted—within the law.

All persons small or great in public life who are giving their best to what they are doing and who are unappreciated, misunderstood, nagged, ridiculed and bullied by a public always scant of praise and full of carping; those whose persecutions resemble those of an unfortunate rookie under a sadistic sergeant; those who in spite of all stand by their guns and refuse to tell everybody in the United States, including their superiors, to go jump in the lake because they love and believe in the graceless, inconsiderate, though well meaning Nation they are serving, and in the precious, though much abused, freedom it is cherishing.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman's New Marriage to Wonderfully Fine Man Who Adores Her Is Rendered Meaningless to Her By Revival of Old Intrigue With Married Admirer

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please advise me. For years my life has been meaningless, because of a man whom I have no right to love, and who has never done one unselfish thing for me, although he professes to love me. I'm in the thirties; sensible, practical, with more-than-average intelligence and a flair for leadership and good management. Yet I'm accomplishing nothing. When I came to Washington a few years ago, I was delighted with everything,—my work, my new friends and all the exciting things one does here. I had been here more than two years when, quite suddenly, I found myself in love with a man whom I shall call Blake,—and whom I had known in a friendly sort of way about the office for some time. He was attracted first, I am sure; and he told me as soon as he realized the trend of my feelings that he was already married. I was heartbroken, but I continued seeing Blake as often as I dared (without breaking off other friendships),—honestly thinking this was the way to cure my "madness." Instead, it grew stronger. Finally, when there seemed nothing else to do, I gave up my job and the life I loved here, and after a vacation with my family, I took a job on the West Coast,—before Pearl Harbor.

My life there was monotonous, but I liked my work; and within a year I had received two gratifying promotions. Then I met a man who held a very responsible position with the company; and who is perhaps the kindest and best person I have ever known. He adored me and was completely naive about it. I think I was flattered; or perhaps just lonely; and I felt I could give him something in return,—for he was a widower with two school-age children. Here, I thought, is what I need to fill the emptiness in my life. And so we were married; and life was pleasant but not exciting. Then my husband was called to Washington; and there was nothing for me to do but accompany him.

Because of mutual friends, it was inevitable that I should see Blake again. I had planned to impress him with the dignity and security of my new life; but when he asked me to have a drink and a chat with him at our old favorite spot, I consented against my better judgment. Being with him seemed completely right; and for months I saw him oftener than I had before;—and intimately. Because of these meetings, I was a happier person to live with and Jim was delighted; because, as he said, he would never forgive himself if I weren't happy. This couldn't go on, of course; but it was Blake who actually put his foot down. And now for weeks I've been cross and irritable. Nothing my husband does seems right; and living with him seems almost intolerable. He thinks I am ill and wants me to see a doctor. He knows that I cry at times, for no apparent reason, and can't understand why. Please advise me. I have wanted very much to have my own baby, but it seems improbable. I think wistfully of working again, while there is such a need and so many interesting things to do; but actually I'm quite busy at home. After reading your column for years, I am sure you are the one person who can tell me what I should do.
JEZEBEL.

Appraise the Cad; Hypnosis Will Fade

DEAR JEZEBEL: If you could get and steadily hold a clear image of Blake for the "heel" he is, in relation to women,—toward his wife and toward you, as Jim's wife, for instance (and doubtless there were other romantic "alternates" in his post-marital experience, before you),—I am sure you would find the spell of your "madness" for him automatically evaporating. And as your emotional sanity returned, you would begin to appreciate really, in every fiber of your being, the absolute fineness of Jim and his soul-sustaining "rightness" for you,—which, up to now, you have been able to appreciate only academically, as by a detached sixth sense, owing to the self-hypnotized nature of your long-time infatuation with Blake.

We are given Blake's measure as a cruelly vain, consciously magnetic rotter, in the fact that he hadn't the decency to be glad you had found "dignity and security," and surcease from illicit heartbreak, as Jim's wife; nor the saving grace to refrain most carefully from any word or gesture that might tend to disturb this redeeming status;—but that he was, on the contrary, obviously rather piqued (with his ego sharply challenged) to see you so admirably situated, to all appearances, and seemingly no longer "carrying the torch" for him. With the result that, consciously or unconsciously, he quite maliciously played the serpent, by asking you "to have a drink and a chat with him at our old favorite spot,"—a choice of tryst most likely to revive old futile sentiments and reopen old wounds to the spirit,—simply for the purpose of testing again his once-proved power to work havoc with your emotions. And this is not the worst of his contemptible performance.

The worst is that he continued to test his powers of persuasion over you,—as versus your "better judgment" and rational devotion to Jim,—until he (Blake) had fully slaked his sex-vanity with an "affair," of sufficient length to satisfy him that he was indisputable master of the unsavory situation. After which he threw you over,—or, as you say, "put his foot down,"—because, I suppose, his interest in you was really never more than adventure-deep, and he was beginning to be bothered alike by,(1) the danger, to his social and/or professional status, of the situation he had precipitated (for, after all, there was Jim to be reckoned with, in the event of an expose and showdown); and (2) by your doubtless increasingly possessive dependence upon his loverly attentions. In other words, the guy is a phoney from start to finish. Fear and boredom, combined with irresponsibility of attitude, finally prompted him to ring down the curtain with a righteous flourish,—which is the only kindness (unintentional though it was) that he ever did you.

As for advice: In the name of justice and common sense, stop unfavorably comparing your perfectly splendid husband with that cad. Dry your tears; and see a medical scientist, by all means,—either a skilled endocrinologist or a psychiatrist,—for corrective treatment of your "irritability," which has its origin in prolonged psychic and nervous tension and NOT in frustrated "true love"; and which probably, by now, has set up a sympathetic repercussion of glandular malfunctioning to progressively "take the joy out of life." If it is physically possible for you to have a baby,—have one; or even two or three. Jim, as described, should be the ideal helpmeet in rearing a family. And given that vital interest in common, you would undoubtedly grow,—and I mean "grow,"—to love him with a love so deep and tender and true as to make you wonder (when you remember) why you ever imagined you "cared" for Blake.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Autumn initiates the mother's practice of leeping with one eye open in order to know instantly when the baby gets uncovered at night. Seemingly a child never gets old enough to cover himself against cold and as soon as he is asleep he kicks off the blankets and sleeps frigidly and contentedly on top of them.

This contentment is never shared by his mother who cannot get her own good night's rest for dreaming of the chilly drafts which are blowing over her baby.

At such a moment a sleeping bag comes into its own. It is the answer to that perpetual worry. Every mother who has used one for her baby acknowledges its merits. But it must be a real bag, not a cover with a hole in the center and ties on the four corners. Every year mothers who have used such night covers have pointed out their real dangers.

No doubt with all such articles at a premium, sleeping bags will have to be home-made. They can be easily fashioned of thin, partly worn cotton or wool blankets or of such materials as cotton flannel. The easiest type to make is somewhat similar to an oversized kimona, with extra long sleeves and skirt portion.

There should be an opening at the neck which is closed with buttons or snaps or tapes. The bottom of the bag should be fastened together likewise. The sleeves, if long enough to cover the hand, need not be buttoned shut. Two bags are necessary so there always will be a dry one. If baby is properly diapered and a square of wet-resistant material is slipped between baby and bag, it need not be laundered daily.

The advantage of this type of bag is the freedom the baby enjoys in it. Even if there are no real sleeves and the bag is of envelope type, the baby can sleep on tummy, back or sides, raise arms above head and kick legs. In colder weather an extra blanket or two can be thrown over baby, with less danger of its being kicked off.

Our leaflet, "Sleeping Habits," describes an envelope type sleeping bag. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

GLAD-RAGS

Here's a beautifully simple rayon crepe with the interest centered in the skillful draping at bust and hips, with the kind of figure-molding lines you don't ordinarily find in inexpensive dresses.

It's lovely in black and in grey, but there are several other bright fall shades to choose from. Comes in junior sizes and is under $15.

If you're a junior, a little brilliant-studded felt calot as sketched would look very charming with the dress (about $5). The frame suede bag with faille inserts at the side is also around $5, and the six-button suede gloves are just over $2.

Now is the time to hop to it with the hot bread touch. Crisp, tender biscuit dough isn't difficult to achieve. And many a meal has been made by the quick bread served.

The enriched flour used to make bread adds precious B-vitamins and iron to the diet. If you want to make some quick breads for dinner or lunch biscuits, afternoon tea trimmings or for dinner dessert, make those melt-aways called prune nut biscuits. The crisp, tender biscuit dough contrasts with the rich moistness of the prune filling.

The biscuits are easy to make but fast to disappear. You can use other fruits, either fresh or canned, instead of prunes.

Use these crispy sweet bits for dessert in the following suggested dinner menu:

Dinner Menu

Sausage Roll Potatoes in Jackets
Sauteed Green Tomatoes
Cottage Cheese-Vegetable Salad
Enriched Bread
Butter or Margarine
Fresh Fruit Prune-Nut Biscuits
Beverage

Here are the recipes for making the biscuits and the cottage cheese and vegetable salad:

PRUNE NUT BISCUITS

Sift together 2 cups sifted enriched flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Cut or rub in 3 tablespoons shortening. Add 2-3 to ¾ cup milk to form a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead ½ minute. Roll dough out into a rectangle about ⅛ inch quick. Cut dough into 3-inch squares. Place a nut in each cooked, pitted prune. This recipe makes about 16 biscuits, so that many prunes will be needed. Place prune in center of biscuit square. Bring the four corners of dough up over prune and seal well. Place on baking sheet. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, 10 to 12 minutes. Yield: About 16 biscuits.

COTTAGE CHEESE-VEGETABLE SALAD

Combine 2 cups cottage cheese with ½ cup sliced radishes, ½ cup diced cucumbers, 1 minced onion or onion salt, salt and paprika. Mix well. Serve on salad greens with salad dressing. Serves 6.

Widow of Dr. Harvey Wiley to Sponsor Tanker at Launching in West Today

By Genevieve Reynolds

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Washington Housekeepers' Alliance, veteran of many suffrage parades and stump speeches, and Washington chairman of the National Woman's Party, probably will get the thrill of a lifetime today. For she's out in California to sponsor the launching of a 10,000-ton tanker, named the Harvey W. Wiley, in honor of her husband, the late Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The launching of the ship comes almost on the 99th anniversary of the birth of Dr. Wiley, who was born October 18, 1844.

"I wish the event might have been on that day," said Mrs. Wiley, "but it was not possible."

It will be recalled that the distinguished Dr. Wiley was responsible for the passage of the Food and Drug Act in 1906. He fought for the administration of the food and drug law against bitter opposition. He spent much of his life campaigning against food adulteration. And Mrs. Wiley, as you know, has spent many years fighting for an equal rights amendment to the Constitution, so that women may have equal rights with men.

When Mrs. Wiley departed for California a few days ago, she wasn't sure just who her matron of honor would be.

"I invited Mary Pickford, but she was too busy planning on that day to entertain 250 British officers and men," she explained. "I hope that Mrs. Douglas Kyd Peachy, wife of Douglas Kyd Peachy, formerly of Washington, may play that role but I am not sure. My guests are the members of the National Woman's Party, the California Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Lesh Chamberlain and Mrs. Frank Holman, cousins of Dr. Wiley and sisters of Mrs. Raymond B. Dickey of this city."

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY

A final check with the United States Maritime Commission and the California Shipbuilding Co. yesterday failed to reveal any changes in Mrs. Wiley's plans, but said that changes might come through. Incidentally, the California Shipbuilding Co. built the ship, the 271st to be launched this year. The launching will take place today in the company's yard at Wilmington, Calif.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

A friend of mine who is a fashion expert and figure conscious has just returned from Hollywood and tells me that "out there, they wear nothing but slacks and I was never so ashamed of the human form!" It wasn't that the women were extremely overweight, but they seemed to be all out of shape from the waist down.

If that is true in Hollywood, where every woman is supposed to cherish an ambition to get into the movies and, it is to be presumed, must have a better than the average figure, what about the women in the rest of the country? Of course, you are going to wear slacks, but to wear them well you must have a slender waist and smooth hips. We'll start with the hip smoothness today—that takes more time—and go into the waist-slimming tomorrow.

The fat padding on the hips is unpredictable. It may hump out at the sides, jut out in the rear, or drag, or spread. Whatever may be wrong, you streamline this measurement with rolling.

To smooth out the pads on the side of the hips, lie back on the floor, in a semisitting position, supported by the forearms down at sides. Keep feet together and push vigorously with one hand and roll over on other side. After you get good at bringing all your weight to bear on those particular fat pads you can work in an exercise for the abdominal girdle by holding feet together a few inches off the floor as you roll. Begin the exercise with 10 counts and gradually increase to 20.

To counteract a general spreading of the hipline, all you have to do is lie full length on your back on the floor and roll from one side to the other. With each roll make sure you go over on hip and thigh. Keep legs together, straight down and use your hands and arms as buffers and propellers.

If your main idea is to smooth down a rear projection, sit bolt upright, with hands clasped about flexed knees, spine straight. Hold that straight line of the spine and roll backward until flexed knees are directly above chest. Then, shoot one leg straight out from hip, give a heave-ho, and roll back to sitting position. At that stage of the exercise, you should have one leg straight out in front, the other bent with arms clasped about the knees, foot on floor. If you will experiment a little with that exercise, you can hit almost any fat pad on the hipline. For instance, there is no law you have to roll directly backward on your shoulders. You might do better by rolling from right shoulder to left hip and up to sitting position. That is something you will have to work out for yourself, and it is true of all rolling exercises. The position that places the fat pad into contact with the floor and brings your weight to bear on it is the most efficient.

A good relaxer for the shoulder muscles is to lie on the back on the floor, legs straight down, arms straight up in air. Begin with entire back as flat against floor as you can get it, then slowly work hands up until shoulders are clear, hold, lower. Repeat three times, then relax with arms down at sides, limp

Home Remedies for Skin Troubles

By Logan Clendenning, M.D.

There is probably no class of diseases, not even excepting colds in the head and indigestion, which are quite so universally and commonly treated at home, or by neighbors as skin eruptions. They seem fated to be left in the hands of amateurs.

While it is supposed to be my duty to deplore self-medication and self-treatment, and I am constantly being reminded by my righteous colleagues that my function is to attempt to explain to the public the nature of diseases so that they will understand why they should go to the doctor, I am not sure that in the case of skin disease the treatment is not better left in the neighbors hands, at least until he can see that things are getting worse.

One reason, I think, maybe it's all right for a fellow to treat his own skin is that he can see it and if it is not getting any better he can seek some more learned advice.

One of the latest discoveries about the skin is that normally the reaction of the healthy skin is slightly acid, but that as soon as there is a break and serum oozes out, or inflammation occurs, the reaction changes to alkaline. This rather tends to discredit the practice which most amateurs or household dermatologists have of putting baking soda on any skin eruption first. The baking soda is alkaline and adds to the alkaline reaction of the skin. It explains also why solution of boric acid or aluminum acetate is beneficial, as these neutralize the weeping surface.

Since diagnosis should always precede treatment, let me take a bird's-eye, rapid view of the common skin diseases.

The common skin affections can be roughly classified thus: (1) food allergy, hives, eczema in infants and drug eruptions; (2) contact dermatitis, with plants and chemicals (many new ones in war industry), and that fine old disease, scabies, or the itch; (3) infections of the skin, the commonest of which by all odds is ringworm, or athlete's foot; (4) pus infection of the skin—acne, impetigo; (5) skin manifestations of some internal disease, the commonest being fever blisters and shingles; (6) new growth of the skin, warts being the most familiar; but, if you are over 50, have a scaly skin, and find a place that bleeds easily when rubbed, perhaps an early cancer.

Now, as to remedies for these difficulties. The amateur dermatologist needs a good soother and a good germ killer. Nature will do most of the rest.

Of the soothers the most popular are zinc oxide, and a similar chemical, calamine, usually put up in a watery suspension or lotion. But just protecting the skin from the air with an ointment is often enough.

Camphor has been called the morphine of the skin. Carbolic acid, or phenol, is also a skin anesthetic; it should be used by the amateur in very diluted form. The two together, camphor and phenol, make a true and tried remedy.

Soap and water are almost always irritating to the inflamed skin or irritated skin. The winter itch of old people, with dry, scaly skin, can usually be promptly cured by telling them to stop bathing for a week.

The drugs which kill off germs, fungi, parasites in or on the skin, and which yet do not injure the skin itself are mercury, sulphur, salicylic acid, resorsin and iodine.. Ammoniated mercury salve is used in pus infections of the skin, such as impetigo. Ringworm is usually treated in the mild stages with salicylic acid in the form of Whitfield's ointment. Scabies, or the itch, yields best to sulphur. Iodine, of course, is the good preventive of infection on cuts, etc.

Diet, X-ray, light therapy and vaccines are all part of the professional dermatologist's equipment for skin treatment. Perhaps the best lesson for the amateur is that if his method of treatment does not show results within 48 hours, he had better give the professional a chance.

Visiting Trio Honored at 4 to 6 Fete

From Delaware, Oregon and California came the trio that shared honors yesterday afternoon at the tea given by Mrs. Walter Wyatt in her home on Kalmia rd.

Mrs. James Hughes, wife of the former Senator from Delaware, is the houseguest of Mrs. Wyatt and will be feted at several other events before she returns home on Sunday. Among the parties planned for her is the luncheon today at which Mrs. Thomas Cajigas will be hostess. The Oregon honoree was Mrs. Palmer Hoyt and California took its share of the spotlight with Mrs. Henry F. Grady, who is spending several months here from San Francisco.

Flowers from the blooming Wyatt gardens filled the house and the dining room table was filled with the results of Mrs. Wyatt's Victory Garden. Piece de resistance was the salmon, caught by Mr. Hoyt in Oregon and canned specially for him.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Chief Justice, presided at the tea table during the afternoon as did Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador; Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the Minister of South Africa; Mme. Pramoj, wife of the Thai Minister; Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, Mrs. Burnet Maybank and Senora de Munilla.

Others assisting were Mrs. Carl Vinson, Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Floyd Cook, Mrs. Harvey Harker, Mrs. Alan Smith, Mrs. John McKee, Mrs. Franklin Snyder, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. John Davies, jr., Mrs. James Hughes, jr., Miss Martha Shirley, and the daughters of the hostess, the Misses Laura Belle and Jane Wyatt.

About 150 guests came in during the afternoon, representing the feminine side of the three famous social circles of the Capital, diplomatic, official and residential.

Next week, Mrs. Wyatt will have as her houseguest Mrs. Hughes' daughter, Mrs. Jack Martin. She has been visiting her mother in Delaware.

Salvador Envoy and Wife Honor Visiting Countrymen

Senora de Mejia and Daughter on Visit To Be Honored at Several Parties

The Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of Senora Frederico de Mejia, wife of the one-time Minister of El Salvador in Washington, and her daughter, Mrs. Paul Buckley.

Reminiscences were in the air at the luncheon table of the Mayflower, for Senora de Mejia remembers her days here as chatelaine of the El Salvador Legation from 1907 to 1914. This is her first re-

The visitors will be honored at several parties during their 10 day stay here. Among the scheduled fetes is the dinner that Clarence Hewes will give Saturday in his home, 2358 Massachusetts ave.

Mrs. Buckley has seen the Capital more recently than her mother, as she lived here from 1934 to 1935. Her next residence was in San Francisco and then El Salvador. She has left her daughter Paulita in Central America but hopes to bring her on a visit to this country before too long.

"We're out for victory with the USA," says Mrs. Buckley with enthusiasm when asked what occupies her spare moments in Salvador. Both she and her mother keep very active with the Red Cross, and one of Mrs. Buckley's real regrets is that her country has no Stage Door Canteen. Perhaps she will start one on her return.

The main purpose of the trip here was to visit Senora de Mejia's daughter, Mother Mejia, a nun with the Madames of the Sacred Heart in Philadelphia. They came to Washington after a visit there and will go on to New York to visit another daughter, Senora Amalia Trujilla. Before returning to Central America by way of the West Coast, Senora de Mejia and Mrs. Buckley will go to Montreal to visit Philip Roy, the first Canadian Minister to France, and Mrs. Roy.

Liberty Ship, Christened 'Stage Door Canteen' by Actress

Ilka Chase Is Sponsor at Baltimore Ceremonies; Party Follows Launching

The Washington Stage Door Canteen was represented at the precedent-shattering launching on Tuesday when Miss Ilka Chase, actress and authoress, christened a new Liberty ship, "Stage Door Canteen."

From the Capital to the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyards in Baltimore went Mrs. Roy Lamson and Mrs. Blake Clark to witness the 4 o'clock event. This marks the first time in 150 years of United States Maritime history that a vessel of the Merchant Marine Fleet has been named for an organization rather than for an individual. The ship will be ready to sail within a week with a secret war cargo.

As Miss Chase, carrying two dozen American Beauty roses, mounted the launching platform, hundreds of workmen and 30 honor guests gathered to view the christening. While newsreel cameras ground and photographers' flash bulbs popped, Miss Chase "more thrilled than at any opening night," drenched the prow with a quart of champagne and the ship, flying all the colorful flags of the United Nations, shot down the ramp. Even before the splash of the launching was over, workmen surged in to lay a new keel for the next Liberty ship.

Executives of the shipyards were hosts at a cocktail party at the Hotel Belvedere following the launching. As the new ship is named in honor of all the American Theater Wing Stage Door Canteens, from San Francisco to Boston, several of the canteens sent representatives to the christening. From New York came Mrs. Martin Beck, Bert Lytell, Consuelo Hermer, Tom Rutherford, Peggy Coudray, Marian Moore and Leslie Mayer. The Philadelphia Canteen sent two guests and the Newark Canteen sent junior hostess captains Helen Sterevig, Bernice Roeder and Jamet Camp.

Other honor guests were C. W. Ulsh of the North Atlantic Steamship Co., J. A. Bouslog, director of the Baltimore division of the United States Maritime Commission, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Willis, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Cochran, executives of the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyards, and Capt. Henry C. Bauer, who will be in charge of the Stage Door Canteen on her maiden voyage.

About Washington . . .

WHEN THE STAGE HIT "Oklahoma comes here next week, one singer will see a number of familiar faces in the audience each evening. She is Shirley Winston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Winston of Chevy Chase; she has spent most of her life in Washington; and she found her way to the stage by way of the Capital City's own Stage Door Canteen.

Shirley Winston

A junior hostess there, she met Lawrence Langner, president of the Theater Guild and producer of "Oklahoma," one weekend when he was visiting in Washington. Timidly, she told him she would like a singing role in a forthcoming show. He asked her to call on him the next time she went to New York. She did; was sent at once to the St. James Theater for a tryout, and subsequently was one of the seven girl singers picked for the company of "Oklahoma" which opens here Monday.

Shirley attended American University here, but long before that her musical education was well under way. She studied the violin for eight years, then voice; sang in numerous glee clubs and appeared before several Washington audiences. After Pearl Harbor she made up her mind to turn her attention, and talents, to wartime work. She joined the American Women's Voluntary Services, was assigned to the motor corps and the canteen, and was active in the Stage Door Canteen. Last summer she wrote, directed and produced "The Soldier's Dream," a musical show, which was presented at the canteen and given at a number of camps and service hospitals.

"I SEE STARS . . . stars of great distinction and achievement on your career line," said dynamic Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, as she read the palm of the personable Portuguese Minister, Joao Antonio de Bianchi, at a dinner the other evening. "You are a complicated personality," she went on, while the group hovering around to listen moved in closer . . . "There are great things in store for you . . ."

"Wahwee" MacArthur

I don't know when attractive "Wahwee" Barkley MacArthur started reading palms, but she does it with a dash . . . and a tone of conviction that carries weight. And certainly in the case of the Portuguese Minister, it would seem she had hit the nail with a magic hammer. With Portugal and negotiations about the Azores taking over the headlines, the Portuguese Minister—long a popular figure and one of our town's most brilliant diplomats—has become the Man of the Hour in Washington. Obviously there may be "many great things in store" for the dapper envoy who has been here since 1933; who never misses a trick where his nation's business is concerned; and who tosses off more epigrams per conversation than any other six persons in all Washington.

WHEN A CLOSE FRIEND asks Claude G. Bowers, United States Ambassador to Chile, to inscribe one of his books—he gets his money's worth. The eminent envoy, who has his name on the spine of 10 historical volumes of distinction, writes extensive inscriptions, and generally includes some fascinating incident that might have been included in the book he is autographing. . . . One of Mr. Bowers' friends, for example, came away beaming from the Ambassador's apartment at the Shoreham the other morning. Under his arm was Bowers' best-seller, "The Party Battles of the Jackson Period," and on the flyleaf was a signed, detailed account of an incident the author said he had failed to get into the book. . . .

INTO THE WASHINGTON office of Bascom Timmons the other day went the man who had nominated Timmons, news bureau chief, for Vice President of the United States at the Chicago convention in 1940. Those of us who happened to be present will never forget that exciting and amusing moment, when a lone figure made his way to the platform; shed his coat, asked an astonished Senator Alben Barkley to hold it, and then stepped to the microphone to name Timmons as candidate for America's second highest office.

Well, it seems that same man has similar ambitions for "Tim" this time. "I just thought I'd drop in and discuss a few things with you," he said to his former candidate who, incidentally, looks and talks a lot like the late Will Rogers. "You see, some of us have been thinking about 1944 pretty strong . . . and we sorta figured we might back you for second place again. Now, since lend-lease is working in reverse, as well as a lot of other things, we thought maybe,—well, anyway, how would you like to be our pinup candidate for 1944?"

Bascom Timmons

Timmons still has the matter under consideration. Meanwhile, he has promised that if he does accept the support of his erstwhile promoter, he will do everything in his power to break down the centralization of power in the Nation's Capital. "I told my backer," drawled Timmons to a group of press friends the other evening, "that if I did get the Vice Presidency, I wouldn't come to Washington during my entire term."

Good Music Builds Morale, Says British Attache

The value of music as a wartime morale builder was extolled yesterday by Comdr. Kenneth Downey before a gathering of members of the women's committee of the National Symphony.

Commander Downey, assistant Naval Attache at the British Embassy, was principal speaker at a luncheon held at the Statler Hotel launching the third annual drive for season ticket subscribers to the orchestra's Wednesday evening concerts.

"Since the war began we have had no real music in England," explained the commander. "And when I came to America a year ago to find great symphonic music still being played, it was like coming into a new world. Don't give up your music, regardless of what the war holds for you . . . it is unparalleled as a morale-builder."

A musician in his own right, Commander Downey related to his audience some of his experiences as a member of a roving operatic troupe in the service camps of England. "We tried everything," he said. "And I must say we were a hit, despite the lack of state lights, scenery or elaborate costumes."

She's Off for a Vacation With Her Fingers Crossed

Mrs. Arthur G. Robinson Hopes Third Try At Furlough With Her Husband Succeeds

By Elizabeth Henney

As excited as a brand new bride is Mrs. Arthur G. Robinson, who will be off today to Miami Beach, Fla., to join her husband, Rear Admiral Robinson, United States Navy, Commandant of the Naval Operating Base in Trinidad.

It will be the first time in 16 months she has seen him, and she won't believe it's possible until she actually does; because this is the third time in the past year and a half they have planned a brief vacation together, and something has always happened at the last minute. So, if you see someone wending her way trainward today with the fingers of both hands tightly crossed, chances are it will be Mrs. Robinson.

MRS. ARTHUR G. ROBINSON

In the meantime, during the last sixteen months and two disappointments, Mrs. Robinson has not been sitting around bewailing her fate. As a matter of fact she has been spending most of that time at the Stage Door Canteen, where her behind the scenes and unpublicized work has been responsible to a great degree for its success. From early in the morning until late at night, the only way to reach Mrs. Robinson has been through the back door telephone of the Stage Door Canteen.

No novice at planning programs or arranging settings is Mrs. Robinson. She began her career in such things at the age of 17, when she left her home town and birthplace of Oehlricks, S. Dak., and came to New York, to make fame and fortune in the big city.

Started With Theater And Stage-Designing

As a first outlet for her talents she tried acting on the legitimate stage, but was soon offering such helpful advice on stage settings that she began getting more and more demands to design sets until it was taking over all of her time.

There is no known reason for her turning from acting to designing, but there may be a clew of some sort in the fact that her father, Charles Sylvester Buck, was a famous architect. Anyway, Inez Buck, who started out to be an actress, found herself becoming a well-known set designer, and in immediate demand in the film industry for designing movie sets, which she did with outstanding success.

All of this business went overboard, however, when a young Navy officer, Arthur G. Robinson, came into her life, and after her marriage to him their continuous and rapid peregrinations around the world put a halt to set designing.

And she has run up a record for traveling. It includes twice around the world, three trips to China, five through the Panama Canal, three transatlantic voyages, and about 30 trips across the continent.

After living in Shanghai, while her husband was in command of the USS Marblehead; and a summer in Tsing-tau, while it was under Japanese control; she was evacuated to the United States in November of 1940.

Now Rejuvenates Georgetown Homes

At that time she decided she wanted a home in Georgetown, so she bought an old tumbledown house with good lines and started remodeling it. Before she had finished the job, she was offered such a fabulous sum for it, she couldn't turn it down. That has happened three times now, so it looks as though she is beginning a new profession of rejuvenator of houses.

She has just bought a fourth house, which she swears she is going to do over for herself and the Admiral as a home, and insists she's going to resist all offers. Time will tell.

Miss Winnifred Hyslop of Silver Spring, was maid of honor, wearing pink brocade; and bridesmaids were Miss Sara Katherine Allen of Bridgewater, Va., and Miss Ann Paterson of Baltimore. They wore green brocade. Miss Audrey Durland of Manhattan, Kans. and Miss Doris Wood of Washington conducted a candle-lighting ceremony prior to the wedding and Miss Wood sang. Corpl. James W. Women Officers Inspect Marines At Green River

Heads of the Four Feminine Branches of Armed Services Making 3-Day Trip to Camp Lejeune

By Peggy Preston

It's a great day for the Marines.

Today at Camp Lejeune in Green River, N. C., the pride of the Women's Marine Reserve, replete in uniforms of forest green and scarlet, is marching in full review before a distinguished group of women officers. In the stands are the commanding officers of the four feminine branches of the armed services, and the lady marines are out to prove the excellence of their corps.

The contingent of visitors at Camp Lejeune left Washington yesterday morning from the National Airport. Hostess to the group is friendly, capable Maj. Ruth Cheney Streeter, head of the Women Marines, at whose invitation the inspection trip is being made. In the company are Comdr. Mildred H. McAfee, commanding officer of the WAVES; Lieut. Comdr. Dorothy C. Stratton, director of the SPARS, and members of their respective staffs.

Col. Hobby Unable To Attend

Unable to make the trip, due to business at headquarters here, was Col. Oveta Culp Hobby of the WACS. Representing her at Camp Lejeune, however, are Dr. Hildegarde Dursee, special consultant at WAC headquarters; Maj. Rita Ficchi and Lieut. Jerre Knight.

Camp Lejeune, training center for this youngest of the four women services, will come in for a complete going-over before the three-day inspection trip comes to an end. Heads of the older and more established military branches for women will inspect the facilities and methods for training in use at the camp and will observe the girls in the performance of their tasks.

"The trip is, in effect, a gesture of thanks to the older services for the courtesies they have shown us," explained Major Streeter who as head of the WMRC has been enthusiastically planning the inspection trip for several weeks past.

Major Streeter plans to remain at Green River for the remainder of the weekend and will not be back at her desk in Washington until Tuesday. Other members of the party will return to the Capital Friday night or Saturday morning.

SPARS Head to Go to New York

Lieutenant Commander Stratton will have only a brief breathing spell in town before departing for New York Monday night. On Tuesday she will speak at a meeting of the New York Advertising Club at which Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Walter Lippmann will be guests of honor. With Commander Stratton in Green River are Lieut. Virginia Blunt of the SPAR Training Division; Lieut. (j. g.) Dorothea Wyatt, of the Officers Training School in New London, Conn., and Ensign Dorothy Leonard of SPAR Headquarters.

Delayed in arriving at Camp Lejeune was the WAVES director, Lieutenant Commander McAfee, who yesterday morning stopped in Norfolk where she officiated at the launching of the new aircraft carrier, Franklin. She joined the group in Green River this morning and will be back in Washington tomorrow evening.

Ensign Hammond And Bride on Wedding Trip

Now on their honeymoon at Luray, Va., are Ensign and Mrs. Robert Braden Hammond, whose wedding took place on October 8 in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the former Miss Jo Ann Jarnagin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Jarnagin of Chevy Chase, Md., and Ensign Hammond, USNR, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe H. Hammond of Keedysville, Md. The Rev. J. Hillman Hollister officiated at the 7:30 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, made with a fitted basque, a marquisette yoke edged with lace, long pointed sleeves, with lace falling over the hands, and a full skirt with a train. Her scalloped, fingertip veil of illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a prayer book covered with orchids.

Miss Geraldean Jarnagin, a sister of the bride and her maid of honor, wore a dusty blue taffeta dress, made with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. A bandeau of autumn-colored chrysanthemums and an arm bouquet of matching flowers completed her ensemble. The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Englebach, was dressed like the honor attendant in dusty rose taffeta.

William B. Cooper, jr., of Baltimore, Md., served as best man and the ushers were Lieut. (j. g.) William N. Morell, jr., of Edgemoor, Md., and Lieut. Robert Comstock of Edgemoor, Md.

3 Groups Best Rayburn at Spelling Bee

Representative Sam Rayburn (Democrat) of Texas, using five spelling books, Webster's dictionary and numerous choice lists, couldn't spell down three teams of Congressmen, Congresswomen and newspapermen last night.

The Speaker labored an hour and a half to determine a winner before a National Press Club audience of several thousand, but even resorting to "bdellium" couldn't do the trick.

George Dixon of the news team spelled it blandly.

Four Congresswomen

Four Congresswomen: Bolton of Ohio; Luce of Connecticut; Smith of Maine; and Sumner of Illinois.

Three other newspaper men: Charles Gridley, Felix Cotten, club president, and Gladstone Williams.

Representative Gore misspelled "satellite," "battalion" and colossal."

Mrs. Luce, who spelt "Prentiss Brown" "O-P-A," missed "Albuquerque," "defendant" and "Gibraltar."

"Kimono" Trips Williams

Williams, who killed the ladies by spelling "feline" "L-u-c-e," was disqualified for his renditions of "bulletin," "kimono" and "Philippines."

Representative Mansfield, ranking congressional speller of the evening, missed one word, "Habsburg," and was corrected from the floor when Prince Otto (of Austria) rose himself to spell it properly.

Others who made only one error were Mrs. Bolton, who sternly left the "s" out of "postscript," Dixon, who put an "e" in "lovable" and Cotten and Gridley.

One word was barred, when no one but Mr. Rayburn could pronounce or spell it. This was "Nacogdoches," the name of a county in Texas.

M. W. Blackman, Entomologist, Dies; Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral services for Maulsby W. Blackman, 66, well-known scientist for the Department of Agriculture, who died of a heart attack Tuesday night at his home, 1224 Dale drive, Silver Spring, Md., will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m. at the Warner Pumphery funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

Mr. Blackman came to Washington in 1929 as assistant chief of forest insects, Bureau of Entomology, which position he held until six years ago. Due to poor health, he was transferred to research work on insects with offices in the National Museum. Considered an authority on insects, he wrote many articles for the Department of Agriculture. Before joining the Government service, Mr. Blackman was assistant to the dean at the University of Syracuse in the College of Forestry, and also taught zoology at Harvard.

Besides his wife, Myrtle M., he is survived by a son, Maulsby N., Silver Spring; a sister, Mrs. Cora Eddy, San Diego, Calif., and a brother, Rollin Blackman, Walla Walla, Wash.

Fine Library Lost In Destruction of Naples University

When the Nazis set the torch to the Library of the Royal Society in the University of Naples, they destroyed one of the finest collections of books Italy possessed, it was learned here yesterday.

Elio Gianturco, congressional librarian and himself a student of the university, said that a number of original works were part of the library and that it was especially rich in church literature. He declared the full damage could be estimated only after it has been learned how much of the regular university library has been left intact.

Figures revealed that the library had 18,000 volumes, belonging to 300 collections, in 1929, and 200,000 pamphlets. It was founded in 1861. The University of Naples dates back to the 13th century and is one of the oldest universities in Italy.

Rep. E. W. Creal Dies at Home In Kentucky

Representative Edward W. Creal, 56, (Democrat) of Kentucky, died at his home in Hodgenville, Ky., yesterday, following a stroke suffered Tuesday. He had been at his home for several weeks because of ill health.

The House of Representatives adjourned yesterday out of respect after hearing brief tributes by Representatives Virgil Chapman, and Emmet O'Neal, Kentucky Democrats. A committee consisting of Representative Chapman, and Representative John Robinson (Republican), Noble Gregory, and Beverly Vincent (Democrats), all of Kentucky, was appointed by Speaker Rayburn to attend the funeral.

Elected to House in '35

Mr. Creal was elected to the House in 1935 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Cap R. Carden and was reelected in 1936 and the three succeeding terms.

Born in Larue County, Ky., Representative Creal grew up on a farm. He was educated in the public schools and attended Southern Normal School, East Lynn College and Center College, receiving B. S. and LL. B. degrees. Admitted to the bar, he practiced law in Hodgenville.

School Superintendent

From 1910 to 1918 he served as county superintendent of schools and as county attorney until 1928. The following year he became district attorney and the same year was elected to represent the Fourth Kentucky District in Congress.

He was a member of the State Democratic committee for 15 years, and a former president of the Commonwealth's Attorneys Association of Kentucky. An active Mason, he was a member of the Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Alice Crady, whom he married August 14, 1909, and two sons, Dolph Edward and James Crady. In Washington he made his home at the George Washington Inn, New Jersey ave. and C st. se.

Commissioners Revoke License Of Restaurant

District Commissioners yesterday ordered the revocation of the restaurant license issued to Thomas Alfred Jones of 1425 11th st. nw.

In making its recommendations to the Commissioners, the License Board stated that the restaurant served dirty drinking glasses, had dirty shelves, that trash and an open garbage can were in the backyard, that a bushel basket full of fish in the yard drew flies to the establishment which was not properly screened.

This marks the ninth case passed on by the Commissioners since the opening of the current campaign to clean up District food handling houses.

Meanwhile Lewis A. Hinson, grocer at 2007 1st st. nw., was fined $15 in Municipal Court yesterday when found guilty of having baskets of garbage in a storeroom and baskets of decomposed meat in an ice box.

Medals Awarded 3 District Men For Downing Nazis

Awards of the Air Medal or Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to three local men of the Eighth Bomber Command stationed in England were announced by the War Department yesterday. Each decoration was made for the destruction of one enemy aircraft.

COOPER

The Oak Leaf Cluster was granted to Staff Sergt. Adolph Lurig, who was reported killed in action Tuesday and to Staff Sergt. Hal R. Cooper, waist gunner on the Flying Fortress "Wabbit Twacks." Sergt. Earl S. Mason, jr., now a prisoner of war interned in Germany, received the Air Medal.

Sergeant Lurig, who was killed in a flight over German territory August 12, is the son of Mrs. Annie Lurig, 825 Marietta pl. nw. The 28-year-old tail gunner was born in Washington and was employed as an iron worker before entering the Army in September, 1942.

LURIG

Sergeant Cooper, 5740 Colorado ave. nw., had previously been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Purple Heart and the Air Medal. A former reporter for the Associated Press in Washington, he obtained a leave of absence in April, 1942, to join the Army.

Reported a prisoner of war last August, Sergeant Mason is now at Camp Stlag, 7A, a prison camp located near Munich, according to word received by his father. A former Navy Yard employe, Mason, who is 20, entered the Air Corps September 7, 1942, and went overseas last April.

Flora Cloman, Noted Hostess, Dies at 73

Mrs. Flora Cloman, 2310 Connecticut ave. nw., who rose from life as a pioneer child on America's West Coast to social circles of the Transvaal, London, Mexico City, Manila and Washington, died yesterday following a heart attack. She was 73 years old.

MRS. CLOMAN

Her autobiography, "I'd Live It Over," appeared two years ago, telling of travels West by covered wagon as a child of 5, schooldays in San Francisco and experiences of adventure and splendor as the wife, first of a mining engineer and then an Army officer.

Married first to Victor Clement, she lived in a mining camp. Going with him to South Africa, she played a role in the Jameson Raid conspiracy in which her husband was imprisoned. He was released through British assistance, and she returned with him to this continent where he died in Mexico in 1903.

Three years later she was married to Capt. Sidney Cloman and went with him to London, where he served as military attache. He died shortly after his return to this country from overseas service in the World War.

Mrs. Cloman had been famous as a hostess and as the porsessor of a choice collection of black opals.

She is survived by a grandniece with whom she lived, Mrs. Natalie Keeney Phillips, and two sisters, Mrs. Clara Campbell and Miss Josephine E. Smith, both of Long Beach, Calif.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral with the Rev. Albert H. Lucas of St. Alban's School conducting services.

Wage Boost May Cause Rent Increase

Rent ceilings covering 18 District apartment houses may be raised as a result of regional War Labor Board action increasing the wages of building service employes, it was disclosed yesterday in connection with announcement of the increases.

The board issued its order to settle the dispute between the Bliss properties, operators of the apartment houses, and the AFL Building Service Employes, Local 192.

WLB also ordered time-and-a-half pay after 48 hours and pay for work on six holidays, but specified that the increases—retroactive to April 13—are "subject to action by the District of Columbia Rent Administrator, or the OPA and the Economic Stabilization Director as to the necessity for rent adjustments."

New minimum rates of $100 a month plus apartment and utilities were set for head janitors—an increase of $3.50 to $6 a month. Assistant janitors will receive a similar increase to a $90 a month minimum with quarters. Nonresident janitors will receive $104 a month. A 48-cents-an-hour minimum rate was set for housemen, 41 cents an hour for garagemen, and 50 cents an hour for relief janitors.

The union's request for night shift differential pay and a week's paid vacation for all employes with more than one year's service was denied.

The apartments covered by the decision are the following: 1673 Columbia rd. nw., 1707 Columbia rd. nw., 1401 Fairmont st. nw., 2800 Ontario rd. nw., 2311 Connecticut ave. nw., 2520 15th st. nw., 1940 California st. nw., 423 Massachusetts ave. nw., 1346 Park rd. nw., 5863 Chevy Chase Parkway, 1760 Euclid st. nw., 4550 Connecticut ave. nw., 2310 Connecticut ave. nw., 2701 Connecticut ave. nw., 814 22nd st. nw., 2523 14th st. nw., 607 4th st. nw. and 2659 Connecticut ave. nw.

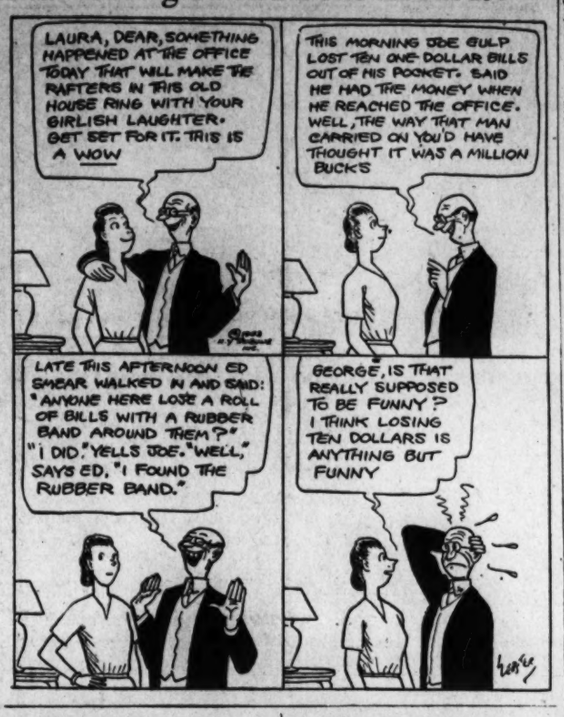
And Nothing Can Be Done About It



LAURA, DEAR, SOMETHING HAPPENED AT THE OFFICE TODAY THAT WILL MAKE THE RAFTERS IN THIS OLD HOUSE RING WITH YOUR GIRLISH LAUGHTER. GET SET FOR IT: THIS IS A WOW
THIS MORNING JOE GULP LOST TEN ONE-DOLLAR BILLS OUT OF HIS POCKET. SAID HE HAD THE MONEY WHEN HE REACHED THE OFFICE. WELL, THE WAY THAT MAN CARRIED ON YOU'D HAVE THOUGHT IT WAS A MILLION BUCKS
LATE THIS AFTERNOON ED SMEAR WALKED IN AND SAID: "ANYONE HERE LOSE A ROLL OF BILLS WITH A RUBBER BAND AROUND THEM?" "I DID," YELLS JOE. "WELL," SAYS ED, "I FOUND THE RUBBER BAND."
GEORGE, IS THAT REALLY SUPPOSED TO BE FUNNY? I THINK LOSING TEN DOLLARS IS ANYTHING BUT FUNNY

Lowell Scion Ordered to Jail For Failing to Obey Draft Law

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 13.—Robert Traill Spence Lowell, jr., 26, cousin of the late A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University, and of poet Amy Lowell, today was sentenced to a year and a day for failure to appear for Army induction.

Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum told Lowell "This will mar your family traditions," and said that if Lowell would reconsider his refusal to comply with the Selective Service Act the sentence might be reduced.

The State had asked for a three-year prison sentence, asserting Lowell had been given every opportunity to comply with the law, but steadfastly refused.

Lowell pleaded guilty Monday.

Werbert Zelenko, Lowell's court-assigned attorney, told the court Lowell applied to both Army and Navy for a commission after Pearl Harbor, but was rejected because of defective eyesight. He said Lowell was not a conscientious objector to war but that "his conscience revolts at the bombing of whole cities and nations."

Physiotherapy Survey Scheduled

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—Bernard M. Baruch, financier and philanthropist, today announced the appointment of a committee headed by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, chancellor of Stanford University, to survey the field of physiotherapy and to make recommendations on widening its usefulness in medicine.

Baruch said $25,000 would be available from the Dr. Simon Baruch Foundation for research work.

Also named on the committee by Baruch were Dr. W. T. Sanger, president of the Medical College of Virginia, as vice chairman, and Dr. Charles F. Behrens, head of the X-ray department of the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.

U. S. Studies Status Of War Prisoners

By the Associated Press

Announcing that Italy's declaration of war against Germany would not change the status of approximately 50,000 Italian prisoners in this country immediately, the War Department said yesterday that the possibility of a future change in their status is being studied.

"Announcement of the disposition of Italian prisoners of war in the hands of Allied troops abroad is a matter for the theater commander concerned," the department added.
